Air Traffic Radar to Be Installed

Colorado air safety facilities will get a $280,000 boost from the government beginning July 1, according to an announcement made Saturday by the Federal Aviation Agency, with the major project scheduled for Colorado Springs.

The project here will be installation of an air traffic control radar beacon system which will serve as a secondary radar system at a cost of $174,220.

N. E. Halaby, FAA administrator, said the program will effect many communities in the nation and will involve the spending of about $113 million of government funds.

Halaby said the program is balanced to meet the needs of three major groups: general aviation, airlines and military service.

Approximately one-tenth of the money will be allocated for relocation and construction of airport traffic control towers thruout the country.

The funds will also be spent for expanded coverage of radar air traffic control; extension of U.S. Weather Bureau radar information; installation of improved radar antenna reflectors; air traffic control radar beacon systems, such as scheduled for Colorado Springs; video mapping equipment rearrangement at flight service stations.

The high video altitude mapping equipment will be installed at air route traffic control centers in Trinidad, Grand Junction and Denver to connect with points in Montana, New Mexico, Wyoming and Utah.

2,000 Russians Leave Cuba on Soviet Liner

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP)—A contingent of 2,000 Russians sailed from Havana Friday aboard a Soviet liner, informed sources said Saturday.

It was not known whether the Russians were soldiers or civilian technicians. Port authorities declined to discuss the departure, saying they were not allowed to reveal the name of the medium-sized ship or its destination.

Other departures of Soviet personnel have been reported previously. The Soviet luxury liner Baltika was reported to have sailed Feb. 21 with an undetermined number of military passengers.

On December 25 a Russian ship sailed from Havana with hundreds of Russian men, women and children who had been stationed in Cuba.

On Feb. 29, the White House said the Kremlin had given assurance that Russian military men would be withdrawn from Cuba by mid-March. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara estimated Jan. 30 there were about 17,000 Soviet military men in Cuba.

Some of the personnel shipping out previously were described as having been assigned to guard the Soviet offensive missiles and bombers that were withdrawn after last fall's Cuban crisis. Others ticketed to go home were reported to be specialists who have been training Cuban armed forces.

In a speech in Havana last Sunday, Soviet Ambassador Alexei Alexeiev said Russian military advisors had helped the Cuban armed forces in mastering powerful, complicated military techniques.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said in Washington, he was informed the United States has sus-

Atomic Satellite Bomb Conceivable, General Admits

WASHINGTON (AP)—It is conceivable some object put into orbit around the earth by the Soviet Union might carry a nuclear warhead without the United States knowing it, the Air Force's research chief told an inquiring congressman Saturday.

But Lt. Gen. James Ferguson had no chance in public to go beyond his crisp, "Conceivable. Yes, Sir." Any further questions were deferred until the House Space Committee went into a closed session.

Ferguson, deputy chief of staff for research and development, told the committee his service has to have a continuing space program because the Soviet Union has plainly shown its interest in military uses of space.

He quoted Soviet Marshal Sokolovskey in a just translated publication as saying, "An important problem now is warfare with artificial earth satellites, which can be launched for diverse reasons, even as carriers of nuclear weapons."

Ferguson said a space vehicle in orbit with a warhead could attack in half the time needed by an intercontinental missile.

Rep. Neil Staebler, D-Mich., raised the question as to a conceivable nuclear weapon launch without U.S. knowledge, but said he would not pursue it further in public.

County Demos Reelect Slate Of Officers

El Paso County Democrats Saturday reelected their entire slate of officers and served warning on the Republican party that they may challenge the state legislative reapportionment bill.

John F. Bennett was named to serve again as president of the organization and Mrs. Charlotte von Stein was reelected as vice-chairman. John F. Gallagher was renamed secretary of the organization.

Named as delegates to the state Democratic Central Committee were Mrs. Alice Foote and Paul Bechtol.

Elected as members of the county Democratic executive committee to serve with above persons, were Mrs. Barbara Larsen, Mrs. Betty Mendenhall, Mrs. Harriet Beals, Mrs. Vera Kester, Mrs. Martha Tilley, William R. Hochman, Thomas McLaughin, Edward R. Nelson and Herman Walsky.

Chairman Bennett told delegates at the meeting that the state committee has asked for $3,000 from this area to finance the party in future elections.

He said that the quota in previous years had been $500. The most the county Democratic party has been able to collect is from $1,500 to $1,800 dollars.

He said, however, that he felt the $3,000 could be raised as long as the party here "was willing to learn."

"While it is not an election year," Bennett said, "right now it looks like one and we must raise

Flights Across Cuba Continue, Report Claims

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today he was informed the United States has suspended low-level reconnaissance flights over Cuba and is using special "electronic ear" planes to listen in from outside Cuban territory.

Goldwater, an Air Force reserve major general, said in an interview that he was told the low-level flights were discontinued Feb. 9, three days after Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's nationwide television report on the Cuban military situation.

An informed government source said this was in error. The source said low-altitude flights were being carried out as the need arose for them and that the high-level

Wagner Claims Some Progress In Strike Talks

NEW YORK (AP)—Publishers and striking printers tried again Saturday — on a note of some progress—to settle this city's 85-day newspaper blackout.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner stood by as mediator in the second day of the latest series of talks.

Wagner said a week ago that if the present sessions produce no agreement in the contract dispute he will propose settlement terms on his own. The terms, however, would not be binding on the disputants.

The word of some progress came from Bertram A. Powers, president of striking Local No. 6, AFL-CIO International Typographical Union, as he arrived at the Hotel Commodore to meet representatives of the Publishers Association of New York City.

Bertram told newsmen that eight hours of sessions Friday were devoted entirely to automation, which he has described as

Giant Telescope May Tell Life Secrets of Mars

PULASKI, Tenn. (AP)—A giant telescope which may tell whether there is life on Mars floated to earth Saturday after a night-long look at the planet.

The mammoth tandem balloon which bore the telescope from Palestine, Tex., to middle Tennessee split apart and came to earth 14 miles west of Pulaski.

The 30-foot telescope was cut loose by radio signal and came down 10 miles north of here.

"We made two good scans of the infrared spectrum of Mars," said Dr. Martin Schwartzschild, Princeton University astronomer in charge of the project. "How good they are is very hard for us to judge, but they showed many details."

He said the telescope operated satisfactorily although there was electrical trouble with some of the equipment.

"I thought it was an airplane at first," said William Pierce, 38, a mechanic, when he first spotted the orange and white telescope.

The original destination was Columbus, Ga., about 250 miles southeast of Pulaski. It was assumed the flight was cut short because the balloon was approaching a belt of bad weather.

Tennessee officers kept watch over the instruments until guards from Huntsville, Ala., about 50 miles away, could reach the scene.

Schwartzschild and other scientists followed in trucks along the projected route of the balloon after

By RAY HERST

Approximately 1,000 persons toured the new Colorado Springs Police Building which was dedicated Saturday in formal ceremonies to the memory of former Police Chief Irvin B. (Dad) Bruce.

Taking part in the dedication which preceeded an open house were Mayor William C. Henderson, John W. Biery, city manager; Keith McBurney, chairman of the El Paso County County Commissioners; Police Chief Cecil McKissick and Charles Smith, former chairman of the commissioners.

Two flags to be used at the new building were presented to City Manager Biery.

Mrs. Roy Bailey, patriotic instructor for the Women's Relief Corps, presented the indoor flag which will be hung in the conference room of the building, and James Mullendore, commander of VFW Post 101 presented an outdoor flag on behalf of the post and the Women's auxilliary. William Eckles past commander of the post raised the colors while Ray Krantz played a trumpet solo of "To the Colors."

U.S. Polaris Subs Ahead of Soviets, Admiral Declares

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — This country's growing fleet of Polaris missile-firing submarines is piling up defensive miseries for the Russians—and they're becoming edgy about it.

So said Rear Adm. Ignatius J. Galantin, chief of the Navy's Polaris program, in an interview touching on a broadside of Russian boasts during the recent Soviet Army-Navy Day celebrations.

Among the Russian pronouncements was Marshal Andrei A. Grechko's declaration that Soviet rockets can destroy Polaris bases "no matter in what seas or what ports they are hidden."

Galantin replied with a terse absolutely not when asked if the Russians can yet cope with the nuclear-powered Polaris submarine, which stays undersea for months on end with 16 deep-striking missiles poised in its tubes.

"This is one area where the United States has a clear, unequivocal lead over the other side," Galantin said.

The admiral, until a year ago the Navy's Anti-Submarine Warfare (ASW) director, said "We've given the Russians more severe ASW problems than they gave us. They're very sensitive to this fact."

But Galantin was not minimizing the U. S. problem of dealing with a Soviet fleet of about 400 submarines, an increasing number of them atomic-powered and a few believed similar to the Polaris.

Counterrevolt Leader Killed, Castro Claims

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro's government announced early today that its forces "completely annihilated" a counterrevolutionary band and killed its leader.

The announcement said the band had been operating in the area between Trinidad and Sancti-Spiritus and identified the leader as Tomas Sangil.

The official announcement charged that Sangil had been "named by the CIA as the counter-revolutionary chief in Las Villas province."

The disclosure did not say when the "annihilation" operation allegedly took place. However, in the last few days there have been reports from the interior mentioning counter-revolutionary activity and saying that the authorities were after the rebels.

In another release, the Armed Forces Ministry said Manuel Valle Caral, radioman of one of the spy rings discovered and announced in late January, was arrested Thursday when he tried to enter a Foreign embassy in Havana.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro, the Premier's younger brother, will speak Monday night on the third anniversary of the destruction of the freighter La Coubre.

The freighter blew up at a Havana pier while unloading weapons and munitions for the revolutionary army. More than 80 persons died in the blast, which Castro blamed on U. S. agents.

Leukemia Rise Noted Following Atomic Bombing

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Atomic bombs dropped on Japan nearly 18 years ago caused a marked rise in leukemia and a probable rise in thyroid cancer but no increase in malformed babies, a Yale University researcher said Saturday.

Dr. Stuart C. Finch, associate professor of medicine, said that a study of pregnancies in Hiroshima showed no more birth defects among babies of blast survivors than among offspring of nonexposed parents.

The only genetic effect observed was a change in the boy-girl ratio among babies born to survivors exposed to radiation, he said.

If the father was irradiated, the probability for a boy increased, he explained. The probability for a girl increased if the mother was irradiated.

Finch recently returned from Japan after serving for two years as chief of medicine for the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission. The commission was set up by former President Harry S. Truman to study the long-range effects of the blasts in Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Finch said the number of survivors who came down with cancer or suffered other after effects was proportionately small.

Commission doctors found that radiation caused the number of Leukemia cases among survivors to soar to 30 to 50 times normal in 1951-52, Finch said.

The rate has declined in recent years, but is still two or three times normal, he added. The incidence of leukemia, a blood cancer, was related by the researchers to the radiation dose received.

By VAN SAVELL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A Birmingham newsman active in the Cuban invasion says 18 battle-tested airmen from the United States flew strafing missions in the Bay of Pigs fiasco.

Albert C. Persons, managing editor of the weekly Birmingham Examiner, said that U. S. military air support was never intended, that he and 21 other Americans were hired to replace inexperienced Cuban aircrews.

The number was later cut to 18. Four of the airmen, all from Birmingham, were killed in the April 19, 1961, invasion. They were flying a C46 cargo plane converted for strafing at low levels. Their bodies were never recovered.

In an Examiner article, Persons said the military operation "under the control of the Kennedy administration was not the operation conceived and originally organ-

Nikita's Men Are 'Cowardly Mice,' Red China Says

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China renewed its attack on Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev Saturday with a statement that only "scoundrels or simpletons" believe there can be anything except uncompromising class warfare against capitalism in the world.

Saturday's attack on Khrushchev, the third installment of an eight-part, 100,000-word Chinese Communist restatement of its hard line, was in the guise of attack on Italian Communist Party leader Palmiro Togliatti.

It dismissed Togliatti and "other comrades" with the statement "there is nothing new in their ideas." It said they had become "bourgeois socialism which Marx and Engels so relentlessly rejected long ago."

The statement was published in the Red Flag magazine in Peking and broadcast by Peking radio. It came as Communist sources in London disclosed that Red China had quietly dropped its sponsorship of "The World Marxist Review," a Prague-published organ of international communism.

The first installment said the Soviet bloc leaders were cowardly. On Friday accused Khrushchev and other "self - styled Leninists" of talking "drivel on the question of war and peace."

Suspended Cop Admits Taking $350 From Fund

CANON CITY (AP) — Police Chief Kenneth Owens said today a suspended patrolman, Frank Pasternak, 28, has admitted the embezzelment of $350 from the South Central Colorado Peace Officers Association.

Pasternak was elected treasurer of the association last September, two weeks after he joined the Police Department following nine years' service in the Marine Corps.

Owens said Pasternak had been suspended for ten days last Monday for conduct unbecoming an officer. The chief said the patrolman had been drinking while off duty, a departmental offense.

Association President Fred Roche discovered the shortage, Owens said, when he checked the fund's balance at a bank Friday. It contained only $3.18.

Owens said Pasternak, who admitted verbaly that they took the money, was held in jail overnight pending the filing of District Court charges.

Oppenheimer Gets $150,000 Research Grant

BOULDER — Assoc. Prof. Frank Oppenheimer of the University of Colorado physics and astrophysics department has received a $150,000 National Science Foundation grant to continue research on elementary particle interactions from bubble chamber photographs.

Elementary particles are tiny particles derived from the nucleus of the atom. They are so small and have such short lives that they can only be detected indirectly by a trail of bubbles they leave—much like an airplane's vapor trail—in a chamber of liquid hydrogen or propane.

To study and identify the particles, physicists photograph them the instant they shoot through the liquid. It is these pictures Oppenheimer's group is studying at CU.

'Sun Sensor' Will Aid Accuracy of Satellite

TETERBORO, N.J. — A super-precise aerospace device that will permit "dead center" of the sun's 865,000-mile diameter to be used as a reference point for controlling attitude of an orbiting satellite has been developed by the Bendix Corporation.

The device, called a "fine Sun Senor," was built by engineers of the corporation's Eclipse - Pioneer division, Teterboro, N.J. to make it possible for space-borne detecting and sensing equipment to be aimed, "with unparalleled accuracy," at selected areas of the universe, said R. F. Carlisle, engineering manager of the division's aerospace navigation, guidance and control program.

"It will pinpoint the center of the sun to one arc second," he said. "This is comparable to a rifleman's hitting a dime at a distance of two miles. Space scientists need such a precise reference to permit them to chart our solar system more accurately and acquire knowledge that is critical to paving the way for manned spacecraft."

The miniature unit is designed for installation on the outside of a satellite, like a radar probe on an aircraft. It is contained completely within a two inch diameter case measuring six inches in length and weighs only four pounds. Its associated digital electronics package weighs three pounds and requires only three watts of power.

The sensor has a "space life" of a year or more, Carlisle said.

Infection in San Luis Valley Under Control

DENVER — An outbreak of streptococcal throat infection in the San Luis Valley which reached epidemic proportions in mid-January has now been brought under control, the Colorado State Health Department said Saturday.

Department officials said a mass oral penicillin treatment program among school children and their families in four Conejos County communities was successful in curbing the outbreak.

Cleveland News Strike Could Last Until May

CLEVELAND (AP) — A management spokesman said today Cleveland's 93-day newspaper strike could last well into May if the Printers Union does not change its present stand on money matters.

The printers are one of three unions on strike against the Plain Dealer and the Cleveland Press and News.

"If they decide to move closer to the $10 pattern accepted by other unions, then we'll wind it up fast," the spokesman said.

Management has offered a 29-month package.

Hard-Drinking Swedes Running Out of Liquor

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—"A national catastrophe is near," screamed the newspaper headlines Saturday. "We are running out of liquor."

For hard-drinking Swedes, "catastrophe" was the right word. Many favorite brands of booze cannot be bought at all and the supply of aacquavit, the "white lightning" national drink, was not expected to last the day.

The drought began when talks between the government and delivery foremen, who want longer vacations, went on strike, halting all deliveries to the nation's liquor stores.

The government, faced with rapidly dwindling supplies and no sign of an end to the strike, instituted rationing two days ago to block hoarding.

"This is like strolling around the Sahara without water," said one glum drinker, unhappily surveying the long line outside his neighborhood grog shop.

No unbearable thirst has been reported yet. Government officials, in fact, said the parched and panicky Swedes have stocked up on more liquor in the past two days than in the whole preceding week.

The rationing allows a half pint of liquor, plus a bottle of wine per person at each shop.

Hour-long lines are forming at each shop and some drinkers are spending entire days running from shop to shop and line to line.

Air Traffic Radar to Be Installed

Colorado air safety facilities will get a $280,000 boost from the government beginning July 1, according to an announcement made Saturday by the Federal Aviation Agency, with the major project scheduled for Colorado Springs.

The project here will be installation of an air traffic control radar beacon system which will serve as a secondary radar system at a cost of $174,220.

N. E. Halaby, FAA administrator, said the program will effect many communities in the nation and will involve the spending of about $113 million of government funds.

Halaby said the program is balanced to meet the needs of three major groups: general aviation, airlines and military service.

Approximately one-tenth of the money will be allocated for relocation and construction of airport traffic control towers thruout the country.

The funds will also be spent for expanded coverage of radar air traffic control; extension of U.S. Weather Bureau radar information; installation of improved radar antenna reflectors; air traffic control radar beacon systems, such as scheduled for Colorado Springs; video mapping equipment rearrangement at flight service stations.

The high video altitude mapping equipment will be installed at air route traffic control centers in Trinidad, Grand Junction and Denver to connect with points in Montana, New Mexico, Wyoming and Utah.

He said, however, that he felt the $3,000 could be raised as long as the party here "was willing to learn."

Flights Across Cuba Continue, Report Claims

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today he was informed the United States has suspended low-level reconnaissance flights over Cuba and is using special "electronic ear" planes to listen in from outside Cuban territory.

Goldwater, an Air Force reserve major general, said in an interview that he was told the low-level flights were discontinued Feb. 9, three days after Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's nationwide television report on the Cuban military situation.

An informed government source said this was in error. The source said low-altitude flights were being carried out as the need arose for them and that the high-level

Wagner Claims Some Progress In Strike Talks

NEW YORK (AP)—Publishers and striking printers tried again Saturday — on a note of some progress—to settle this city's 85-day newspaper blackout.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner stood by as mediator in the second day of the latest series of talks.

Wagner said a week ago that if the present sessions produce no agreement in the contract dispute he will propose settlement terms on his own. The terms, however, would not be binding on the disputants.

The word of some progress came from Bertram A. Powers, president of striking Local No. 6, AFL-CIO International Typographical Union, as he arrived at the Hotel Commodore to meet representatives of the Publishers Association of New York City.

Bertram told newsmen that eight hours of sessions Friday were devoted entirely to automation, which he has described as

Giant Telescope May Tell Life Secrets of Mars

PULASKI, Tenn. (AP)—A giant telescope which may tell whether there is life on Mars floated to earth Saturday after a night-long look at the planet.

The mammoth tandem balloon which bore the telescope from Palestine, Tex., to middle Tennessee split apart and came to earth 14 miles west of Pulaski.

The 30-foot telescope was cut loose by radio signal and came down 10 miles north of here.

"We made two good scans of the infrared spectrum of Mars," said Dr. Martin Schwartzschild, Princeton University astronomer in charge of the project. "How good they are is very hard for us to judge, but they showed many details."

He said the telescope operated satisfactorily although there was electrical trouble with some of the equipment.

"I thought it was an airplane at first," said William Pierce, 38, a mechanic, when he first spotted the orange and white telescope.

The original destination was Columbus, Ga., about 250 miles southeast of Pulaski. It was assumed the flight was cut short because the balloon was approaching a belt of bad weather.

Tennessee officers kept watch over the instruments until guards from Huntsville, Ala., about 50 miles away, could reach the scene.

Schwartzschild and other scientists followed in trucks along the projected route of the balloon after

By RAY HERST

Approximately 1,000 persons toured the new Colorado Springs Police Building which was dedicated Saturday in formal ceremonies to the memory of former Police Chief Irvin B. (Dad) Bruce.

Taking part in the dedication which preceeded an open house were Mayor William C. Henderson, John W. Biery, city manager; Keith McBurney, chairman of the El Paso County County Commissioners; Police Chief Cecil McKissick and Charles Smith, former chairman of the commissioners.

Two flags to be used at the new building were presented to City Manager Biery.

Mrs. Roy Bailey, patriotic instructor for the Women's Relief Corps, presented the indoor flag which will be hung in the conference room of the building, and James Mullendore, commander of VFW Post 101 presented an outdoor flag on behalf of the post and the Women's auxilliary. William Eckles past commander of the post raised the colors while Ray Krantz played a trumpet solo of "To the Colors."

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — This country's growing fleet of Polaris missile-firing submarines is piling up defensive miseries for the Russians—and they're becoming edgy about it.

So said Rear Adm. Ignatius J. Galantin, chief of the Navy's Polaris program, in an interview touching on a broadside of Russian boasts during the recent Soviet Army-Navy Day celebrations.

Among the Russian pronouncements was Marshal Andrei A. Grechko's declaration that Soviet rockets can destroy Polaris bases "no matter in what seas or what ports they are hidden."

Galantin replied with a terse absolutely not when asked if the Russians can yet cope with the nuclear-powered Polaris submarine, which stays undersea for months on end with 16 deep-striking missiles poised in its tubes.

"This is one area where the United States has a clear, unequivocal lead over the other side," Galantin said.

The admiral, until a year ago the Navy's Anti-Submarine Warfare (ASW) director, said "We've given the Russians more severe ASW problems than they gave us. They're very sensitive to this fact."

But Galantin was not minimizing the U. S. problem of dealing with a Soviet fleet of about 400 submarines, an increasing number of them atomic-powered and a few believed similar to the Polaris.

"I can't foresee any magical

Women's League Chief Blasts Back at Mayor

The president of the League of Women Voters, which has conducted the campaign for the city to adopt a Code of Ethics, has lashed out against Mayor William Henderson who announced Friday that he was not in favor of voters adopting the code which will be on the April 2 ballot.

Mrs. Max N. Huffman countered Henderson's stand Saturday and asked, "Doesn't he believe in the democratic process, in representative government? Our Charter provides for initiated ordinances when the wishes of the people are not carried out by their elected officials.

Egypt Bombers Said Striking Saudi Arabia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Egyptian bombers have repeatedly struck across the border into Saudi Arabia in the last three days to support a growing campaign to destroy royalist guerilla forces in the Yemen, it was reported today.

About three days ago five Egyptian bombers attacked an airfield at Kahmis Mishayt, northeast of the port of Jizan, it was learned on good authority.

Friday, Jizan itself was attacked by one or more Egyptian bombers flying across the border from Yemen.

These attacks were the deepest

Counterrevolt Leader Killed, Castro Claims

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro's government announced early today that its forces "completely annihilated" a counterrevolutionary band and killed its leader.

The announcement said the band had been operating in the area between Trinidad and Sancti-Spiritus and identified the leader as Tomas Sangil.

The official announcement charged that Sangil had been "named by the CIA as the counter-revolutionary chief in Las Villas province."

The disclosure did not say when the "annihilation" operation allegedly took place. However, in the last few days there have been reports from the interior mentioning counter-revolutionary activity and saying that the authorities were after the rebels.

In another release, the Armed Forces Ministry said Manuel Valle Caral, radioman of one of the spy rings discovered and announced in late January, was arrested Thursday when he tried to enter a Foreign embassy in Havana.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro, the Premier's younger brother, will speak Monday night on the third anniversary of the destruction of the freighter La Coubre.

The freighter blew up at a Havana pier while unloading weapons and munitions for the revolutionary army. More than 80 persons died in the blast, which Castro blamed on U. S. agents.

Infection in San Luis Valley Under Control

DENVER — An outbreak of streptococcal throat infection in the San Luis Valley which reached epidemic proportions in mid-January has now been brought under control, the Colorado State Health Department said Saturday.

Department officials said a mass oral penicillin treatment program among school children and their families in four Conejos county communities was successful in curbing the outbreak.

Leukemia Rise Noted Following Atomic Bombing

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Atomic bombs dropped on Japan nearly 18 years ago caused a marked rise in leukemia and a probable rise in thyroid cancer but no increase in malformed babies, a Yale University researcher said Saturday.

Dr. Stuart C. Finch, associate professor of medicine, said that a study of pregnancies in Hiroshima showed no more birth defects among babies of blast survivors than among offspring of nonexposed parents.

The only genetic effect observed was a change in the boy-girl ratio among babies born to survivors exposed to radiation, he said.

If the father was irradiated, the probability for a boy increased, he explained. The probability for a girl increased if the mother was irradiated.

Finch recently returned from Japan after serving for two years as chief of medicine for the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission. The commission was set up by former President Harry S. Truman to study the long-range effects of the blasts in Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Finch said the number of survivors who came down with cancer or suffered other after effects was proportionately small.

Commission doctors found that radiation caused the number of Leukemia cases among survivors to soar to 30 to 50 times normal in 1951-52, Finch said.

The rate has declined in recent years, but is still two or three times normal, he added. The incidence of leukemia, a blood cancer, was related by the researchers to the radiation dose received.

Cleveland News Strike Could Last Until May

CLEVELAND (AP) — A management spokesman said today Cleveland's 93-day newspaper strike could last well into May if the Printers Union does not change its present stand on money matters.

The printers are one of three unions on strike against the Plain Dealer and the Cleveland Press and News.

If they decide to move closer to the 810 pattern accepted by oth or unions, then we'll wind it up

By VAN SAVELL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A Birmingham newsman active in the Cuban invasion says 18 battle-tested airmen from the United States flew strafing missions in the Bay of Pigs fiasco.

Albert C. Persons, managing editor of the weekly Birmingham Examiner, said that U. S. military air support was never intended, that he and 21 other Americans were hired to replace inexperienced Cuban aircrews.

The number was later cut to 18. Four of the airmen, all from Birmingham, were killed in the April 19, 1961, invasion. They were flying a C46 cargo plane converted for strafing at low levels. Their bodies were never recovered.

In an Examiner article, Persons said the military operation "under the control of the Kennedy administration was not the operation conceived and originally organ-

Suspended Cop Admits Taking $350 From Fund

CANON CITY (AP) — Police Chief Kenneth Owens said today a suspended patrolman, Frank Pasternak, 28, has admitted the embezzelment of $350 from the South Central Colorado Peace Officers Association.

Pasternak was elected treasurer of the association last September, two weeks after he joined the Police Department following nine years service in the Marine Corps.

Owens said Pasternak had been suspended for ten days last Monday for conduct unbecoming an officer. The chief said the patrolman had been drinking while off duty, a departmental offense.

Association President Fred Roche discovered the shortage, Owens said, when he checked the fund's balance at a bank Friday. It contained only $3.18.

Owens said Pasternak, who admitted verbaly that they took the money, was held in jail overnight pending the filing of District Court charges.

Nikita's Men Are 'Cowardly Mice,' Red China Says

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China renewed its attack on Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev Saturday with a statement that only "scoundrels or simpletons" believe there can be anything except uncompromising class warfare against capitalism in the world.

Saturday's attack on Khrushchev, the third installment of an eight-part, 100,000-word Chinese Communist restatement of its hard line, was in the guise of attack on Italian Communist Party leader Palmiro Togliatti.

It dismissed Togliatti and "other comrades" with the statement "there is nothing new in their ideas." It said they had become "bourgeois socialism which Marx and Engels so relentlessly rejected long ago."

The statement was published in the Red Flag magazine in Peking and broadcast by Peking radio. It came as Communist sources in London disclosed that Red China had quietly dropped its sponsorship of "The World Marxist Review," a Prague-published organ of international communism.

The first installment said the Soviet bloc leaders were cowardly. On Friday accused Khrushchev and other "self - styled Leninists" of talking "drivel on the question of war and peace."

"There can be no alternative

Oppenheimer Gets $150,000 Research Grant

BOULDER — Assoc. Prof. Frank Oppenheimer of the University of Colorado physics and astrophysics department has received a $150,000 National Science Foundation grant to continue research on elementary particle interactions from bubble chamber photographs.

Elementary particles are tiny particles derived from the nucleus of the atom. They are so small and have such short lives that they can only be detected indirectly by a trail of bubbles they leave—much like an airplane's vapor trail—in a chamber of liquid hydrogen or propane.

To study and identify the particles, physicists photograph them the instant they shoot through the liquid. It is these pictures Oppenheimer's group is studying at CU.

'Sun Sensor' Will Aid Accuracy of Satellite

TETERBORO, N.J. — A super-precise aerospace device that will permit "dead center" of the sun's 865,000-mile diameter to be used as a reference point for controlling attitude of an orbiting satellite has been developed by the Bendix Corporation.

The device, called a "fine Sun Senor," was built by engineers of the corporation's Eclipse - Pioneer division, Teterboro, N.J. to make it possible for space-borne detecting and sensing equipment to be aimed, "with unparalleled accuracy," at selected areas of the universe, said R. F. Carlisle, engineering manager of the division's aerospace navigation, guidance and control program.

"It will pinpoint the center of the sun to one arc second," he said. "This is comparable to a rifleman's hitting a dime at a distance of two miles. Space scientists need such a precise reference to permit them to chart our solar system more accurately and acquire knowledge that is critical to paving the way for manned spacecraft."

The miniature unit is designed for installation on the outside of a satellite, like a radar probe on an aircraft. It is contained complete ly within a two inch diameter case measuring six inches in length, and weighs only four pounds. Its associated digital electronics package weighs three pounds and requires only three watts of power.

The sensor has a "space life" of a year or more, Carlisle said.

Hard-Drinking Swedes Running Out of Liquor

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)— "A national catastrophe is near," screamed the newspaper headlines Saturday. "We are running out of liquor."

For hard-drinking Swedes, "catastrophe" was the right word. Many favorite brands of booze cannot be bought at all and the supply of aacquavit, the "white lightning" national drink, was not expected to last the day.

The drought began when talks between the government and delivery foremen, who want longer vacations, went on strike, halting all deliveries to the nation's liquor stores.

The government, faced with rapidly dwindling supplies and no sign of an end to the strike, instituted rationing two days ago to block hoarding.

"This is like strolling around the Sahara without water," said one glum drinker, unhappily surveying the long line outside his neighborhood grog shop.

No unbearable thirst has been reported yet. Government officials, in fact, said the parched and panicky Swedes have stocked up on more liquor in the past two days than in the whole preceding week.

The rationing allows a half pint of liquor, plus a bottle of wine per person at each shop.

Hour-long lines are forming at each shop and some drinkers are spending entire days running from shop to shop and line to line.

Carson Soldier's Father Once POW At Fort

An odd quirk of fate has brought Spec. 4 Horst G. Krueger to Ft. Carson where his father was a prisoner - of - war 20 years ago.

But the mountain post was recommended highly by the senior Krueger, now a resident of Vancouver, B. C. He had told his son of the good treatment which he received, prisoner self-government and timber cutting in Pike National Forest.

When Krueger returned to East Berlin in 1947, Colorado looked good when he heard of his family's struggle to survive in Germany thru the war years.

At one time a German tank stationed next to the Krueger home withdrew to be replaced by a Russian tank which exploded soon afterwards destroying the house. The Kruegers escaped without injury.

In 1952 the Kruegers crossed the border to West Berlin, each one using a different escape point. They moved to Canada in July, 1953, moving to Anchorage, Alaska, where young Krueger was drafted in September, 1961.

After completing basic and airborne training, he volunteered for the infantry in hopes of going overseas. Instead he was assigned to Company A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Infantry, with the new 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Carson.

"It feels real great to be on the right side of the fence and be fighting for freedom," Krueger commented on how it feels to be stationed where his father was once a prisoner - o f - war.

Marksmanship Program at Carson Started

The 1963 Ft. Carson and 5th Division Competitive Marksmanship Program is now in the first phase of its scheduled pistol, rifle, and automatic rifle competition.

The program is pointed at the moment toward competition in the Fifth Army Smallbore postal matches. However, beginning the week of March 18, all units on post will begin competition in largebore rifle, pistol, and automatic rifle marksmanship.

Team practices for this competition will be conducted through the week ending March 15. Team rosters must be submitted to Lt. Patrick Pudvay, Officer In Charge of the program by that date.

Results of the matches here during the week of March 18 will determine makeup of largebore rifle, pistol, and automatic rifle teams.

From March 25 thru April 17, the Ft. Carson team will practice for Fifth Army matches scheduled at Ft. Riley April 19 through 28.

For the initial Ft. Carson competition each 5th Division major subordinate command will form at least two rifle and two pistol teams. Each infantry battalion will enter at least three automatic rifle teams to compete. Other units with autmoatic rifles will form one AR team per company. The 5th MPs will have one pistol team.

In the initial phase of smallbore competition, crack shots from the 4th Squadron, 12th Cavalry, have blazed their way to first place. Entering a team in both the smallbore rifle and pistol events the troopers won top spot with scores of 1157 out of a possible 1800 in the rifle event and 1038 of a possible 1200 in the pistol matches. Team captains were Sgt. I. C. E. F. Marcy for the riflemen and 1st Lt. Rogert Quinn for the pistoleers.

Carson Soldier's Father Once POW At Fort

An odd quirk of fate has brought Spec. 4 Horst G. Krueger to Ft. Carson where his father was a prisoner - of - war 20 years ago.

But the mountain post was recommended highly by the senior Krueger, now a resident of Vancouver, B. C. He had told his son of the good treatment which he received, prisoner self-government and timber cutting in Pike National Forest.

When Krueger returned to East Berlin in 1947, Colorado looked good when he heard of his family's struggle to survive in Germany thru the war years.

At one time a German tank stationed next to the Krueger home withdrew to be replaced by a Russian tank which exploded soon afterwards destroying the house. The Kruegers escaped without injury.

In 1952 the Kruegers crossed the border to West Berlin, each one using a different escape point. They moved to Canada in July, 1953, moving to Anchorage, Alaska, where young Krueger was drafted in September, 1961.

After completing basic and airborne training, he volunteered for the infantry in hopes of going overseas. Instead he was assigned to Company A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Infantry, with the new 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Carson.

"It feels real great to be on the right side of the fence and be fighting for freedom," Krueger commented on how it feels to be stationed where his father was once a prisoner - o f - war.

Marksmanship Program at Carson Started

The 1963 Ft. Carson and 5th Division Competitive Marksmanship Program is now in the first phase of its scheduled pistol, rifle, and automatic rifle competition.

The program is pointed at the moment toward competition in the Fifth Army Smallbore postal matches. However, beginning the week of March 18, all units on post will begin competition in largebore rifle, pistol, and automatic rifle marksmanship.

Team practices for this competition will be conducted through the week ending March 15. Team rosters must be submitted to Lt. Patrick Pudvay, Officer In Charge of the program by that date.

Results of the matches here during the week of March 18 will determine makeup of largebore rifle, pistol, and automatic rifle teams.

From March 25 thru April 17, the Ft. Carson team will practice for Fifth Army matches scheduled at Ft. Riley April 19 through 28.

For the initial Ft. Carson competition each 5th Division major subordinate command will form at least two rifle and two pistol teams. Each infantry battalion will enter at least three automatic rifle teams to compete. Other units with autmoatic rifles will form one AR team per company. The 5th MPs will have one pistol team.

In the initial phase of smallbore competition, crack shots from the 4th Squadron, 12th Cavalry, have blazed their way to first place. Entering a team in both the smallbore rifle and pistol events the troopers won top spot with scores of 1157 out of a possible 1800 in the rifle event and 1038 of a possible 1200 in the pistol matches. Team captains were Sgt. I. C. E. F. Marcy for the rifemen and 1st Lt. Rogert Quinn for the pistoleers.

COLORADO SPRINGS GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH

Neutral Course Voted for by Local PTA

At the regular February meeting of the Horace Mann Junior High School PTA the following resolution was passed by eight to one majority in secret ballot voting.

"Be it resolved: That the Horace Mann Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association with a present membership of 835 parents and teachers requests that the State and National PTA Boards of Managers abstain from endorsing or opposing any specific legislative issue or issues, and instead confine their activities in the legislative field to a strictly educational function in accordance with the National PTA by-laws. (Article III, Sections 1 and 2.)

"And further be it resolved: That the Horace Mann Junior High School Parent - Teacher Association direct the legislative chairman to send letters of protest to the state and national PTA boards of managers at such times in the future when the state and national boards of managers attempt to influence pending legislation by taking a definite stand on specific issues purportedly speaking for the Parent-Teacher Association as a whole without authorization or knowledge of individual PTA members."

This resolution was passed to indicate local support for conformity to changes made in the National PTA by-laws last year at the annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Article III (Basic Policies) Section 1 was amended to read: "The objects of the National Congress shall be promoted thru an educational program directed toward parents, teachers, and the general public; shall be developed thru conferences, committees, and projects; and shall be governed and qualified by the basic policies set forth in this article."

Section 3 was amended to read: "The congress, its local units, and its branches shall not — directly or indirectly — participate or intervene (in any way, including the publishing or distributing of statements) in any political campaign on behalf of, or in opposition to, any candidate for public office; or devote more than an insubstantial part of their activities to attempting to influence legislation by propaganda or otherwise."

A similar resolution was approved by the Wasson High School PTA by a 20 to one majority at its regular January meeting.

The Horace Mann PTA also voted its support for changes to be made in the by-laws of the Colorado Congress of Parents and Teachers. These changes would require that the delegates at State PTA Convention vote on the national and state legislation platforms item by item, and also that the voting be done each year instead of every three years.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

FORT MADISON, Ia. (UPI)— The modern fountain pen is celebrating its 50th birthday this year.

It was just a half-century ago that W.A. Sheaffer invented and began commercial production of the first practical lever-fill pen. Prior to 1913, ink was transferred from bottle to barrel via eye dropper or by suction activiated by an unsightly and unhandy protrusion on the pen.

Economic Jitters Seen In Labor Strike Spasm

By NORMAN WALKER
AP Labor Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The latest spasm of labor strikes, terrible as it has been, is a symptom of something worse—a bad case of real and fancied economic jitters.

The symptoms are devastating enough. The recent 34-day East-Gulf Coast docks strike crippled the nation's foreign commerce and cost an estimated $80 0million in lost business and wages. That is a dollar figure the federal government would be proud to claim as a budget surplus.

Newspaper strikes in New York and Cleveland have cut off whole cities from their daily papers for long periods, damaged community business and posed a question whether some publications can survive.

Big space-missile firms have recently barely escaped shutdowns. Walkout threats lie ahead in a number of key industries. The railroads, for example, face a labor crisis in the next few months and nobody seems to be doing much about it.

Too often strikes are chaotic, wasteful, brutal and inconsiderate of the public interest.

Too often, also, more attention is focused on cures for the strike symptoms than on cures for the basic economic disease that somehow goads labor-management protagonists into trying to kill off each other at the public's expense.

Behind the turbulent labor relations scene, management and labor are in a giant squeeze.

Each is puzzled and piqued because increases in profits and wages don't come so easy any more. The economic pie they cut up isn't growing as much as it once did. Each side is feeling a pinch.

Fierce new sales competition—at home as well as abroad—has made it even more compelling for employers to automate, streamline the production process, and cut costs. Raising prices has become increasingly difficult.

A resulting shortage of jobs in a constantly expanding work force leaves workers grimly intent on hanging on to the ones they have. They worriedly seek higher pay and job safeguards against the future. They sullenly complain about the boss' suddenly taut purse string.

It obviously would be much simpler for an employer to trim obsolete manpower, or "featherbedders," from his payroll if a full employment economy provided jobs elsewhere.

The underlying economic turmoil has created new tensions in labor-management relations. It helps explain why, although the number of strikes hasn't increased significantly, the walkouts that do develop are far more desperate and irreconcilable.

This is not a satisfying explanation for the New York subway rider grumbling over the absence of his favorite daily newspapers.

Nor is it a solace to an old friend of this writer who, returning from a long foreign service duty tour for the government, personally had to lug 26 pieces of luggage off an ocean liner during the recent docks strike.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz has said, "The public reacts more vehemently to a kick in the shins than to an attack of economic arthritis."

Wirtz acknowledged the citizenry is fed up with the shin-kicking it has been getting lately—and is about ready, should another major labor crisis come along, to support compulsory arbitration, or some other tougher method for dealing with big strikes than is presently authorized.

If labor and management fail to make the collective bargaining system work better, Congress may accommodate a protesting public with drastic new shackles on either side or both.

President Kennedy seems disposed to ride out the storm. There was no mention of the labor problem in his messages to the new Congress. Instead, he has posed his tax revision bill as an antidote for over-all economic ills.

George Meany, top man in the labor movement as president of the AFL-CIO, concedes the collisions between labor and management over the new problems they are encountering are not susceptible to setlement by strikes "or by the art of compromise as we have known it in the past."

Solutions must come, Meany says, through "close and wholehearted cooperation by labor, management and government on a scale not previously acceptable to any of them."

Some feel that real labor peace comes to disputants only after they have nearly kayoed each other and won mutual respect. This school points to the sudden end of coal strikes after the industry and union had it out a dozen years ago. It takes note, too, of the promising new year-around consultative labor - management system adopted in the steel industry after the record 116-day 1959 steel strike.

Whether labor laws are revised or not, the government is doing some soul-searching on its own role in the labor relations arena. There doesn't seem to be any disposition to reduce the frequency of disputes intervention that hit a dramatic peak when Arthur J. Goldberg, now a Supreme Court justice, served as Kennedy's labor secretary.

Some second thoughts are being given, however, on how to make federal intervention work better.

Secretary Wirtz—a busy man riding herd on the troubled labor scene in the five months since he succeeded Goldberg—frankly admits the government has been improvising.

Wirtz recently noted wryly there were some 30-odd public participants, from President Kennedy on down, including city mayors and a federal judge, trying at one time or another to settle the recent dock strike.

Hinting that government intervention moves may not always have been wisely carried out, Wirtz says they were undertaken not only because the public demanded something be done but to "prevent collective bargaining from committing suicide."

The White House and Labor Department generally get into the major labor disputes in an extra-legal sort of way. Without specific sanction of law, and merely stating intervention is "in the public interest," the government suddenly will create a special board or send in a special mediator to recommend a labor dispute compromise. The recommendations have no legal force but they usually have, or at least seek to have, the powerful backing of public opinion.

The emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley labor-management law have been invoked only 22 times in the 15 years since the law was enacted.

The Taft-Hartley strike emergency procedure and the companion strike delaying procedures of the Railway Labor Act have been useful as a big stick.

As paralyzing as some recent strikes have been, there are even more ominous clouds gathering on the labor relations horizon. New storms could break out in 1963 in a number of industries, including telephone, rubber and electrical manufacturing. The steel contracts are reopenable on wages, pensions and insurance benefits.

The year 1964, a presidential campaign year, is also potentially chock full of labor strife. Some of the biggest labor-management contracts will fully run out then, including James R. Hoffa's major Teamsters trucking pacts, Walter Reuther's agreements with the top auto firms, and David J. McDonald's contracts with the big steel companies.

Forest Service Backs Anti Litter Campaign

The new "Take It With You" campaign recently initiated by the Conservation Committee of the Colorado Mountain Club drew support from Regional Forester D.S. Nordwall.

Writing the committee, Nordwall praised the Mountain Club for its initiative in heading an anti-litter campaign in wilderness areas.

The mountain club has joined with other wilderness clubs on a campaign against burying litter. The club's message is enclosed in a strong plastic bag.

"Our Wilderness is growing too small to make it a pock-marked graveyard for our rubbish. Please use this and similar bags to carry out your trash," pleads the club.

A "Conservation Warchest" fund campaign seeking contributions to aid in preserving the last remaining wilderness is being carried out in conjunction with the "Take It With You" effort.

"As guardians of the nation's largest wild, wilderness and primitive areas, the Forest Service appreciates your efforts and we wish you every success," Nordwall wrote the club.

Further information about the "Take It With You" campaign may be had by writing the conservation Committee, Colorado Mountain Club, 1400 Josephine St., Denver 6, Colorado.

COLORADO SPRINGS GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH

Neutral Course Voted for by Local PTA

At the regular February meeting of the Horace Mann Junior High School PTA the following resolution was passed by eight to one majority in secret ballot voting.

"Be it resolved: That the Horace Mann Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association with a present membership of 835 parents and teachers requests that the State and National PTA Boards of Managers abstain from endorsing or opposing any specific legislative issue or issues, and instead confine their activities in the legislative field to a strictly educational function in accordance with the National PTA by-laws. (Article III, Sections 1 and 3.)

"And further be it resolved: That the Horace Mann Junior High School Parent - Teacher Association direct the legislative chairman to send letters of protest to the state and national PTA boards of managers at such times in the future when the state and national boards of managers attempt to influence pending legislation by taking a definite stand on specific issues purportedly speaking for the Parent-Teacher Association as a whole without authorization or knowledge of individual PTA members."

This resolution was passed to indicate local support for conformity to changes made in the National PTA by-laws last year at the annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Article III (Basic Policies) Section 1 was amended to read: "The objects of the National Congress shall be promoted thru an educational program directed toward parents, teachers, and the general public; shall be developed thru conferences, committees, and projects; and shall be governed and qualified by the basic policies set forth in this article."

Section 3 was amended to read "The congress, its local units, and its branches shall not — directly or indirectly — participate or intervene (in any way, including the publishing or distributing of statements) in any political campaign on behalf of, or in opposition to, any candidate for public office; or devote more than an insubstantial part of their activities to attempting to influence legislation by propaganda or otherwise."

A similar resolution was approved by the Wasson High School PTA by a 20 to one majority at its regular January meeting.

The Horace Mann PTA also voted its support for changes to be made in the by-laws of the Colorado Congress of Parents and Teachers. These changes would require that the delegates at State PTA Convention vote on the national and state legislation platforms item by item, and also that the voting be done each year instead of every three years.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

FORT MADISON, Ia. (UPI)— The modern fountain pen is celebrating its 50th birthday this year.

It was just a half-century ago that W.A. Sheaffer invented and began commercial production of the first practical lever-fill pen. Prior to 1913, ink was transferred from bottle to barrel via eye dropper or by suction, activiated by an unsightly and unhandy protrusion on the pen.

Economic Jitters Seen In Labor Strike Spasm

By NORMAN WALKER
AP Labor Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The latest spasm of labor strikes, terrible as it has been, is a symptom of something worse—a bad case of real and fancied economic jitters.

The symptoms are devastating enough. The recent 34-day East-Gulf Coast docks strike crippled the nation's foreign commerce and cost an estimated $80 0million in lost business and wages. That is a dollar figure the federal government would be proud to claim as a budget surplus.

Newspaper strikes in New York and Cleveland have cut off whole cities from their daily papers for long periods, damaged community business and posed a question whether some publications can survive.

Big space-missile firms have recently barely escaped shutdowns. Walkout threats lie ahead in a number of key industries. The railroads, for example, face a labor crisis in the next few months and nobody seems to be doing much about it.

Too often strikes are chaotic, wasteful, brutal and inconsiderate of the public interest.

Too often, also, more attention is focused on cures for the strike symptoms than on cures for the basic economic disease that somehow goads labor-management protagonists into trying to kill off each other at the public's expense.

Behind the turbulent labor relations scene, management and labor are in a giant squeeze.

Each is puzzled and piqued because increases in profits and wages don't come so easy any more. The economic pie they cut up isn't growing as much as it once did. Each side is feeling a pinch.

Fierce new sales competition—at home as well as abroad—has made it even more compelling for employers to automate, streamline the production process, and cut costs. Raising prices has become increasingly difficult.

A resulting shortage of jobs in a constantly expanding work force leaves workers grimly intent on hanging on to the ones they have. They worriedly seek higher pay and job safeguards against the future. They sullenly complain about the boss' suddenly taut purse string.

It obviously would be much simpler for an employer to trim obsolete manpower, or "featherbedders," from his payroll if a full employment economy provided jobs elsewhere.

The underlying economic turmoil has created new tensions in labor-management relations. It helps explain why, although the number of strikes hasn't increased significantly, the walkouts that do develop are far more desperate and irreconcilable.

This is not a satisfying explanation for the New York subway rider grumbling over the absence of his favorite daily newspapers.

Nor is it a solace to an old friend of this writer who, returning from a long foreign service duty tour for the government, personally had to lug 26 pieces of luggage off an ocean liner during the recent docks strike.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz has said, "The public reacts more vehemently to a kick in the shins than to an attack of economic arthritis."

Wirtz acknowledged the citizenry is fed up with the shin-kicking it has been getting lately—and is about ready, should another major labor crisis come along, to support compulsory arbitration, or some other tougher method for dealing with big strikes than is presently authorized.

If labor and management fail to make the collective bargaining system work better, Congress may accommodate a protesting public with drastic new shackles on either side or both.

President Kennedy seems disposed to ride out the storm. There was no mention of the labor problem in his messages to the new Congress. Instead, he has posed his tax revision bill as an antidote for over-all economic ills.

George Meany, top man in the labor movement as president of the AFL-CIO, concedes the collisions between labor and management over the new problems they are encountering are not susceptible to setlement by strikes "or by the art of compromise as we have known it in the past."

Solutions must come, Meany says, through "close and wholehearted cooperation by labor, management and government on a scale not previously acceptable to any of them."

Some feel that real labor peace comes to disputants only after they have nearly kayoed each other and won mutual respect. This school points to the sudden end of coal strikes after the industry and union had it out a dozen years ago. It takes note, too, of the promising new year-around consultative labor - management system adopted in the steel industry after the record 116-day 1959 steel strike.

Whether labor laws are revised or not, the government is doing some soul-searching on its own role in the labor relations arena. There doesn't seem to be any disposition to reduce the frequency of disputes intervention that hit a dramatic peak when Arthur J. Goldberg, now a Supreme Court justice, served as Kennedy's labor secretary.

Some second thoughts are being given, however, on how to make federal intervention work better.

Secretary Wirtz—a busy man riding herd on the troubled labor scene in the five months since he succeeded Goldberg—frankly admits the government has been improvising.

Wirtz recently noted wryly there were some 30-odd public participants, from President Kennedy on down, including city mayors and a federal judge, trying at one time or another to settle the recent dock strike.

Hinting that government intervention moves may not always have been wisely carried out, Wirtz says they were undertaken not only because the public demanded something be done but to "prevent collective bargaining from committing suicide."

The White House and Labor Department generally get into the major labor disputes in an extra-legal sort of way. Without specific sanction of law, and merely stating intervention is "in the public interest," the government suddenly will create a special board or send in a special mediator to recommend a labor dispute compromise. The recommendations have no legal force but they usually have, or at least seek to have, the powerful backing of public opinion.

The emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley labor-management law have been invoked only 22 times in the 15 years since the law was enacted.

The Taft-Hartley strike emergency procedure and the companion strike delaying procedures of the Railway Labor Act have been useful as a big stick.

As paralyzing as some recent strikes have been, there are even more ominous clouds gathering on the labor relations horizon. New storms could break out in 1963 in a number of industries, including telephone, rubber and electrical manufacturing. The steel contracts are reopenable on wages, pensions and insurance benefits.

The year 1964, a presidential campaign year, is also potentially chock full of labor strife. Some of the biggest labor-management contracts will fully run out then, including James R. Hoffa's major Teamsters trucking pacts, Walter Reuther's agreements with the top auto firms, and David J. McDonald's contracts with the big steel companies.

U.S. Campaign Promises Not Kept

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. presidents always are free and easy with their promises to balance the government's budget. More often than not in the past 30 years it has been all promise and no performance.

This record of broken promises and unbalanced budgets does not encourage much hope that President Kennedy will be able to make good on his own most recent promise. The occasion was this week's meeting here of the American Bankers Association to commemorate the centenary of the National Bank Act.

Kennedy pleaded for his tax reduction proposal. He said:

"This program will in a short time result in increased revenues —and a substantial portion of that increase will be used each year to reduce the deficit until the budget is once again in balance."

The betting odds must be against Kennedy on that. What he was saying to the banks was that he would repeal Parkinson's Law of Expenditures (PLE). PLE is that government expenditures tend always to rise to match or to exceed government revenues. Politicians have a vested interest in PLE.

This law is firmly established in the structure of the U. S. government. The supremacy of this Parkinson's nonsense over the financial business of the U. S. government suggests another disturbing idea. It is that if every taxpayer were compelled each year to give all of his income to the U. S. Treasury the revenue still would not pay the government's ills.

This could be done and should be done right now. The voters should demand that the politicians lower the majestic standard of living to which the U. S. government has become accustomed.

The U. S. taxpayer is a patient animal. He's not very bright, perhaps, because he seems not to understand what Parkinson's Law on Expenditures is doing to him. If the taxpayers understood that law, they would repeal it. They also would repeal a lot of politicians in the process. That might be the best part.

Consider how Parkinson's Law operates. Thirty years ago, fiscal year 1933, Treasury revenue was $1.9 billion. Government spent $4.5 billion that year for a deficit of $2.6 billion.

By fiscal 1950 the take was $36.4 billion, spending $39.5 and the deficit $3.1 billion. Fiscal 1962 revenue was more than $81 billion but spending hit close to $88 billion.

Kennedy budgeted for $85.5 billion revenue in the current, 1963, fiscal year and $86.9 billion in fiscal '64, about $173 billion for two years. He will spend about $193 billion for a two-year deficit of $20 billion.

The taxpayers put up with Parkinson's Law because they have been bamboozled by the politicians. The politicians tell them that government spending is free, like free lunch.

U.S., Soviet Pilots 'Waved Greetings'

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—A West Virginia newspaperman aboard USS Forrestal when it was overflown by Russian reconnaissance planes said here American aircraft flew close enough to the Soviet planes to see a pilot waving greetings.

Louis A. Plank, general manager of the News Publishing Co., Wheeling, W. Va., was among a group of editors on a Mediterranean cruise on the carrier to watch naval exercises.

Plank estimated the Soviet planes were flying about 1,200 feet above the Forrestal. He said the pilot of one U.S. plane told him he flew so close that he could see the Soviet pilot waving a white handkerchief at him.

The American planes were sent up by the Forrestal to keep the Soviet planes under surveillance.

State Senate to Consider Capital Gains Tax Bill

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—The Colorado Senate will consider Monday a bill to revise the state's law on taxing capital gains.

The measure, if finally adopted, could result in upsetting Gov. John A. Love's plan for another $8 million cut in income tax on personal earnings during 1963.

A fiscal note attached to the bill by the State Budget Office estimates it would reduce state revenues by between $300,000 and $500,000 annually.

If the governor holds to his often-reiterated position that the total tax cut on 1963 earnings should remain at $8 million and the money from the capital gains change has to be deducted, it would mean that taxes on other tyypes of income could not be pared by the full 15 per cent allowed on 1962 earnings.

Revision of the capital gains provision in the tax law is one of the items the governor has indicated he would prefer to have considered a year from now in a full scale reworking of taxes.

In essence, the capital gains provision reduces in half the tax on profits from property held for a specified length of time.

The present state law requires it to be held for 30 months. The proposed bill would cut the time to 6 months. This would restore a provision which was in Colorado law until the 1959 tax increase program. The federal law also allows capital gains to apply after 6 months.

It applies to all taxpayers, but those in higher income brackets make the most use of the provision because their dealings are larger and more frequent in such things as property and securities.

The bill was reported favorably Thursday by the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Harry Locke, R-Hartsel. The action came with little discussion.

So far no bill to cut the income tax on 1963 earnings has been sidered by the legislature. The bill making the 15 per cent cut on 1962 earnings passed last January.

The Senate Finance Committee also ordered printed a medical care for the aged bill by Sens. James Donnelly, D-Trinidad, and Floyd Oliver, D-Greeley. Committee members said it is the bill favored by the medical association to implement the federal Kerr-Mills law.

Pikes Peak Church Council Revitalized

Two more churches have become members of the Pikes Peak Council during the past two months. The First Church of the Brethren, with the Reverend Samuel J. McCaman, pastor was approved at the Annual Meeting in January for membership.

At the February meeting, approval of membership was voted to the Monument Community Presbyterian Church. The Reverends, J. Randall Brown, and Joseph W. Carroll are Co - Chairmen of the Membership Committee.

"A Long Range Planning Committee" was appointed following the November 1962 meeting, and the resignation of Mr. I. Herschel Wahrer, former executive secretary. A special group of church leaders has been appointed and called "Constitutional Revision Committee, following the Feb. 21, 1963 meeting. Some recommended changes toward a commission plan similar to the Wichita Council of Churches will be considered. Mr. Russell Jolly, executive director of the Council of Churches in Wichita, Kansas was guest speaker before the Executive Committee of the Council on Feb. 4.

The Finance Committee which is headed by Mr. Raymond J. Overcash, and Mr. Ted A. Brown as co-chairman has been charged with exploring further sources of income so that a part time executive secretary may be secured at an early date. The Reverend Ward B. Hurlburt is heading the committee on personel. The program is to be further expanded, then and will seek to meet the needs of this community.

The Council is now composed of 40 member churches and 8 organizations. The Military Installations Chaplains are also a part of the council, with a representative Chaplain from The United States Air Force Academy, Ft. Carson, Ent Air Force Base, and ARADCOM.

Attendance at the board meetings is growing in interest and a record attendance is being registered at the recent monthly meetings. The pastor and repersentative laymen of member churches constitute members on the executive committee and are welcomed in attendance at every monthly meeting.

Dr. Carroll B. Malone is serving his second year as the president of the Pikes Peak Council. The Office is located second floor, of the Y. W. C. A. building, and is open each morning from 10:00 to 12 noon, Monday thru Fridays. Mrs. Van Cleve H. Burnett is in charge of the office.

David Crabtree Named to Attend Academy Meet

David Crabtree of Colorado Springs, a junior at Western State College, Gunnison, Colo., has been designated by President Harlan Bryant and the Social Studies Division as one of two students to attend the fifth annual Air Force Academy Assembly April 3-6.

The topic of this year's assembly will be, "The Secretary of State." The conference will be co-sponsored by The American Assembly of Columbia University. Outstanding student delegates from 70 colleges and universities will attend the meeting.

Crabtree is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Crabtree, 1224 Aspen Ave. He is a graduate of the Harrison High School.

Kurdish Leader Insists on New Autonomy

By ALEX EFTY

NORADIN, Northern Iraq (AP) —Mullah Mustafa Barzani, leader of the Kurdish revolt in northern Iraq, says he will order his warriors back into battle against the new Iraqi regime unless the tribesmen receive self rule quickly.

Speaking in Russian, the chief said in an interview at his headquarters in the mountains of Northern Iraq that the overthrow of Premier Abdul Karim Kassem Feb. 8 was the direct result of the 18-month Kurdish war against the Baghdad regime.

"A similar, if not worse, fate will begall anyone who opposes the establishment of an autonomous Kurdish regime," said the Mosow-educated leader.

Barzani, 60, said he ordered a cease-fire when Kassem was overthrown and killed, in order to give the new Baghdad government a chance to declare its intentions on the Kurdish issue.

"I gave them 10 days. Those days are over. I am not prepared to wait indefinitely," said Barzani, fondling a long Kurdish dagger.

Barzani expressed impatience over the delay in getting word from his special emissary, Jelal Talibani, who went to Baghdad last week to negotiate with leaders of the new government.

(Talibani said in Baghdad Thursday that he was hopeful that an agreement with the new government will be reached "within this week.")

This correspondent and AP photographer James Pringle journeyed for six days to reach Barzani's headquarters and return.

We traveled by auto, by tractor, and finally on horseback.

Except for the main towns and half dozen beleaguered Iraqi army garrisons, all the highlands north of a line from Kirkuk to Suleimaniya appear to be firmly in Kurdish hands.

Finder Gets Back Mink Stole From Cops

BYERS, Kan. (AP) — Janice Hatzenbuehler got a trip to New York City — and a mink stole.

While on a visit to the big town with her senior class she saw a woman drop a mink stole on the street. Janice was unable to catch her so she turned the mink over to the police. They told the young student if it went unclaimed it would belong to her and they would send it. They did.

U.S. Campaign Promises Not Kept

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. presidents always are free and easy with their promises to balance the government's budget. More often than not in the past 30 years it has been all promise and no performance.

This record of broken promises and unbalanced budgets does not encourage much hope that President Kennedy will be able to make good on his own most recent promise. The occasion was this week's meeting here of the American Bankers Association to commemorate the centenary of the National Bank Act.

Kennedy pleaded for his tax reduction proposal. He said:

"This program will in a short time result in increased revenues —and a substantial portion of that increase will be used each year to reduce the deficit until the budget is once again in balance."

The betting odds must be against Kennedy on that. What he was saying to the banks was that he would repeal Parkinson's Law of Expenditures (PLE). PLE is that government expenditures tend always to rise to match or to exceed government revenues. Politicians have a vested interest in PLE.

This law is firmly established in the structure of the U. S. government. The supremacy of this Parkinson's nonsense over the financial business of the U. S. government suggests another disturbing idea. It is that if every taxpayer were compelled each year to give all of his income to the U. S. Treasury the revenue still would not pay the government's bills.

This could be done and should be done right now. The voters should demand that the politicians lower the majestic standard of living to which the U. S. government has become accustomed.

The U. S. taxpayer is a patient animal. He's not very bright, perhaps, because he seems not to understand what Parkinson's Law on Expenditures is doing to him. If the taxpayers understood that law, they would repeal it. They also would repeal a lot of politicians in the process. That might be the best part.

Consider how Parkinson's Law operates. Thirty years ago, fiscal year 1933, Treasury revenue was $1.9 billion. Government spent $4.5 billion that year for a deficit of $2.6 billion.

By fiscal 1950 the take was $36.4 billion, spending $39.5 and the deficit $3.1 billion. Fiscal 1962 revenue was more than $81 billion but spending hit close to $88 billion.

Kennedy budgeted for $85.5 billion revenue in the current, 1963, fiscal year and $86.9 billion in fiscal '64, about $173 billion for two years. He will spend about $193 billion for a two-year deficit of $20 billion.

The taxpayers put up with Parkinson's Law because they have been bamboozled by the politicians. The politicians tell them that government spending is free, like free lunch.

U.S., Soviet Pilots 'Waved Greetings'

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—A West Virginia newspaperman aboard USS Forrestal when it was overflown by Russian reconnaissance the USS Forrestal when it was overflown by Russian reconnaissance planes said here American aircraft flew close enough to the Soviet planes to see a pilot waving greetings.

Louis A. Plank, general manager of the News Publishing Co., Wheeling, W. Va., was among a group of editors on a Mediterranean cruise on the carrier to watch naval exercises.

Plank estimated the Soviet planes were flying about 1,200 feet above the Forrestal. He said the pilot of one U.S. plane told him he flew so close that he could see the Soviet pilot waving a white handkerchief at him.

The American planes were sent up by the Forrestal to keep the Soviet planes under surveillance.

State Senate to Consider Capital Gains Tax Bill

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—The Colorado Senate will consider Monday a bill to revise the state's law on taxing capital gains.

The measure, if finally adopted, could result in upsetting Gov. John A. Love's plan for another $8 million cut in income tax on personal earnings during 1963.

A fiscal note attached to the bill by the State Budget Office estimates it would reduce state revenues by between $300,000 and $500,000 annually.

If the governor holds to his often-reiterated position that the total tax cut on 1963 earnings should remain at $8 million and the money from the capital gains change has to be deducted, it would mean that taxes on other tyypes of income could not be pared by the full 15 per cent allowed on 1962 earnings.

Revision of the capital gains provision in the tax law is one of the items the governor has indicated he would prefer to have considered a year from now in a full scale reworking of taxes.

In essence, the capital gains provision reduces in half the tax on profits from property held for a specified length of time.

The present state law requires it to be held for 50 months. The proposed bill would cut the time to 6 months. This would restore a provision which was in Colorado law until the 1959 tax increase program. The federal law also allows capital gains to apply after 6 months.

It applies to all taxpayers, but those in higher income brackets make the most use of the provision because their dealings are larger and more frequent in such things as property and securities.

The bill was reported favorably Thursday by the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Harry Locke, R-Hartsel. The action came with little discussion.

So far no bill to cut the income tax on 1963 earnings has been sidered by the legislature. The bill making the 15 per cent cut on 1962 earnings passed last January.

The Senate Finance Committee also ordered printed a medical care for the aged bill by Sens. James Donnelly, D-Trinidad, and Floyd Oliver, D-Greeley. Committee members said it is the bill favored by the medical association to implement the federal Kerr-Mills law.

Kurdish Leader Insists on New Autonomy

By ALEX EFTY

NORADIN, Northern Iraq (AP) —Mullah Mustafa Barzani, leader of the Kurdish revolt in northern Iraq, says he will order his warriors back into battle against the new Iraqi regime unless the tribesmen receive self rule quickly.

Speaking in Russian, the chief said in an interview at his headquarters in the mountains of Northern Iraq that the overthrow of Premier Abdul Karim Kassem Feb. 8 was the direct result of the 18-month Kurdish war against the Baghdad regime.

"A similar, if not worse, fate will begall anyone who opposes the establishment of an autonomous Kurdish regime," said the Mosow-educated leader.

Barzani, 60, said he ordered a cease-fire when Kassem was overthrown and killed, in order to give the new Baghdad government a chance to declare its intentions on the Kurdish issue.

"I gave them 10 days. Those days are over. I am not prepared to wait indefinitely," said Barzani, fondling a long Kurdish dagger.

Barzani expressed impatience over the delay in getting word from his special emissary, Jelal Talibani, who went to Baghdad last week to negotiate with leaders of the new government.

(Talibani said in Baghdad Thursday that he was hopeful that an agreement with the new government will be reached "within this week.")

This correspondent and AP photographer James Pringle journeyed for six days to reach Barzani's headquarters and return.

We traveled by auto, by tractor, and finally on horseback.

Except for the main towns and half dozen beleaguered Iraqi army garrisons, all the highlands north of a line from Kirkuk to Suleimanyia appear to be firmly in Kurdish hands.

Finder Gets Back Mink Stole From Cops

While on a visit to the big town with her senior class she saw a woman drop a mink stole on the street. Janice was unable to catch her so she turned the mink over to the police. They told the young student if it went unclaimed it would belong to her and they would send it. They did.

Marathon Oil Expands Denver Research Center

LITTLETON — The Denver Research Center of Marathon Oil Co. is expanding its facilities here by 5,000 square feet, increasing the size of its plant to 100,000 square feet.

The research organization is engaged in petroleum exploration, production and refining, but entrance into petrochemical research work necessitated the expansion.

The division employs 180, of whom 136 hold technical jobs. The expansion is expected to add 25 employes, with an estimated increase of total employment to 235 within a year.

Marathon Oil Company's home office is in Findlay, Ohio.

Pikes Peak Church Council Revitalized

Two more churches have become members of the Pikes Peak Council during the past two months. The First Church of the Brethren, with the Reverend Samuel J. McCaman, pastor was approved at the Annual Meeting in January for membership.

At the February meeting, approval of membership was voted to the Monument Community Presbyterian Church. The Reverends, J. Randall Brown, and Joseph W. Carroll are Co - Chairmen of the Membership Committee.

"A Long Range Planning Committee" was appointed following the November 1962 meeting, and the resignation of Mr. I. Herschel Wahrer, former executive secretary. A special group of church leaders has been appointed and called "Constitutional Revision Committee, following the Feb. 21, 1963 meeting. Some recommended changes toward a commission plan similar to the Wichita Council of Churches will be considered. Mr. Russell Jolly, executive director of the Council of Churches in Wichita, Kansas was guest speaker before the Executive Committee of the Council on Feb. 4.

The Finance Committee which is headed by Mr. Raymond J. Overcash, and Mr. Ted A. Brown as co-chairman has been charged with exploring further sources of income so that a part time executive secretary may be secured at an early date. The Reverend Ward B. Hurlburt is heading the committee on personel. The program is to be further expanded, then and will seek to meet the needs of this community.

The Council is now composed of 40 member churches and 8 organizations. The Military Installations Chaplains are also a part of the council, with a representative Chaplain from The United States Air Force Academy, Ft. Carson, Ent Air Force Base, and ARADCOM.

Attendance at the board meetings is growing in interest and a record attendance is being registered at the recent monthly meetings. The pastor and repersentative laymen of member churches constitute members on the executive committee and are welcomed in attendance at every monthly meeting.

Dr. Carroll B. Malone is serving his second year as the president of the Pikes Peak Council. The Office is located second floor, of the Y. W. C. A. building, and is open each morning from 10:00 to 12 noon, Monday thru Fridays. Mrs. Van Cleve H. Burnett is in charge of the office.

David Crabtree Named to Attend Academy Meet

David Crabtree of Colorado Springs, a junior at Western State College, Gunnison, Colo., has been designated by President Harlan Bryant and the Social Studies Division as one of two students to attend the fifth annual Air Force Academy Assembly April 3-6.

The topic of this year's assembly will be, "The Secretary of State." The conference will be co-sponsored by The American Assembly of Columbia University. Outstanding student delegates from 70 colleges and universities will attend the meeting.

Crabtree is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Crabtree, 1224 Aspen Ave. He is a graduate of the Harrison High School.

Flights Across Cuba Continue, Report Claims

U.S. reconnaissance flights were continuing.

Goldwater, a member of the Sentate Armed Services Committee, said the "electronic ear" planes are equipped with sensitive devices able to register details of what is going on in Cuba down to the point of detecting a generator in operation.

These planes, operated by both the Navy and Air Force, are flown at moderately high altitudes over international waters and do not pass over Cuba itself.

They are relatively more vulnerable than the low-flying craft to the antiaircraft missiles the Russians have installed in Cuba, one of which first missed but then reversed its course to home in and destroy a U2 during the October crisis.

The low-flying sorties are made at an altitude at which radar is not effective, and are gone almost as soon as they are seen. American military leaders think the Russians are unable to cope with such flights.

In the Feb. 6 report to the nation on Cuba, McNamara said high-altitude surveillance of Cuba was continuing and that low-level reconnaissance aircraft were "kept on a 24-hour alert basis for use whenever required."

The effectiveness of U.S. surveillance in Cuba has been a subject of debate in Congress, with some of the administration's critics contending that this country should have learned earlier than it did last year about the installation of offensive missiles in Cuba.

Congress' attention has been focused on another Cuban problem with the report of Central Intelligence Agency Director John A. McCone that from 1,000 to 1,500 Latin Americans went to Cuba last year for sabotage and guerrilla training and that more have gone this year.

The report was given to a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee Feb. 19 and a censored transcript was issued Friday.

McCone did not specify who was doing the training. But Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he was "surprised that there are not more students being trained for sabotage and subversion by the Soviet in Cuba."

Friday night the Navy said one of its destroyers inspecting a Cuban coastal freighter off Guantanamo tangled an anchor in the freighter's shroud—a guywire bracing a mast.

Earlier Cuba had charged that the destroyer, the Harold J. Ellison, took photographs for 45 minutes and then deliberately rammed the 75-foot Joven Amalia, which Cuba said was carrying food from Santiago, Chile, to Baracoa on the Cuban coast.

but the dictatorship of the bourgeoisie or the dictatorship of the proletariat," Saturday broadcast said. "Dreams of some thing way are reactionary petty-bourgeois lamentations.

"The state apparatus of bourgeois dictatorship has to be smashed and a state apparatus of proletarian dictatorship established."

Taken out of the usual Communist terminology, this amounted to a call to violent revolution to establish Communist societies.

The broadcast quoted Togliatti to the effect that socialism could be established in Italy within the framework of the Italian constitution. "Only scoundrels or simpletons can think that the proletariat must win the majority in elections carried out under the yoke of the bourgeoisie," it said.

"This is the height of folly or hypocrisy.

Although Peking mentioned Togliatti, there was no doubt the attack was aimed primarily at Khrushchev. The Chinese have used this indirect method or criticizing Khrushchev repeatedly in the past and only rarely have mentioned the Soviet leader by name.

Togliatti has espoused Khrushchev's "peaceful co - existence" policies and sharply criticized Communist China. Peking in turn has accused the Soviet bloc of going soft in support of "wars of national liberation" or wars against "imperialism."

PLANE VIOLATION

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China charged that a U. S. military plane violated its airspace over the Paracel Islands in the South China Sea Friday, according to a Radio Peking broadcast heard here.

Wagner Claims Some Progress In Strike Talks

one of the key issues in the dispute.

"The automation issue was not resolved, but some progress was made," Powers said.

Wagner, arriving at the hotel, said, "Everyone agreed yesterday that we had a harmonious session, but I don't want to raise any false hopes until a settlement is actually in sight."

The Publishers Association was representing eight newspapers, following the decision of the New York Post on Thursday to withdraw from the association and resume publication Monday.

The Post declined comment on an announcement by Macy's department store that it would not advertise in the Post while the other newspapers were closed.

The Post was one of five nonstruck newspapers that suspended operations voluntarily in a one struck, all struck policy when the printers walked out of the Times, News, Journal-American and World-Telegram & Sun on Dec. 8.

The others that suspended voluntarily were the Herald Tribune, Mirror, Long Island Star-Journal and Long Island Press, with the exception that the Press continued to distribute editions outside the city.

The printers sought a wage increase of $18 a week over two years, a work week reduction from 36¼ to 35 hours, and other benefits. The publishers offered a $10-a-week package over two years. The printers have been averaging $145 a week.

Women's League Chief Blasts Back at Mayor

but against it as an initiated ordinance."

Mrs. Huffman said the League of Women Voters believes that the 1,800 residents who signed a petition to get the Code of Ethics question on the ballot represent widespread community sentiment.

"The question I would like to ask Mayor Henderson," said Mrs. Huffman, "is how does he propose to get a Code of Ethics when the city council has voted down a code three times in the last 18 months?"

She said that the League of Women Voters supported the bond for the police building, sponsored an amendment to the City Charter in 1961 and opposed the garbage ordinance.

The League president added, "The mayor says the garbage ordinance which was passed in 1952 was poor legislation. May I remind him and the voters that the city council could have put the repeal of this ordinance on the ballot in the 1953 election and every city election there after?

"The Code of Ethics was proposed after much study and research. Every provision in the proposed ordinance was included in the one recommended to the city council by the committee which Mayor Henderson chaired."

Mrs. Huffman concluded the League's retort to Henderson's stand by saying, "if this ordinance is adopted, it cannot be changed for two years. But, is this too long to try an ordinance opposed by the city council?"

Egypt Bombers Said Striking Saudi Arabia

penetrations made into Saudi Arabia since Egyptian armed forces moved to the Yemen late last year to support the new revolutionary regime.

Both Kahmis Mishayt and Jizan are about 50 miles inside Saudi Arabia.

The Saudi air force has been using both as staging depots for the delivery of supplies to the royalist supporters of the deposed Imam fighting inside Yemen.

Some Saudi combat troops also are located near Jizan.

The extent of casualties resulting from the raids could not be immediately learned, nor could it be determined if Saudi combat forces came under attack.

Population of Aliens Declines in Colorado

John T. Clingan, Immigration Service officer, said today there are 21,090 registered aliens in the state, of whom 2,358 are visitors or students from abroad. A year ago 21,686 aliens were registered in the state.

WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Light and widely scattered precipitation is expected Sunday across the nation. Bill for Land Claims Vetoed By Gov. Love

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Legislature received its second rejected bill from Gov. John Love Friday. The governor vetoed a bill relating to claims to land "under color of title."

In his second veto message of the session, Love told members of the House of Representatives:

"This bill was vetoed because according to the opinions of Colorado Bar Association title experts, it is not necessary to correct any possible defects in the law or to protect property rights." Love also said the bill, sponsored by Rep. Frank Evans, D-Pueblo, might violate certain rights of way for roads, ditches and utilities.

A bill to increase the size of the Colorado Welfare Board was introduced in the House by Rep. Oakley Wade, R-Las Animas, Friday. Wade said his proposed two-man increase on the present 7-man board would hopefully "result in more cooperation (from the board) with the governor's office and the Legislature in working out the problems of medicare."

Another bill introduced in the House would raise the tax bill of motor vehicle owners $6 to $7 million a year. It was sponsored by Rep. Joe Schieffelin, R-Golden.

pended low-level reconnaissance flights over Cuba. He told an interviewer surveillance is now being conducted with special electronic ear planes to listen in from outside Cuban territory.

A U. S. government source called the report an error. The source said low-altitude flights are continuing as needed and high-level U2 flights also are being made.

The effectiveness of U. S. surveillance has been the subject of debate in Congress. Some of the administration's critics contend Washington should have learned about the installation of Soviet offensive weapons in Cuba earlier than it did.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., in another Washington interview, reiterated a Republican charge that U. S. intelligence knew as early as mid-September that the Soviets were setting up missiles in Cuba but that the administration did nothing about it until after Oct. 14.

Ford demanded that administration leaders' secret reports to Congress be made public.

President Kennedy has said that while the United States had reports of such a buildup in September and early October it lacked confirmation until it received pictures made on aerial reconnaissance Oct. 14.

In other Cuban developments:

The Cuban government claimed the capture of an alleged U. S. Central Intelligence Agency agent identified in press accounts as Manuel del Valle Caral. He was said to have been nabbed Thursday seconds before he tried to enter an unnamed embassy with incriminating documents.

The government also reported the extermination of a band of insurgents in Las Villas Province, some 280 miles southeast of Havana. The announcement said government troops wiped out the band of Tomas San Gil "which for some time had carried out mischief and vandalism in that region, cowardly assassinating defenseless workers and peasants."

speaker for the dedication, said that Saturday "marked the realization of a dream of many years."

He recapped the history of the new building pointing out that a little less than two years ago the city acquired the property for the facility from the Jackson family and again expressed the appreciation of the city to the family for its cooperation.

Mayor Henderson lauded the building and its facilities and commented on the new Civil Defense Emergency Center located in the basement of the building.

"Within the basement will be found one of the finest facilities for civil defense or emergency operations within the United States," the Mayor said. "We trust that we shall never have to use it for that purpose. However it does today possess operational capabilities in event of emergency."

In commenting on the center, the Mayor acknowledged the fine cooperation city officials received from the county commissioners and called on Smith and McBurney. Both men expressed their gratification for the facility and promised their continuing support in Civil Defense.

Mayor Henderson was high in his praise of former Police Chief Bruce who died recently.

"It is fitting that this building be dedicated to a man who served as a member of this police force for more than 40 years," he said. "He dreamed for many years of that day when his police force would have a first class facility from and which to work."

"It is regretable," Mayor Henderson continued, "that he is not with us today. He was a man whose ability received not only nationwide but worldwide recognition."

The Mayor pointed out that in 1955, former Chief Bruce was sent by the U.S. government to West Germany to assist in the reorganization of the police departments there and that in 1955, he was elected as president of the international police chiefs association.

He closed by reading the inscription on the plaque which is located in the lobby of the $625,000 structure.

"In behalf of the City of Colorado Springs and in respectful appreciation, this building is dedicated to the memory of our former and esteemed police chief Irvin B. (Dad) Bruce.' "

Family Groceries Stolen From Car in Security

Nothing is sacred to the car prowler!

One of them spotted a large sack in an unlocked car parked in front of a church in Security Friday.

Later, Charles Leger of Skyline Trailer Court, who had been attending church services, reported to the sheriff's office the theft of a sack containing the family groceries from his car.

breakthrough" in antisubmarine technology, Galantin said.

The most promising method still is sonar—a device that works on the principle of detection by sound, he said.

Sonar will become more efficient, Galantin forecast, as oceanographic research yields more knowledge about the world below the sea's surface and as scientists learn how to filter out spurious sound.

The Polaris submarine is counted on, along with the Air Force's Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile, to give the United States an invulnerable and devastating atomic striking power in the years ahead.

So far, 10 Polaris submarines have been placed in commission. This number will grow to 18 by the end of the year.

Disparity Reported In Rates of Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The death rate from cancer among men rose sharply during the last decade but dropped in women, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reports.

The firm said Friday its statisticians found the difference between male and female cancer death rates has been "widening steadily."

In 1950-51 the mortality rate among white males was about 20 per cent higher than among white females, but the disparity had increased to 50 per cent by 1960-61, the statisticians said.

Metropolitan said that among its stockholders, who include many urban wage earners and their families, the age-adjusted cancer death rate of white females one to 74 years old fell from 78.5 per 100,000 in 1950-51 to 68.4 in 1960-61. This represents a decrease of 13 per cent.

Statistics showed that the reduction among non-white females dropped 4 per cent, from 89.6 to 85.6 per 100,000.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

As the last remains of a heavy snowstorm died out in New England, a developing low pressure area in the far southwest threatened inclement weather in that area.

Strong gusty surface winds of 30 to 40 miles per hour with some gusts of 50 picked up dust and sand in the desert regions of southern California and Arizona as scattered snows topped higher mountains in Nevada and Utah.

Elsewhere, a few showers along coastal Oregon turned to snow showers inland to southern Idaho and the northern Rockies.

Further east, occasional patches of light rain or snow fell in the northern portions of the midwest and also in New England.

Light rain or scattered light showers thru central Florida completed the sparce precipitation pattern over the nation during early Saturday evening hours with dry weather present over the remaining areas.

Springs-like temperatures again visited the southern sections of the country Saturday with readings in the 60s and 70s common. A few 80s were noted in the desert southwest, southern Texas and southern Florida. Miami, Fla. recorded 86 and Yuma, Ariz. 87.

To the north, the 40s and 50s prevailed over midsections and below freezing temperatures were limited to a small area from the upper Great Lakes into the northeast.

Soldier Injured When Car Roars Out of Control

A Ft. Carson man was injured and damages totalling $1,700 resulted early Saturday morning when a car went out of control, skidded 468 feet, hit five objects, and came to a stop in the yard of a home at 529 E. Las Vegas Street.

The state patrol identified the driver of the car as Richard A. Flook, 23, of Ft. Carson. He was taken to St. Francis Hospital, by E & E Ambulance, suffering from a fractured arm and injuries to the head and chest.

According to the state patrol report, Flook was thrown out of the car after it side - swipped to utility poles and a guard - post. The car then travelled an additional 114 feet, smashing thru a fence, and striking trees in the yard of a home owned by J. A. Ferris.

The Flook car, a 1960 model, was declared a total loss. Damages to the Ferris property was estimated at $300, and to the utility poles and post at $200.

Drivers Escape Injury Saturday In Accident

Drivers of two cars escaped injury Saturday morning when their vehicles collided on Highway 115, three miles south of Colorado Springs.

Deputy Sheriff Gordon W. Baumgardner said the accident occurred when a passenger car, driven by Eric J. Bransby, 45, of Lytle Star Rt., attempted to pass a northbound truck driven by Leonard R. Conda, 54, of Boulder.

In making the pass, the car swung wide to the left, touched loose shoulder road gravel and slipped into the path of the truck. The car, according to the report, was knocked some 43 feet down the road from its point of impact with the truck.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $600, and to the car at $800.

this money to keep the Democratic party moving ahead. The Republicans won the election last year because they had the money to spend."

He also called on members to keep up a continual campaign to bring new members into the organization here and told those present the county Democratic party would work to amend the reapportionment bill.

Gallagher told party members that Republicans virtually ignored the reapportionment plan as presented by the Democratic party here. He said the house approved the Republican plan without questioning its legality.

He said, however, that the state senate questioned the plan and revised it to meet the requirements of the law.

Even so, Gallagher said, the re apportionment appeared unfair.

He pointed to the fact that one of the newly created districts takes in more territory than any of the other districts in the county and challenged it despite the fact that the plan increases the district from three representitives elected at large to five elected from designated areas.

"We will investigate this plan and if we find there is something wrong — something not in keeping with the requirements of the law, we will fight it," Gallagher said.

He said that third party elements in the state are already planning to file protests to the reapportionment as set down by the legislature.

Gallagher told delegates he felt the action was not carried out in El Paso County according to population requirements as set down by the law.

He pointed out that it is often too difficult to determine the exact population of an area simply because it changes so often, especially in the area of registered and eligible voters.

The Central Intelligence Agency, he said, was not to blame for the invasion's failure but "unfortunately, has been forced to accept the scapegoat role in silence."

Persons said he and the other 17 airmen, all married with families and better than average jobs, were told "that we were being hired to replace foreign national aircrews for vitally important air missions."

Suicide With Knife, Shotgun And Pistol Fails

A 38-year-old man, on leave from a veteran's hospital at Fort Lyons, attempted suicide first with a knife, then with a revolver and a shotgun Saturday at his home at 10 N. 18th St.

Police officer H. A. Grondahl reported that all three attempts failed, without harm to Charlie M. Mann, tho the blast from his 16 gauge shotgun, tore a hole in a bedroom ceiling.

Grondahl said he was called to the Mann home by Mrs. Mann at about 11:25 a.m. Saturday. The officer said that the woman stated that her husband had been drinking heavily for two days and had twice, prior to the shotgun attempt, threatened to kill himself. Her brother-in-law, the woman said, averted the first two suicide attempts by removing the knife and revolver from the Mann home.

Mann, who has been undergoing veteran's care for a mental disorder, was taken by the police officer to the John Brady Hospital Hospital.

Punishment of Vandals Set By State Law

DENVER (AP) — Vandalism in Colorado can be punished by a one- to 10-year penitentiary term under a new law in Colorado.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Bill Gossard, R-Craig, was signed by Gov. John Love Friday. The House of Representatives first adopted the measure, then the Senate concurred several days ago.

It is aimed at wanton attacks on churches, schools and public property, but applies to any kind of malicious destruction.

The prison term can be meted out only if the wanton destruction of property exceeds $500. For vandalism of lesser damage fines and jail sentences are possible.

The bill was one of 14 which Love announced he had signed. He vetoed one measure, a bill entitled "Concerning Claims to Land Under Color or Title," by Rep. Frank Evans, D-Pueblo. The governor said he was advised by title experts of the Colorado Bar Association that the bill might endanger some rights of way for roads, ditches and utilities.

The actions brought Love's total signatures for the year to 54. He has vetoed two bills.

Most of the other bills which the governor signed Friday repeal "dead-letter" laws which have had no practical effect for years. The measures signed were House Bills 59, 86, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 110 and 111.

Giant Telescope May Tell Life Secrets of Mars

it was launched Friday afternoon. The balloon, soaring 80,000 feet, was controlled by signals from a small aircraft. The astronomers focused the telescope from the ground.

Schwartzschild said a tape recording of the sky scanning voyage would be flown to Palestine for minute study.

The flight took the $2.5-million telescope above 98 per cent of the earth's air and water blanket. Scientists hope to get clues as to the amount of water vapor, carbon dioxide and other gases in the Martian atmosphere.

The six-ton rig consisted of a launch balloon, 75 feet in diameter, above the main balloon, which inflated to 250 in diameter. Below the main balloon was slung a gondola containing the telescope and instruments.

Officials plan a news conference either Sunday or Monday at the National Scientific Balloon Flight Station at Palestine to release information obtained in the flight of about 600 miles over Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

New Mexico Kills Right to Work Plan

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI)— A proposed constitutional amendment to let the public decide on the so-called "right-to-work" issue was killed by the New Mexico House of Representatives Friday after approval by the State Senate.

House members voted 31-26 not even to refer the Senate measure to committee. The Senate passed a resolution calling for the amendment to be put on the next general election ballot.

Earlier this week, the House voted down its own version of the proposal, 35-28. A motion to reconsider the vote failed, thus killing the House resolution.

Red China Charges New Steps by India

The Chinese Defense Ministry made the charge in a statement in which it said its own troops had completed their planned withdrawal and are now "far behind the positions of Sept. 8, 1962" from which they launched their big fall offensive.

A broadcast quoted ministry spokesmen as saying Indian troops with the aid of Western powers are "waiting for an opportunity to renew their invasion of China."

Flights Across Cuba Continue, Report Claims

U.S. reconnaissance flights were continuing.

Goldwater, a member of the Sentate Armed Services Committee, said the "electronic ear" planes are equipped with sensitive devices able to register details of what is going on in Cuba down to the point of detecting a generator in operation.

These planes, operated by both the Navy and Air Force, are flown at moderately high altitudes over international waters and do not pass over Cuba itself.

They are relatively more vulnerable than the low-flying craft to the antiaircraft missiles the Russians have installed in Cuba, one of which first missed but then reversed its course to home in and destroy a U2 during the October crisis.

The low-flying sorties are made at an altitude at which radar is not effective, and are gone almost as soon as they are seen. American military leaders think the Russians are unable to cope with such flights.

In the Feb. 6 report to the nation on Cuba, McNamara said high-altitude surveillance of Cuba was continuing and that low-level reconnaissance aircraft were "kept on a 24-hour alert basis for use whenever required."

The effectiveness of U.S. surveillance in Cuba has been a subject of debate in Congress, with some of the administration's critics contending that this country should have learned earlier than it did last year about the installation of offensive missiles in Cuba.

Congress' attention has been focused on another Cuban problem with the report of Central Intelligence Agency Director John A. McCone that from 1,000 to 1,500 Latin Americans went to Cuba last year for sabotage and guerrilla training and that more have gone this year.

The report was given to a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee Feb. 19 and a censored transcript was issued Friday.

McCone did not specify who was doing the training. But Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he was "surprised that there are not more students being trained for sabotage and subversion by the Soviet in Cuba."

Friday night the Navy said one of its destroyers inspecting a Cuban coastal freighter off Guantanamo tangled an anchor in the freighter's shroud—a guywire bracing a mast.

Earlier Cuba had charged that the destroyer, the Harold J. Ellison, took photographs for 45 minutes and then deliberately rammed the 75-foot Joven Amalia, which Cuba said was carrying food from Santiago, Chile, to Baracoa on the Cuban coast.

but the dictatorship of the bourgeoisie or the dictatorship of the proletariat," Saturday broadcast said. "Dreams of some thing way are reactionary petty-bourgeois lamentations.

"The state apparatus of bourgeois dictatorship has to be smashed and a state apparatus of proletarian dictatorship established."

Taken out of the usual Communist terminology, this amounted to a call to violent revolution to establish Communist societies.

The broadcast quoted Togliatti to the effect that socialism could be established in Italy within the framework of the Italian constitution. "Only scoundrels or simpletons can think that the proletariat must win the majority in elections carried out under the yoke of the bourgeoisie," it said.

"This is the height of folly or hypocrisy.

Although Peking mentioned Togliatti, there was no doubt the attack was aimed primarily at Khrushchev. The Chinese have used this indirect method or criticizing Khrushchev repeatedly in the past and only rarely have mentioned the Soviet leader by name.

Togliatti has espoused Khrushchev's "peaceful co - existence" policies and sharply criticized Communist China. Peking in turn has accused the Soviet bloc of going soft in support of "wars of national liberation" or wars against "imperialism."

The Publishers Association was representing eight newspapers, following the decision of the New York Post on Thursday to withdraw from the association and resume publication Monday.

The Post declined comment on an announcement by Macy's department store that it would not advertise in the Post while the other newspapers were closed.

The Post was one of five non-struck newspapers that suspended operations voluntarily in a one struck, all struck policy when the printers walked out of the Times, News, Journal-American and World-Telegram & Sun on Dec. 8.

The others that suspended voluntarily were the Herald Tribune, Mirror, Long Island Star-Journal and Long Island Press, with the exception that the Press continued to distribute editions outside the city.

The printers sought a wage increase of $18 a week over two years, a work week reduction from 36¼ to 35 hours, and other benefits. The publishers offered a $10-a-week package over two years. The printers have been averaging $145 a week.

Women's League Chief Blasts Back at Mayor

but against it as an initiated ordinance."

Mrs. Huffman said the League of Women Voters believes that the 1,800 residents who signed a petition to get the Code of Ethics question on the ballot represent widespread community sentiment.

"The question I would like to ask Mayor Henderson," said Mrs. Huffman, "is how does he propose to get a Code of Ethics when the city council has voted down a code three times in the last 18 months?"

She said that the League of Women Voters supported the bond for the police building, sponsored an amendment to the City Charter in 1961 and opposed the garbage ordinance.

The League president added, "The mayor says the garbage ordinance which was passed in 1952 was poor legislation. May I remind him and the voters that the city council could have put the repeal of this ordinance on the ballot in the 1953 election and every city election there after?

"The Code of Ethics was proposed after much study and research. Every provision in the proposed ordinance was included in the one recommended to the city council by the committee which Mayor Henderson chaired."

Mrs. Huffman concluded the League's retort to Henderson's stand by saying, "if this ordinance is adopted, it cannot be changed for two years. But, is this too long to try an ordinance opposed by the city council?"

Egypt Bombers Said Striking Saudi Arabia

penetrations made into Saudi Arabia since Egyptian armed forces moved to the Yemen late last year to support the new revolutionary regime.

Both Kahmis Mishayt and Jizan are about 50 miles inside Saudi Arabia.

The Saudi air force has been using both as staging depots for the delivery of supplies to the royalist supporters of the deposed Imam fighting inside Yemen.

Some Saudi combat troops also are located near Jizan.

The extent of casualties resulting from the raids could not be immediately learned, nor could it be determined if Saudi combat forces came under attack.

Population of Aliens Declines in Colorado

John T. Clingan, Immigration Service officer, said today there are 21,000 registered aliens in the state, of whom 2,355 are visitors or students from abroad. A year ago 21,686 aliens were registered in the state.

Bill for Land Claims Vetoed By Gov. Love

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Legislature received its second rejected bill from Gov. John Love Friday. The governor vetoed a bill relating to claims to land "under color of title."

In his second veto message of the session, Love told members of the House of Representatives:

"This bill was vetoed because according to the opinions of Colorado Bar Association title experts, it is not necessary to correct any possible defects in the law or to protect property rights." Love also said the bill, sponsored by Rep. Frank Evans, D-Pueblo, might violate certain rights of way for roads, ditches and utilities.

A bill to increase the size of the Colorado Welfare Board was introduced in the House by Rep. Oakley Wade, R-Las Animas, Friday. Wade said his proposed two-man increase on the present 7-man board would hopefully "result in more cooperation (from the board) with the governor's office and the Legislature in working out the problems of medicare."

Another bill introduced in the House would raise the tax bill of motor vehicle owners $6 to $7 million a year. It was sponsored by Rep. Joe Schieffelin, R-Golden.

pended low-level reconnaissance flights over Cuba. He told an interviewer surveillance is now being conducted with special electronic ear planes to listen in from outside Cuban territory.

A U. S. government source called the report an error. The source said low-altitude flights are continuing as needed and high-level U2 flights also are being made.

The effectiveness of U. S. surveillance has been the subject of debate in Congress. Some of the administration's critics contend Washington should have learned about the installation of Soviet offensive weapons in Cuba earlier than it did.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., in another Washington interview, reiterated a Republican charge that U. S. intelligence knew as early as mid-September that the Soviets were setting up missiles in Cuba but that the administration did nothing about it until after Oct. 14.

Ford demanded that administration leaders' secret reports to Congress be made public.

President Kennedy has said that while the United States had reports of such a buildup in September and early October it lacked confirmation until it received pictures made on aerial reconnaissance Oct. 14.

In other Cuban developments:

The Cuban government claimed the capture of an alleged U. S. Central Intelligence Agency agent identified in press accounts as Manuel del Valle Caral. He was said to have been nabbed Thursday seconds before he tried to enter an unnamed embassy with incriminating documents.

The government also reported the extermination of a band of insurgents in Las Villas Province, some 280 miles southeast of Havana. The announcement said government troops wiped out the band of Tomas San Gil "which for some time had carried out mischief and vandalism in that region, cowardly assassinating defenseless workers and peasants."

speaker for the dedication, said that Saturday "marked the realization of a dream of many years."

He recapped the history of the new building pointing out that a little less than two years ago the city acquired the property for the facility from the Jackson family and again expressed the appreciation of the city to the family for its cooperation.

Mayor Henderson lauded the building and its facilities and commented on the new Civil Defense Emergency Center located in the basement of the building.

"Within the basement will be found one of the finest facilities for civil defense or emergency operations within the United States," the Mayor said. "We trust that we shall never have to use it for that purpose. However it does today possess operational capabilities in event of emergency."

In commenting on the center, the Mayor acknowledged the fine cooperation city officials received from the county commissioners and called on Smith and McBurney. Both men expressed their gratification for the facility and promised their continuing support in Civil Defense.

Mayor Henderson was high in his praise of former Police Chief Bruce who died recently.

"It is fitting that this building be dedicated to a man who served as a member of this police force for more than 40 years," he said. "He dreamed for many years of that day when his police force would have a first class facility from and which to work."

"It is regretable," Mayor Henderson continued, "that he is not with us today. He was a man whose ability received not only nationwide but worldwide recognition."

The Mayor pointed out that in 1955, former Chief Bruce was sent by the U.S. government to West Germany to assist in the reorganization of the police departments there and that in 1955, he was elected as president of the international police chiefs association.

He closed by reading the inscription on the plaque which is located in the lobby of the $625,000 structure.

"In behalf of the City of Colorado Springs and in respectful appreciation, this building is dedicated to the memory of our former and esteemed police chief Irvin B. (Dad) Bruce."

Family Groceries Stolen From Car in Security

Nothing is sacred to the car prowler!

Later, Charles Leger, of Skyline Trailer Court, who had been attending church services, reported to the sheriff's office the theft of a sack containing the family groceries from his car.

breakthrough" in antisubmarine technology, Galantin said.

The most promising method still is sonar—a device that works on the principle of detection by sound, he said.

Sonar will become more efficient, Galantin forecast, as oceanographic research yields more knowledge about the world below the sea's surface and as scientists learn how to filter out spurious sound.

The Polaris submarine is counted on, along with the Air Force's Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile, to give the United States an invulnerable and devastating atomic striking power in the years ahead.

So far, 10 Polaris submarines have been placed in commission. This number will grow to 18 by the end of the year.

Disparity Reported In Rates of Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The death rate from cancer among men rose sharply during the last decade but dropped in women, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reports.

The firm said Friday its statisticians found the difference between male and female cancer death rates has been "widening steadily."

In 1950-51 the mortality rate among white males was about 20 per cent higher than among white females, but the disparity had increased to 50 per cent by 1960-61, the statisticians said.

Metropolitan said that among its stockholders, who include many urban wage earners and their families, the age-adjusted cancer death rate of white females une to 74 years old fell from 78.5 per 100,000 in 1950-51 to 68.4 in 1960-61. This represents a decrease of 13 per cent.

Statistics showed that the reduction among non-white females dropped 4 per cent, from 89.6 to 85.6 per 100,000.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

As the last remains of a heavy snowstorm died out in New England, a developing low pressure area in the far southwest threatened inclement weather in that area.

Strong gusty surface winds of 30 to 40 miles per hour with some gusts of 50 picked up dust and sand in the desert regions of southern California and Arizona as scattered snows topped higher mountains in Nevada and Utah.

Elsewhere, a few showers along coastal Oregon turned to snow showers inland to southern Idaho and the northern Rockies.

Further east, occasional patches of light rain or snow fell in the northern portions of the midwest and also in New England.

Light rain or scattered light showers thru central Florida completed the sparce precipitation pattern over the nation during early Saturday evening hours with dry weather present over the remaining areas.

Springs-like temperatures again visited the southern sections of the country Saturday with readings in the 60s and 70s common. A few 80s were noted in the desert southwest, southern Texas and southern Florida. Miami, Fla. recorded 86 and Yuma, Ariz. 87.

To the north, the 40s and 50s prevailed over midsections and below freezing temperatures were limited to a small area from the upper Great Lakes into the northeast.

Soldier Injured When Car Roars Out of Control

A Ft. Carson man was injured and damages totalling $1,700 resulted early Saturday morning when a car went out of control, skidded 468 feet, hit five objects, and came to a stop in the yard of a home at 529 E. Las Vegas Street.

The state patrol identified the driver of the car as Richard A. Flook, 23, of Ft. Carson. He was taken to St. Francis Hospital, by E & E Ambulance, suffering from a fractured arm and injuries to the head and chest.

According to the state patrol report, Flook was thrown out of the car after it side - swipped to utility poles and a guard - post. The car then travelled an additional 114 feet, smashing thru a fence, and striking trees in the yard of a home owned by J. A. Ferris.

The Flook car, a 1960 model, was declared a total loss. Damages to the Ferris property was estimated at $300, and to the utility poles and post at $200.

Drivers Escape Injury Saturday In Accident

Drivers of two cars escaped injury Saturday morning when their vehicles collided on Highway 115, three miles south of Colorado Springs.

Deputy Sheriff Gordon W. Baumgardner said the accident occurred when a passenger car, driven by Eric J. Bransby, 45, of Lytle Star Rt., attempted to pass a northbound truck driven by Leonard R. Conda, 54, of Boulder.

In making the pass, the car swung wide to the left, touched loose shoulder road gravel and slipped into the path of the truck. The car, according to the report, was knocked some 43 feet down the road from its point of impact with the truck.

Damage to the trick was estimated at $400, and to the car at $200.

this money to keep the Democratic party moving ahead. The Republicans won the election last year because they had the money to spend."

He also called on members to keep up a continual campaign to bring new members into the organization here and told those present the county Democratic party would work to amend the reapportionment bill.

Gallagher told party members that Republicans virtually ignored the reapportionment plan as presented by the Democratic party here. He said the house approved the Republican plan without questioning its legality.

He said, however, that the state senate questioned the plan and revised it to meet the requirements of the law.

Even so, Gallagher said, the re apportionment appeared unfair.

He pointed to the fact that one of the newly created districts takes in more territory than any of the other districts in the county and challenged it despite the fact that the plan increases the district from three representitives elected at large to five elected from designated areas.

"We will investigate this plan and if we find there is something wrong — something not in keeping with the requirements of the law, we will fight it," Gallagher said.

He said that third party elements in the state are already planning to file protests to the reapportionment as set down by the legislature.

Gallagher told delegates he felt the action was not carried out in El Paso County according to population requirements as set down by the law.

He pointed out that it is often too difficult to determine the exact population of an area simply because it changes so often, expecially in the area of registered and eligible voters.

"U.S. military air support was never a part of the original planning," Persons said. He did not elaborate.

The Central Intelligence Agency, he said, was not to blame for the invasion's failure but "unfortunately, has been forced to accept the scapegoat role in silence."

Persons said he and the other 17 airmen, all married with families and better than average jobs, were told "that we were being hired to replace foreign national aircrews for vitally important air missions."

"We all believed then, and believe now, that the men who engaged us were representatives of the U.S. government," Persons said.

"I got into the program in January 1961.

"A test pilot I knew slightly asked me if I would be interested in a job which would be hazardous, would involve some shooting, would be based outside the United States in this hemisphere and would be in the national interest."

Persons said he was hired to instruct and teach Cuban refugee pilots, but after Cubans flew two ill-fated missions the 18 American instructors received orders to fly strafing missions in the converted cargo planes, B26 bombers and F51s.

Persons, 46, was a combat pilot in World War II. He is the first cousin of Wilton B. Persons, chief aide to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, and first cousin to former Alabama Gov. Gordon Persons.

Suicide With Knife, Shotgun And Pistol Fails

Police officer H. A. Grondahl reported that all three attempts failed, without harm to Charlie M. Mann, tho the blast from his 16 gauge shotgun, tore a hole in a bedroom ceiling.

Grondahl said he was called to the Mann home by Mrs. Mann at about 11:25 a.m. Saturday. The officer said that the woman stated that her husband had been drinking heavily for two days and had twice, prior to the shotgun attempt, threatened to kill himself. Her brother-in-law, the woman said, averted the first two suicide attempts by removing the knife and revolver from the Mann home.

Mann, who has been undergoing veteran's care for a mental disorder, was taken by the police officer to the John Brady Hospital Hospital.

it was launched Friday afternoon. The balloon, soaring 80,000 feet, was controlled by signals from a small aircraft. The astronomers focused the telescope from the ground.

Schwartzschild said a tape recording of the sky scanning voyage would be flown to Palestine for minute study.

The flight took the $2.5-million telescope above 98 per cent of the earth's air and water blanket. Scientists hope to get clues as to the amount of water vapor, carbon dioxide and other gases in the Martian atmosphere.

The six-ton rig consisted of a launch balloon, 75 feet in diameter, above the main balloon, which inflated to 250 in diameter. Below the main balloon was slung a gondola containing the telescope and instruments.

Officials plan a news conference either Sunday or Monday at the National Scientific Balloon Flight Station at Palestine to release information obtained in the flight of about 600 miles over Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

New Mexico Kills Right to Work Plan

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI)— A proposed constitutional amendment to let the public decide on the so-called "right-to-work" issue was killed by the New Mexico House of Representatives Friday after approval by the State Senate.

House members voted 31-26 not even to refer the Senate measure to committee. The Senate passed a resolution calling for the amendment to be put on the next general election ballot.

Earlier this week, the House voted down its own version of the proposal, 35-28. A motion to reconsider the vote failed, thus killing the House resolution.

Red China Charges New Steps by India

The Chinese Defense Ministry made the charge in a statement in which it said its own troops had completed their planned withdrawal and are now "far behind the positions of Sept. 8, 1962" from which they launched their big fall offensive.

A broadcast quoted ministry spokesmen as saying Indian troops with the aid of Western powers are "waiting for an opportunity to renew their invasion of China."

Punishment of Vandals Set By State Law

DENVER (AP) — Vandalism in Colorado can be punished by a one- to 10-year penitentiary term under a new law in Colorado.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Bill Gossard, R-Craig, was signed by Gov. John Love Friday. The House of Representatives first adopted the measure, then the Senate concurred several days ago.

It is aimed at wanton attacks on churches, schools and public property, but applies to any kind of malicious destruction.

The prison term can be meted out only if the wanton destruction of property exceeds $500. For vandalism of lesser damage fines and jail sentences are possible.

The bill was one of 14 which Love announced he had signed. He vetoed one measure, a bill entitled "Concerning Claims to Land Under Color or Title," by Rep. Frank Evans, D-Pueblo. The governor said he was advised by title experts of the Colorado Bar Association that the bill might endanger some rights of way for roads, ditches and utilities.

The actions brought Love's total signatures for the year to 54. He has vetoed two bills.

Most of the other bills which the governor signed Friday repeal "dead-letter" laws which have had no practical effect for years. The measures signed were House Bills 59, 86, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 110 and 111.

St. Mary's High School News

By DICK FOSTER

Mother Mary Florence, assistant general of the Sisters of Loretto, visited St. Mary's Feb. 18 and spoke to the girls during the morning. Mother Mary Florence visited Latin America last year and had first-hand experience to give to the girls of the conditions of that country and of the need for vocations in this area.

Included in her visit were Peru, Chile, Bolivia and Brazil. The Sisters of Loretto now have schools in La Paz, Bolivia and Tacna, Peru.

Dr. James Myers spoke to the Senior Girls Feb. 20. His talk to the junior girls on boy-girl relationships proved interesting several weeks ago and the Seniors requested that he talk to them.

Mite Boxes were distributed in the homerooms before Lent. The goal for sacrifice money during Lent has been set at $500. Last year the students contributed their sacrifice money of $1,000 to Mrg. Robert F. Hoffman for his building fund so it is hoped that they do as well this year.

Prom Queen Sue Oakley was elected by the senior boys to reign over the event in May. Her attendants will be Tori Cusack, Joanne Dent, Pat Moss and Janet Steinfeld.

The Juniors were measured for class rings Wednesday and delivery is promised for May. The crest contains a small statue of Our Blessed Mother and is standard for each class.

Ninety-two freshmen and sophomores and 40 juniors have registered for the National Educational Development Test and National Merit Test for Saturday, March 9.

The senior boys and girls will journey to Sacred Heart Retreat House and El Pomar Retreat House for their retreat March 6 and 7.

David A. Watson Made ROTC Cadet at KU

David A. Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Watson, 305 Old Broadmoor Rd., a student at the University of Kansas, has received an appointment to cadet rank in the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps at the university. He will serve as a cadet staff sergeant with duty as a squad leader.

Cadet officers plan, conduct, and supervise all training carried on during the weekly hour of leadership laboratory. They are guided and advised by members of the Army ROTC faculty.

Upon graduation and completion of the four - year ROTC program, Watson will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve and will go on active duty for a period not to exceed two years. He will be able to complete his entire military obligation as an officer.

No Other Wrapping Urged for Potatoes

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The secret of good, dry mealiness in baked potatoes, according to the Pennsylvania Cooperative Potato Growers, is not to hurry the baking process and to do them in their own jackets without benefit of other wrapping. Ideal temperature for 10-ounce potatoes in 300 degrees for two hours.

New Program Will Help Humanities Scholars

By LYNN POOLE
The John Hopkins University

In recent years, one of the most prominent trends in higher education has been toward interdisciplinary study—scholars crossing the departmental lines to reach areas traditionally excluded from their own particular field. The result has been the blurring of existing lines between fields of study.

This trend has been most noticeable in the scientific fields, where it is now often difficult to tell the difference between a chemist and a biologist, or between an engineer and a physicist.

Scholars in the humanities have been faced with similar problems. To cite only one example, a language student, in order to appreciate fully the literature of a particular area or period, must first understand the culture, history, political structure and economy of his area of study.

Interdepartmental studies such as these have long been the accepted practice at the Johns Hopkins University. In order to further these all-encompassing studies in the humanities, Hopkins is now launching a new program cutting across the various fields involved -- art, history, classics, literature, languages and philosophy.

The focal point of the program will be a series of seminars in which all the humanities departments at Johns Hopkins will coordinate their efforts. Next fall, the subject will be "Aspects of the Eighteenth Century."

In the course of the year, at least a dozen outside scholars will visit the Hopkins campus. Each will speak to the seminar on a topic relating to the overall subject, and will remain at the University for the consultation with graduate students and faculty.

To complement the seminars, the Hopkins humanities faculty will offer courses of special interest to students of the Eighteenth century.

A third feature of the program will be speakers who are unable to participate in the entire program, but who will come to the campus to address the group. This project is under the auspices of the History of Ideas Club, a scholarly discussion group of faculty members founded by the eminent philosopher Authur O. Lovejoy, and whose past speakers' list reads like "Who's Who" in the academic and intellectual world.

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, Hopkins' President, enthusiastically supports this new venture. "The Seminars will contribute significantly to the scholarly activities of faculty and students in our humanities departments," he says.

Prof. Maurice Mandelbaum, Chairman of the Philosophy Department at John Hopkins, is head of the faculty group which organized the program. He points out that in line with the long-established tradition of interdepartmental studies at Hopkins the seminars will be open to graduate students of all departments.

Dr. Mandelbaum and his associates are now in the process of inviting scholars from other colleges and universities, both in this country and abroad, to participate in the humanities seminars. In addition, he says that he expects that a number of professors who are on leave from their own institutions and who are interested in the areas covered by the seminars will wish to participate in the program.

Future topics scheduled for the seminars are: The Middle Ages, for 1964-65; and The Renaissance, 1965-1966.

The object of the program, as in most research in the humanities, is not of immediate practical value. Studies such as these, which deal with the nature of man, his aspirations, achievement and problems lead rather to the stimulation of thought and the general advancement of human knowledge -- which, after all, is the primary function of a university.

St. Mary's High School News

By DICK FOSTER

Mother Mary Florence, assistant general of the Sisters of Loretto, visited St. Mary's Feb. 18 and spoke to the girls during the morning. Mother Mary Florence visited Latin America last year and had first-hand experience to give to the girls of the conditions of that country and of the need for vocations in this area.

Included in her visit were Peru, Chile, Bolivia and Brazil. The Sisters of Loretto now have schools in La Paz, Bolivia and Tacna, Peru.

Dr. James Myers spoke to the Senior Girls Feb. 20. His talk to the junior girls on boy-girl relationships proved interesting several weeks ago and the Seniors requested that he talk to them.

Mite Boxes were distributed in the homerooms before Lent. The goal for sacrifice money during Lent has been set at $500. Last year the students contributed their sacrifice money of $1,000 to Mrg. Robert F. Hoffman for his building fund so it is hoped that they do as well this year.

Prom Queen Sue Oakley was elected by the senior boys to reign over the event in May. Her attendants will be Tori Cusack, Joanne Dent, Pat Moss and Janet Steinfeld.

The Juniors were measured for class rings Wednesday and delivery is promised for May. The crest contains a small statue of Our Blessed Mother and is standard for each class.

Ninety-two freshmen and sophomores and 40 juniors have registered for the National Educational Development Test and National Merit Test for Saturday, March 9.

The senior boys and girls will journey to Sacred Heart Retreat House and El Pomar Retreat House for their retreat March 6 and 7.

Vernon Gail Hines Joins U.S. Air Force

Vernon Gail Hines, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Hines, North Route, Kit Carson, recently enlisted in the U. S. Air Force. T Sgt Bruce S. Adams, local Air Force recruiter, said he will undergo basic training at Lackland Air Force, San Antonio, Tex., and then be sent to an Air Force technical school. Hines was graduated from the Kit Carson High School in June of 1962.

David A. Watson Made ROTC Cadet at KU

David A. Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Watson, 305 Old Broadmoor Rd., a student at the University of Kansas, has received an appointment to cadet rank in the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps at the university. He will serve as a cadet staff sergeant with duty as a squad leader.

Cadet officers plan, conduct, and supervise all training carried on during the weekly hour of leadership laboratory. They are guided and advised by members of the Army ROTC faculty.

Upon graduation and completion of the four - year ROTC program, Watson will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve and will go on active duty for a period not to exceed two years. He will be able to complete his entire military obligation as an officer.

No Other Wrapping Urged for Potatoes

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The secret of good, dry mealiness in baked potatoes, according to the Pennsylvania Cooperative Potato Growers, is not to hurry the baking process and to do them in their own jackets without benefit of other wrapping. Ideal temperature for 10-ounce potatoes in 300 degrees for two hours.

New Program Will Help Humanities Scholars

By LYNN POOLE
The John Hopkins University

In recent years, one of the most prominent trends in higher education has been toward interdisciplinary study—scholars crossing the departmental lines to reach areas traditionally excluded from their own particular field. The result has been the blurring of existing lines between fields of study.

This trend has been most noticeable in the scientific fields, where it is now often difficult to tell the difference between a chemist and a biologist, or between an engineer and a physicist.

Scholars in the humanities have been faced with similar problems. To cite only one example, a language student, "in order to appreciate fully the literature of a particular area or period, must first understand the culture, history, political structure and economy of his area of study.

Interdepartmental studies such as these have long been the accepted practice at the Johns Hopkins University. In order to further these all-encompassing studies in the humanities, Hopkins is now launching a new program cutting across the various fields involved — art, history, classics, literature, languages and philosophy.

The focal point of the program will be a series of seminars in which all the humanities departments at Johns Hopkins will coordinate their efforts. Next fall, the subject will be "Aspects of the Eighteenth Century."

In the course of the year, at least a dozen outside scholars will visit the Hopkins campus. Each will speak to the seminar on a topic relating to the overall subject, and will remain at the University for the consultation with graduate students and faculty.

To complement the seminars, the Hopkins humanities faculty will offer courses of special interest to students of the Eighteenth century.

A third feature of the program will be speakers who are unable to participate in the entire program, but who will come to the campus to address the group. This project is under the auspices of the History of Ideas Club, a scholarly discussion group of faculty members founded by the eminent philosopher Authur O. Lovejoy, and whose past speakers' list reads like "Who's Who" in the academic and intellectual world.

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, Hopkins' President, enthusiastically supports this new venture. "The Seminars will contribute significantly to the scholarly activities of faculty and students in our humanities departments," he says.

Prof. Maurice Mandelbaum, Chairman of the Philosophy Department at John Hopkins, is head of the faculty group which organized the program. He points out that in line with the long-established tradition of interdepartmental studies at Hopkins the seminars will be open to graduate students of all departments.

Dr. Mandelbaum and his associates are now in the process of inviting scholars from other colleges and universities, both in this country and abroad, to participate in the humanities seminars. In addition, he says that he expects that a number of professors who are on leave from their own institutions and who are interested in the areas covered by the seminars will wish to participate in the program.

Future topics scheduled for the seminars are: The Middle Ages, for 1964-65; and The Renaissance, 1965-1966.

The object of the program, as in most research in the humanities, is not of immediate practical value. Studies such as these, which deal with the nature of man, his aspirations, achievement and problems lead rather to the stimulation of thought and the general advancement of human knowledge — which, after all, is the primary function of a university.

U.S. Cadets To See How Other Half Lives

Cadets from all four U.S. service academies will get a chance to see "how the other half lives" March 7-10, 14-17.

During the two periods, Air Force Academy cadets will exchange visits with their counterparts at West Point, Annapolis, and the Coast Guard Academy.

Approximately 50 Academy cadets will head east on each of the trips; 10 visiting the Coast Guard school at New London, Conn., and 20 each to West Point and Annapolis. At the same time, groups of cadets from each of the three other institutions will visit the Air Force Academy.

At the Academy, visiting cadets will room with Air Force hosts and attend classes and formations with them.

Briefings on Academy academic, military, and physical training programs are scheduled as well as tours of buildings and facilities including Falcon Stadium and the cadet gym.

Visiting cadets and their hosts will also tour NORAD and receive briefings on the NORAD operation.

Capt. John A. Hall, 10th Cadet Squadron AOC (Air Officer Commanding) is exchange visit project officer.

Such visits are designed to provide service academy cadets with an opportunity to observe the customs, activities and ways of life of their cohorts at other service schools.

Officers accompanying the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard contingents will meet Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren and Dean of Faculty Brig. Gen. Robert F. McDermott.

REFLECTIONS

How often we have seen the reflections of the blue sky seen in the water or some picturesque scene! We stand amazed and fascinated by the beauty portrayed seemingly more beautiful the the original scene. Reflections are commonly seen and yet, when we see objects reflected, we feel we must stop and gaze upon them. It is the rays of light or heat throwing back after striking any substance and yet it always seems unusual. The reflections of the moon in the water gives us perhaps the most allurement. There is something so magical and bewitching when you are out in the water and see that reflection. We feel as if we were transformed into another world. Mountain peaks are often reflected in the lake belowand give one a wonderful scene of attainment making us feel that we have suddenly been transformed to the summit of the big mountains.

Often we see a painting entitled "Reflection" and it generally strikes the eye of people, for there is something about it that impresses them deeply. And it must take an artist to make that production. Again reflections may apply to the habit of turning the mind back to something that happened in the past. It might have been something very pleasant or disagreeable but we more or less throw back our thoughtful mood which is also entitled "reflection" In looking at such a picture one can almost read their thoughts.

A reflection in the mirror, showing some part of a room often looks far more interesting and artistic than it really is. The image given back to us is beyond our comprehension. There are reflections we often see other than in the water or a mirror when the sun-light strikes some bright object. There are times when the sun strikes the summit house on Pikes Peak and it shows up plainly.

We see the sun reflecting on a waterfall, making it glisten and light up all the surrounding scenes. Objects have been seen at great distances away, glistening in the sunshine. Parts of a plane that crashed was seen in the Mountains on Blodgetts Peak and glistened in the sunlight for some time.

The sunlight gives wonderful effects in various ways and a great factor in making observations on isolated places. The sunlight and moonlight give us so many beautiful effects in reflections and other ways. The light of the sun or moon hitting tops of trees or mountain peaks, flooding the path or trail with that magical light. The moonlight across a forest of evergreens, gives a silver sheen to the trees shedding deep softness across that vast expanse of forest is a beautiful sight. When the sun's broad beam becomes tired a different light comes forth, still and quiet. It moves across the sky like a silvery veil, the queen of the night, walking in beauty, flooding the great ocean, the rivers, lakes, thousands of streams, the boundless woods and even the trackless wilderness. The depth and grandeur of the moonlight is one glowing splendor. There are powerful reflections in this great universe of ours that are phenomena and are studied by scientists.

Civil Rights Commissions Widen Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1957, when Congress passed its first civil rights bill in 82 years, nobody paid much attention to a provision creating a Commission on Civil Rights.

It was almost the only provision that both House and Senate agreed on in their first versions of the bill.

Planned as a bipartisan fact-finding group to study and make recommendations on civil rights problems, the new commission had no authority beyond the right to subpoena witnesses for its hearings.

It appeared innocuous, and the commission didn't seem to accomplish much during its early years.

But now the Commission on Civil Rights points to a solid record of achievements in the Kennedy administration, the latest in the President's civil rights message to Congress last week.

Four of the key proposals came from commission reports, including one to expand the duties of the commission itself—a suggestion made in its first report in 1959.

Commission members and their 75-man staff consider it their duty to lay down guidelines for civil rights action in broad areas.

In his civil rights message, Kennedy proposed that federal judges be given authority to name referees to determine voter qualifications as soon as discrimination is charged in counties where it is alleged that less than 15 per cent of the qualified Negroes are registered. The commission first proposed this in 1959.

He also asked legislation stating that anyone who has completed the sixth grade is presumed literate for the purposes of vote registration. The commission has proposed a constitutional amendment stripping away virtually all qualifications except age, residence and citizenship.

Kennedy also called for a program of federal technical and financial aid for school districts desiring to bring about desegregation, recommended by the commission in 1959.

The Civil Rights Commission was one of the first groups to call for an executive order banning discrimination in federal financed housing. This was signed by the President last fall.

The Kennedy administration also has put into effect commission proposals on education of dependents of servicemen, use of public funds in segregated libraries, employment practices of government contractors, apprenticeship programs, recruiting by the Civil Service Commission in Negro colleges and desegregation in military reserve units.

Kennedy has proposed that the commission's activities be expanded to serve as a "national civil rights clearing house providing information, advice and technical assistance to any requesting agency, private or public."

He also suggested that the commission's life be extended for at least four years, instead of the two-year extensions voted in the past.

Bernhard said it is impossible to predict how much the new duties would increase the present $850,000 budget.

Poetry is the most recent topic in Mrs. Ora Mullins' senior English classes. The students are writing four - stanza poems revealing their own expressions and feelings. The poems will be organized into a poetry handbook and presented to the students.

Hal Harger's senior government classes have been giving reports on current world problems. Following each talk the class discusses their view points. Some of the topics are "Juvenile Delinquency," "High School Sports," "Communism" and the "Cuban Crisis."

Class pins bearing the letters FHS and the graduation date are now being ordered by the various class members. The pins cost $1 each and can be ordered from Rita Cox.

Recently representatives from an automobile company, the social security department and the Postoffice have been giving talks to the FHS business students.

Car Smacks Pole; Sheriff Looks For Driver

Sheriff's officers are searching for a car with damages to its left front and side in connection with a power pole that was struck and knocked down on Colorado Highway 115 Thursday.

Clark Yowell of the Colorado Springs Department of Public Utilities reported to the sheriff's office that an unknown car driver apparently smashed into the pole toppling it and a transformer to the ground.

Damage was estimated at $200. The power pole, located one-half mile west of the May Tropical Museum on Highway 115, has been repaired.

The sunlight and moonlight give us so many beautiful effects in reflections and other ways. The light of the sun or moon hitting tops of trees or mountain peaks, flooding the path or trail with that magical light. The moonlight across a forest of evergreens, gives a silver sheen to the trees shedding deep softness across that vast expanse of forest is a beautiful sight. When the sun's broad beam becomes tired a different light comes forth, still and quiet. It moves across the sky like a silvery veil, the queen of the night, walking in beauty, flooding the great ocean, the rivers, lakes, thousands of streams, the boundless woods and even the trackless wilderness. The depth and grandeur of the moonlight is one glowing splendor. There are powerful reflections in this great universe of ours that are phenomena and are studied by scientists.

Civil Rights Commissions Widen Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1957, when Congress passed its first civil rights bill in 82 years, nobody paid much attention to a provision creating a Commission on Civil Rights.

It was almost the only provision that both House and Senate agreed on in their first versions of the bill.

Planned as a bipartisan fact-finding group to study and make recommendations on civil rights problems, the new commission had no authority beyond the right to subpoena witnesses for its hearings.

It appeared innocuous, and the commission didn't seem to accomplish much during its early years.

But now the Commission on Civil Rights points to a solid record of achievements in the Kennedy administration, the latest in the President's civil rights message to Congress last week.

Four of the key proposals came from commission reports, including one to expand the duties of the commission itself—a suggestion made in its first report in 1959.

Commission members and their 75-man staff consider it their duty to lay down guidelines for civil rights action in broad areas.

In his civil rights message, Kennedy proposed that federal judges be given authority to name referees to determine voter qualifications as soon as discrimination is charged in counties where it is alleged that less than 15 per cent of the qualified Negroes are registered. The commission first proposed this in 1959.

He also asked legislation stating that anyone who has completed the sixth grade is presumed literate for the purposes of vote registration. The commission has proposed a constitutional amendment stripping away virtually all qualifications except age, residence and citizenship.

Kennedy also called for a program of federal technical and financial aid for school districts desiring to bring about desegregation, recommended by the commission in 1959.

The Civil Rights Commission was one of the first groups to call for an executive order banning discrimination in federal financed housing. This was signed by the President last fall.

The Kennedy administration also has put into effect commission proposals on education of dependents of servicemen, use of public funds in segregated libraries, employment practices of government contractors, apprenticeship programs, recruiting by the Civil Service Commission in Negro colleges and desegregation in military reserve units.

Kennedy has proposed that the commission's activities be expanded to serve as a "national civil rights clearing house providing information, advice and technical assistance to any requesting agency, private or public."

He also suggested that the commission's life be extended for at least four years, instead of the two-year extensions voted in the past.

Bernhard said it is impossible to predict how much the new duties would increase the present $850,000 budget.

Poetry is the most recent topic in Mrs. Ora Mullins' senior English classes. The students are writing four - stanza poems revealing their own expressions and feelings. The poems will be organized into a poetry handbook and presented to the students.

Hal Harger's senior government classes have been giving reports on current world problems. Following each talk the class discusses their view points. Some of the topics are "Juvenile Delinquency," "High School Sports," "Communism" and the "Cuban Crisis."

Class pins bearing the letters FHS and the graduation date are now being ordered by the various class members. The pins cost $1 each and can be ordered from Rita Cox.

Recently representatives from an automobile company, the social security department and the Postoffice have been giving talks to the FHS business students.

Car Smacks Pole; Sheriff Looks For Driver

Sheriff's officers are searching for a car with damages to its left front and side in connection with a power pole that was struck and knocked down on Colorado Highway 115 Thursday.

Clark Yowell of the Colorado Springs Department of Public Utilities reported to the sheriff's office that an unknown car driver apparently smashed into the pole toppling it and a transformer to the ground.

Damage was estimated at $200. The power pole, located one-half mile west of the May Tropical Museum on Highway 115, has been repaired.

Scout Troop Award Court Held Thursday

Boy Scout Troop No. 22 of Sacred Heart Church had a Court of Award Thursday with Sam Aro, Sports Director for K. R. D. O., master of ceremonies.

Troop No. 22's Charter was renewed and presented to Mr. Leo Morford, representative of the Holy Name, the sponsoring group, by Mr. Ray Fergerson, institutional representative.

Dean Anderson, was introduced and will be the next institutional representative George Salmon, scout master, presented the following boys with the Tenderfoot Rank David Rockers, John Mullane, Steve Morford, Pat Swan and Danny Sullivan.

The parents were entertained by a minstrel show, and also saw various displays of hobby and crafts in which their boys are proficient. The office of junior assistant scout master was given to Mark Swan, Charles Borden Senior Patrol Leader, and Steve Borden Scribe. Tom Christopher received the badges of Citizenship in the Nation, Personal Fitness, and Cooking. David Anderson Citizenship in the Nation. Mark Swan, Aviation, and Reading. Steve, and Charles Borden received the badges of Fishing, Public Speaking, Citizenship in the Nation and Citizenship in the Home.

Thomas Christopher, thirteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Christopher of 424 North 16 St. became the troop's first Eagle Scout. Mr. Harold Hiskey, representative from the Scout Council, read the Eagle Oath, as Thomas Christopher was awarded the highest rank that of an Eagle Scout.

Veteran's Widows May Be Eligible For Pay Increase

Deceased veterans' widows who were on the VA's death compensation rolls before Jan. 1, 1957, may be eligible for higher monthly payments under the Dependency and Indemnity Compensation Act than under the old compensation law.

This is especially true for widows without minor children for whom death compensation is being paid, according to E. R. Benke, manager of the VA Center in Denver.

Survivors going on the rolls after Jan. 1, 1957, must receive compensation under the new act. Those already on the rolls on that date may now change to payments under the new act if it will be to their advantage.

Under the old compensation law, the widow alone received $87 a month; $121 if there is one eligible child, and $29 for each additional child.

Under the Dependency and Indemnity Compensation Act, the widow is entitled to a monthly payment of $112, plus 12 per cent of the monthly basic pay now being received by a serviceman whose rank and years of service are the same as that of the deceased serviceman or veteran.

The widow is not entitled, under this new act, to additional payments for minor children.

Any person who believes they are eligible for the higher rates should get in touch with the VA Center, Denver Federal Center, Denver 25.

Birth Defects May Result From Hormone Imbalance

A new potential cause of birth defects — too much or too litle hormone production during pregnancy — has been brought to light by Dr. Richard M. Hoar of the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine.

The scientist has produced in guinea pigs many of the typical birth abnormalities seen in human babies. He accomplished this by supplementing the animals' output of cortisone-like adrenal hormones and also, paradoxically, by removing the adrenal glands which are the source of these same agents.

In both guinea pig and man the hormone is made in these glands, which are small caps of tissue situated on top of the kidneys.

Announcement of Dr. Hoar's important findings was made by The National Foundation - March of Dimes, which supports the Cincinnati researcher's studies as well as many others in the field of birth defects.

Dr. Hoar used guinea pigs in his studies because their period of gestation is the longest among common laboratory animals and most closely resembles human gestation in dependence upon the hormone products of endocrine glands.

In addition to birth defects caused by changing the animals' hormone supplies during pregnancy, Dr. Hoar also noted a high incidence of abortions and cases in which the young fetuses were absorbed by the mothers' tissues.

Dr. Virginia Apgar, director of the Division of Congenital Malformations of The National Foundation, commented on Dr. Hoar's studies: "Tho there is some controversy as to whether or not cortisone and related drugs can cause birth defects in humans, we all want to know more about the effect of delicate hormone balances on the growing fetus.

Dr. Hoar's work with guinea pigs offers an unparalleled opportunity for studying this question with great precision."

Altho cortisone has been found to produce birth anomalies in mice and rabbits, it has not proved a cause of defects in rats. Physicians have found no convincing evidence that cortisone in normal doses is dangerous in humans during pregnancy.

Dr. Hoar believes, however, that the more complex hormone balances required by guinea pigs and humans during pregnancy are, perhaps, more easily upset, with consequent damage to the embryo, than is the case with rats.

The Cincinnati project is one of many studies supported by The National Foundation - March of Dimes aimed at revealing the basic causes of inborn defects that afflict six of every 100 babies born in the United States.

Lady Lawyer Should Have Style, She Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When a lady lawyer enters a courtroom, it should be in high style, Att. Barbara Warner contends.

And with 18 different styles and colors of briefcases to choose from, it's easy for her to match both her outfit and her mood each day.

There's a yellow briefcase for her yellow linen suit, a pale blue one for her suit of that color, and when she's feeling in the pink, there's her favorite pink case. She owns cases covered in tapestry, as well as more conservative shades — black and a variety of browns. But she never carries the black one on Fridays.

The senior class play, "Mistress of Mellyn, is scheduled for April 5, and is being directed by Richard Wederquist. Members of the cast include Mary Hickman as Marty; Art Humphreys as Connan; Jeri Godbey as Lady Treslyn; Art Mahoney as Peter; Leona Cook as Celestine; Vicky Valentino as Alvean; Nancy Dueboay as Gilly; and Jacque Cook as Mrs. Polgrey. Student director is Jerry Pinell; Ron Weber is chairman of properties; Greg Armstrong, publicity; Tim Carmichael, special effects, and Nancy Weigel, costumes. Kathy Dailey, Phil Guinta, Greg Armstrong, Carolyn Trujillo, Jeri Godbey, and Don Cockroft are in charge of making posters and distributing them.

Morning classes were shortened Friday, Feb. 22, to allow time for class meetings. Graduation and Class Day were the main topics discussed by the senior class. Vicky Valentino, Carolyn Trujillo, Jacque Cook, Kathy Dailey, Mike Tracy, Art Humphreys, Rich Malone, Cheryl Golden, Don Cockroft, and Greg Armstrong were selected for the Class Day Program committee. A committee under Greg Armstrong, including Vicky Valentino, Carolyn Trujillo, and Art Humphreys, was set up to write the class will, prophecy, and history.

At the junior class meeting the junior-senior prom theme, "Hawaiian Sunset," was selected. Other preparations, including senior souvenirs and special engraved napkins, were discussed.

With the close of basketball season, the junior class has given up the concession stand.

In an overtime play, the FHS Varsity basketball squad beat the FHS "Fearless Faculty" in the student-Faculty basketball game Saturday, Feb. 23.

First place — Juan Pacheco's team.

Second place — Tim Carmichael's team.

Third place — Jerry Pinell's team.

Fourth place — Kenny Pevoteaux's team.

Fifth place — Mike Wolfrey's team.

Allott Sees Excess In Administration

SCRANTON, Pa. (UPI) — Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., accused the Kennedy administration here of "executive excesses" in domestic and foreign policy.

He said "an eager first family" has laid the groundwork for a domestic peace corps without first getting congressional authorization and that in the fields of disarmament and foreign policy executive action is running ahead of Congress.

Allott, in a preparedness speech at a St. David's Day dinner honoring the national festival of Wales, said that in Congress there is a "Growing realization that . . . the executive bandwagon must be replaced by a real ship of state."

Allott said the Agriculture Department, by executive "indirection," is becoming a department of rural affairs through proposals for loans for rural housing to the elderly, new recreational facilities, and rural renewal programs.

BUENOS AIRES — An increase in bankruptcy petitions is reported in Argentina.

COLORADO SPRINGS

GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH

SECTION B — COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, MARCH 3, 1963 — SECTION B

HOME ON THE RANGE—Housing the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, Ft. Carson, while it takes six weeks of training at Red Creek Ranch in guerilla-type living from horsemanship to rock climbing is this tent city. Seventh Engineer Battalion graded the streets and walks and provided other amenities for the tough infantrymen.

IMPROVISING—Sgt. 1.C. Eugene Britt, left, shows men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, how to improvise a field-expedient antenna for a radio by using a canteen cup, stick and three feet of communications wire. The demonstration was part of training which included many other field expedients on Red Creek Ranch 25 miles south of Ft. Carson where the infantrymen are the first 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) troops to undergo guerrilla-type training.

Carson Men Learn to Live Off Land During Training

Shades of the old western cavalry hover in the dusty background as modern infantrymen from Ft. Carson learn to live off the land at Red Creek Ranch, where the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, is completing six weeks of rigorous field training.

Lt. Col. Don Hickman's troopers — who tasted guerrilla life and performed with distinction in "Exercise We Will" last fall — are proving that today's soldier is as versatile as the Indian fighter of a century ago.

Mountaineering, horsemanship and field survival play major roles in this instruction as Red Devils of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) learn military tactics as old as war.

The toughening process was proved out early in the period when the 1st of the 10th men marched 26 miles back to Ft. Carson across the rolling, cactus studded terrain, thru scrub and pine.

The clink of pitons and snap links at soldiers' waists is a new sound to these footsloggers, old and young. They have had their introduction to military mountaineering and wear their links proudly like badges.

Col. Hickman said proudly as he watched his marching troops:

"This is the best battalion I've ever seen. They're proud with a right to be. I've never seen men with as much field time behind them come swinging in like these."

Behind this esprit is a year of working together from advanced individual training to this specialized work preparing for the division's Strategic Army role—fighting aggression anywhere necessary in the world.

And behind the six weeks at Red Creek Ranch is a complex of supply lines running back to Carson from the 40 - tent city erected by the occupants.

Manning the graders and shovels that provided streets and walks were the 7th Engineers. Stringing cable from Ft. Carson for lights and telephones were the 267th Signalmen.

Six or seven men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, communications section laid "4½ to 5 miles of wire by hand," said Pfc. Preston Wiggs. Connecting these tentacles was the field switchboard which is manned day and night.

The battalion communications experts also maintain two, 5-kilowatt generator power plants which use up "90 per cent of what gas we have," commented Capt. Harold Evans, battalion supply officer.

Capt. Robert Barkett and Spec. 6 Harold Van Horn dressed cactus wounds and blisters and swabbed sore throats on sick calls. Medical aid men travel with the infantry.

"The only chickens I'd ever seen were on a plate," meditated Evans, reflecting on the strange tasks given to a logistics officer. He referred to his mission of providing 300 pounds of feed for 200 chickens and 10 horses.

The chickens are game for the survival traps and snares with which the infantrymen learn to live off the land, guerrilla style.

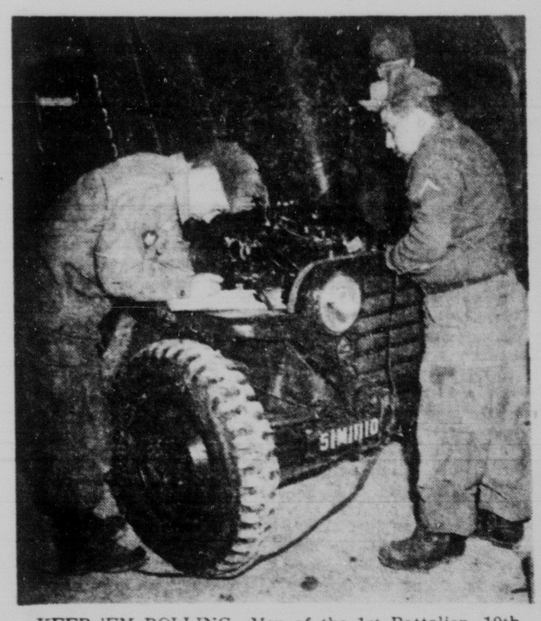
Gen. Heintges, after a demonstration, declared the improvising of field gear to pack equipment "fantastic."



KEEP 'EM ROLLING—Men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, check out a jeep in the field at Red Creek Ranch where these 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) soldiers are taking guerilla-type training for six weeks. One modern innovation allowed is a heated tent to help mechanics keep their vehicles rolling.

SNARE TECHNIQUE—Sgt. 1.C. Wilbur Herrington has an attentive audience as he points out to two men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, how to devise a looped snare as one means of finding field rations. The battalion is part of the Strategic Army Command's 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Ft. Carson.

HOW ITS DONE—Pfc. Donald Gangelhoff of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, mountain assault team shows other battalion members how to come down a cliff fast and safely via a seat rappel. He loosens the rope, kicks out and floats 30 feet down at a time. This climbing instruction is part of six weeks' training 25 miles south of Ft. Carson on Red Creek Ranch.

High Level Grades Allocated By Civil Service

The Civil Service Commission has allocated to Federal agencies several hundred positions at grades GS-16, 17, and 18, under authority of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962.

Of these, 450 positions were authorized under the increased quote set by Congress: 30 in grade GS-18, 92 in GS-17, and 328 in GS-16.

Ninety, or more than one fourth, of the GS-16 quota positions allocated will be used by the commission to promote that number of the 295 GS-15 hearing examiners whose jobs have been found allocable to GS-16. An additional nine GS-17 jobs will be used to promote chief hearing examiners with authorized staffs of 10 or more hearing examiners whose jobs are allocable to GS-16.

Besides raising the numerical limitation, the new act exempts from the quota top - level positions of professional engineers primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the natural and physical sciences and medicine. This permitted the commission to approve an additional 142 top - level allocations. Of this number, nine are in GS-18, 37 in GS-17, and 96 in GS-16.

In addition to these 142, 105 scientific and engineering positions that were in the top grades before the new law was enacted have been removed by the commission from the quota restrictions. The total number of non-quota positions is expected to increase when additional departments, such as defense, have completed review of their needs and submit their requests to the commission.

In taking the actions, duties and responsibilities of each position were weighed by the commission. The total number of positions allocated took into account the number of spaces recaptured when a position already in grade GS-16 or GS-17 was up - graded, as well as the new spaces made available under the quota by the movement of exempted positions out from under the quota. Each agency received individual notification of the action taken by the commission on its requests. The majority of the new actions, 77 per cent, involved positions in the competitive service.

The commission has established a reserve of 100 top-level spaces to be used for new programs or new agencies established after Jan. 1, 1963. In allocating positions from this reserve, the commission will consult with the Bureau of the Budget concerning the requesting agency's need for additional positions at grades GS-16, 17, and 18. This reserve will take the place of the nearly exhausted presidential reserve set up by previous legislation for allotment by the Prssident.

LASHED AND LOADED—This is the easier way to assault mountains—for the man in the stretcher. He's being roped in by other men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, as they practice preparing an evacuation litter using an ordinary stretcher during training at Rock Creek Ranch.

SADDLING UP — Men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, mountain assault team relax for a moment as other military mountaineers assemble their gear before moving to prepare a mountain training area on Red Creek Ranch. The battalion is the first 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) unit to take guerrilla-type training in the field for six weeks.

National Forest Visits Near the 19 Million Mark

Recreation visits to the national forests of Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska and South Dakota appoached the 19,000,000 mark in 1962, according to Rocky Mountain Regional Forester D.S. Nordwall, Denver.

He said the 16 national forests and 7 national grasslands in the Region set a new high with an increase of almost 3,000,000 over the 1961 record. Of the 1962 total, almost 5,000,000 visits were attributed to camping and picnicking.

An increase in out-of-state visitors was noted. Nordwall cited the increase as a "significant contribution to local communities and the economy of the region."

He again suggested increased mention of the national forests in state, community and private ad vertising materials as an additional inducement to attract the out-of-state visitor.

Hunting and winter sports activities, when coupled with camping and picnicking, have made outdoor recreation on the national forests a year-round business, Nordwall said.

He said the Forest Service is striving to meet the demand for facilities. Each year more forest roads and trails are built to open new areas of these public lands to recreational use.

There were 662 camp and picnic grounds with more than 4,600 camping units and 1,844 picnic units in the region as of June 30, 1962. Nordwall said these will be increased in 1963. As these units are designed for a family of five.

That means that national forest facilities in this region could provide space for every man, woman and child in a city of 32,000.

The national forests of this region also contain thousands of acres of roadless, wild wilderness and primitive areas which have been set aside for their recreational value.

"It is this variety which is the keynote of recreation on the national forests," Nordwall said. "Visitors may enjoy hunting, fishing, winter sports, picnicking, camping, hiking, riding, boating, swimming, sightseeing, organization camping and wilderness travel."

"At the same time," he concluded, "timber is being harvested, livestock is grazing, and our watersheds are producing vital moisture to serve domestic livestock, irrigation and industrial needs."

TRANSFUSIONS

NEW YORK (UPI) — An estimated 1.3 million Americans suffer non-fatal adverse reactions to blood transfusions and drugs each year, according to a survey by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The bulk of the adverse reactions apparently are caused by influenza and other vaccines, the PHS said.

AF Men Ready For Final Step To Commission

Two enlisted men assigned to the Air Force Academy's 7625th USAF Hospital are about to take the final step on a long and difficult road leading to commissions as male nurses.

S.Sgt. Harry D. Watson and airman I. C. Marvin Hale have just received approval from Hq. USAF to complete requirements for their degrees at the Seton School of Nursing.

Both men have accumulated two years of college level work thru a heavy schedule of off-duty study. While keeping up with full time duty at the hospital they managed to pile up more than 60 quarter hours of credit in two years.

Goal of the hard working pair is a commission as a male nurse following completion of the Seton curriculum and passing the Colorado state nursing examinations.

The path being followed by Sgt. Watson and Airman Hale is the same one taken by another hospital enlisted man, Richard Martin. Now a second lieutenant in the Air Force Nurse Corps assigned to Scott AFB, Ill., Martin graduated from Seton in 1960 and received his commission.

Col. Hickman said proudly as he watched his marching troops:

"This is the best battalion I've ever seen. They're proud with a right to be. I've never seen men with as much field time behind them come swinging in like these."

Behind this esprit is a year of working together from advanced individual training to this specialized work preparing for the division's Strategic Army role—fighting aggression anywhere necessary in the world.

Manning the graders and shovels that provided streets and walks were the 7th Engineers. Stringing cable from Ft. Carson for lights and telephones were the 267th Signalmen.

Six or seven men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, communications section laid "4½ to 5 miles of wire by hand," said Pfc. Preston Wiggs. Connecting these tentacles was the field switchboard which is manned day and night.

The battalion communications experts also maintain two, 5-kilowatt generator power plants which use up "90 per cent of what gas we have," commented Capt. Harold Evans, battalion supply officer.

Capt. Robert Barkett and Spec. 6 Harold Van Horn dressed cactus wounds and blisters and swabbed sore throats on sick calls. Medical aid men travel with the infantry.

"The only chickens I'd ever seen were on a plate," meditated Evans, reflecting on the strange tasks given to a logistics officer. He referred to his mission of providing 300 pounds of feed for 200 chickens and 10 horses.

The chickens are game for the survival traps and snares with which the infantrymen learn to live off the land, guerrilla style.

Gen. Heintges, after a demonstration, declared the improvising of field gear to pack equipment "fantastic."

KEEP 'EM ROLLING—Men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, check out a jeep in the field at Red Creek Ranch where these 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) soldiers are taking guerilla-type training for six weeks. One modern innovation allowed is a heated tent to help mechanics keep their vehicles rolling.

SNARE TECHNIQUE—Sgt. 1.C. Wilbur Herrington has an attentive audience as he points out to two men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, how to devise a looped snare as one means of finding field rations. The battalion is part of the Strategic Army Command's 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Ft. Carson.

HOW ITS DONE—Pfc. Donald Gangelhoff of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, mountain assault team shows other battalion members how to come down a cliff fast and safely via a seat rappel. He loosens the rope, kicks out and floats 30 feet down at a time. This climbing instruction is part of six weeks' training 25 miles south of Ft. Carson on Red Creek Ranch.

High Level Grades Allocated By Civil Service

The Civil Service Commission has allocated to Federal agencies several hundred positions at grades GS-16, 17, and 18, under authority of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962.

Of these, 450 positions were authorized under the increased quote set by Congress: 30 in grade GS-18, 92 in GS-17, and 328 in GS-16.

Ninety, or more than one fourth, of the GS-16 quota positions allocated will be used by the commission to promote that number of the 295 GS-15 hearing examiners whose jobs have been found allocable to GS-16. An additional nine GS-17 jobs will be used to promote chief-hearing examiners with authorized staffs of 10 or more hearing examiners whose jobs are allocable to GS-16.

Besides raising the numerical limitation, the new act exempts from the quota top - level positions of professional engineers primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the natural and physical sciences and medicine. This permitted the commission to approve an additional 142 top - level allocations. Of this number, nine are in GS-18, 37 in GS-17, and 96 in GS-16.

In addition to these 142, 105 scientific and engineering positions that were in the top grades before the new law was enacted have been removed by the commission from the quota restrictions. The total number of non-quota positions is expected to increase when additional departments, such as defense, have completed review of their needs and submit their requests to the commission.

In taking the actions, duties and responsibilities of each position were weighed by the commission. The total number of positions allocated took into account the number of spaces recaptured when a position already in grade GS-16 or GS-17 was up - graded, as well as the new spaces made available under the quota by the movement of exempted positions out from under the quota. Each agency received individual notification of the action taken by the commission on its requests. The majority of the new actions, 77 per cent, involved positions in the competitive service.

The commission has established a reserve of 100 top-level spaces to be used for new programs or new agencies established after Jan. 1, 1963. In allocating positions from this reserve, the commission will consult with the Bureau of the Budget concerning the requesting agency's need for additional positions at grades GS-16, 17, and 18. This reserve will take the place of the nearly exhausted presidential reserve set up by previous legislation for allotment by the Prssident.

GETTING DOWN MOUNTAIN — First Lt. Michael Gilmartin tries his hand at rappeling on Red Creek Ranch during the 1st Battalion's field session. Gilmartin tries out the technique of getting down a steep mountainside on a 30-foot cliff. First Lt. William Stuffer is chief instructor for the mountain assault team.

LASHED AND LOADED—This is the easier way to assault mountains—for the man in the stretcher. He's being roped in by other men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, as they practice preparing an evacuation litter using an ordinary stretcher during training at Rock Creek Ranch.

SADDLING UP — Men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, mountain assault team relax for a moment as other military mountaineers assemble their gear before moving to prepare a mountain training area on Red Creek Ranch. The battalion is the first 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) unit to take guerrilla-type training in the field for six weeks.

Corpus Christi Scouts Hold Blue And Gold Dinner

Cub Scout Pack 21, of the Corpus Christi School, recently held its annual Blue and Gold dinner in the school hall. Presentation of awards was as follows.

Den 4 — Fred Gile, Wolf badge, gold arrow Wolf and silver arrow Wolf; Lance Van Zaut, Bear badge, gold arrow Bear, service star; Michael Ueine, service star; Robert Pulak, service star; Mark Leiker, Bear badge.

Den 5 — Douglas Bell, Bobcat pin.

Webelos shoulder patches were presented to Michael Fisher, John Murray, William Weege, Bruce Wisherchen, Tim Hoiles, Marron, Gerald Vizvary, Richard Nareich, Joe Verels, Thomas Patzstuck and Michael Soloman. Den chiefs cords went to Dan Victory, Paul Depatie, Mark Hesse and John Madden. Den chief service stars were presented to Ven Marron, Jon Hesse and Billy Bertschy.

Special recognition was given the den mothers and assistant den mothers for the success of the pack. The evening's program was concluded with a magician's show.

Charles F. Diggs Dies Saturday

Charles F. Diggs, 1820 N. Chestnut St., a retired farmer, died Saturday at a local hospital.

A resident of Colorado Springs since 1919, Mr. Diggs was born July 30, 1884 in Des Moines, Iowa.

Mr. Diggs is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lelia Diggs, Colorado Springs; two daughters, Mrs. Opal Johnson and Mrs. Ruth Jenkins, both of Colorado Springs; five sons, Carl Diggs, Kenneth Diggs, and Charles Diggs Jr., all of Colorado Springs, Harvey Diggs, Coffeville, Kan., and Cecil Diggs, of Turner, Ore.; 26 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mr. Diggs will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Law Mortuary with Dr. W. G. Schaefer officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

National Forest Visits Near the 19 Million Mark

Recreation visits to the national forests of Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska and South Dakota approached the 19,000,000 mark in 1962, according to Rocky Mountain Regional Forester D.S. Nordwall, Denver.

He said the 16 national forests and 7 national grasslands in the Region set a new high with an increase of almost 3,000,000 over the 1961 record. Of the 1962 total, almost 5,000,000 visits were attributed to camping and picnicking.

An increase in out-of-state visitors was noted. Nordwall cited the increase as a "significant contribution to local communities and the economy of the region."

He again suggested increased mention of the national forests in state, community and private advertising materials as an additional inducement to attract the out-of-state visitor.

Hunting and winter sports activities, when coupled with camping and picnicking, have made outdoor recreation on the national forests a year-round business, Nordwall said.

He said the Forest Service is striving to meet the demand for facilities. Each year more forest roads and trails are built to open new areas of these public lands to recreational use.

There were 662 camp and picnic grounds with more than 4,600 camping units and 1,844 picnic units in the region as of June 30, 1962. Nordwall said these will be increased in 1963. As these units are designed for a family of five.

That means that national forest facilities in this region could provide space for every man, woman and child in a city of 32,000.

The national forests of this region also contain thousands of acres of roadless, wild wilderness and primitive areas which have been set aside for their recreational value.

"It is this variety which is the keynote of recreation on the national forests," Nordwall said. "Visitors may enjoy hunting, fishing, winter sports, picnicking, camping, hiking, riding, boating, swimming, sightseeing, organization camping and wilderness travel."

"At the same time," he concluded, "timber is being harvested, livestock is grazing, and our watersheds are producing vital moisture to serve domestic livestock, irrigation and industrial needs."

TRANSFUSIONS

NEW YORK (UPI) — An estimated 1.3 million Americans suffer non-fatal adverse reactions to blood transfusions and drugs each year, according to a survey by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The bulk of the adverse reactions apparently are caused by influenza and other vaccines, the PHS said.

AF Men Ready For Final Step To Commission

Two enlisted men assigned to the Air Force Academy's 7625th USAF Hospital are about to take the final step on a long and difficult road leading to commissions as male nurses.

S.Sgt. Harry D. Watson and airman I. C. Marvin Hale have just received approval from Hq. USAF to complete requirements for their degrees at the Seton School of Nursing.

Both men have accumulated two years of college level work thru a heavy schedule of off-duty study. While keeping up with full time duty at the hospital they managed to pile up more than 60 quarter hours of credit in two years.

Goal of the hard working pair is a commission as a male nurse following completion of the Seton curriculum and passing the Colorado state nursing examination.

The path being followed by Sgt. Watson and Airman Hale is the same one taken by another hospital enlisted man, Richard Martin. Now a second lieutenant in the Air Force Nurse Corps assigned to Scott AFB, Ill., Martin graduated from Seton in 1960 and received his commission.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The Conscientious Objector

A friend has asked our opinion of the conscientious objectors who refuse military service on behalf of their country. The question was specifically asked of us for editorial rather than television response and so we have reserved it for this space.

It is popular, these days, to deride such persons; to accuse them of non-patriotism, of being slackers, of aiding and abetting the foes of freedom. And to our mind, such accusation is, in itself, a part of the near war-hysteria we see and feel in so many places.

First of all, we go back in time to the conditions existing in Germany before World War I. We can recall how Kaiser Wilhelm II began a universal draft of the young men in his country, and how many men who did not willingly submit to this draft were called "draft dodgers" and "traitors."

A number of these fine young men fled Germany and came to America. They were welcomed by patriotic citizens who assured them that America was a "land of liberty" where the right of the individual was greater than the apparent military requirements of the state.

They were told that in America, they would NEVER be drafted. All they had to do here was to volunteer. If they didn't volunteer, that was the end of it.

We recall what happened, as most of our readers recall. In World War I and again in World War II, we set aside our principles and our traditions and invoked a draft. But in each case, the draft was a "temporary" expedient, turned to for war-time only. After the war, we were assured, no such thing as a draft would be tolerated. We were suspicious of large standing armies and of politicians who would demand them.

But after World War II, we began to see the influence of the political power holders who began to clamor, not for a war-time draft, but for a peace-time draft to be called "Universal Military Training." Conservatives in this country united to oppose this concept.

But since that time, we have had the Korean war and a score of near wars in various places, not to mention the U.N. military actions. So, now we have come full circle. And the curious thing is that the conservatives who once challenged the whole idea of universal draft, are now in the vanguard of those who cry "disloyalty" when any individual says that he is a "conscientious objector."

Our own views haven't changed. We believe, unalterably, in the individual rights of man. We believe that men drafted into the military make less than satisfactory soldiers. The experience in Korea, highlighted by some of the findings of the eminent military surgeon, Major Meyer, helps underscore our thinking. But whether draftees make good soldiers or not is beside the point.

We believe that the right of each individual to marshal his own life and his own life's energies is a right that cannot morally be put aside by any government for any reason. We think that compelling a man to serve in the military or anywhere else against his will is a case of involuntary servitude.

We are of the view that a man who refuses to enter the military for religious reasons or, for that matter, for any other reasons, is on very sound moral ground.

We know of some men who have willingly gone to prison rather than violate their personal philosophic or spiritual convictions. We honor these men, as we would honor any man with the courage to stand up against an evil law and abide by the principles in which he believes.

In short, we do not believe in slavery, in the draft or in any kind of involuntary servitude. We believe that if a military threat is real, there will always be enough volunteers to face up to it. And we further believe that if the military threat is not real, the draft places in the hands of politicians an unholy weapon by means of which they can enslave the citizens.

We believe in freedom and not in slavery.

Good and Bad

Experience helps to show that most of us are not nearly as bad as our enemies believe, nor nearly as good as we have convinced ourselves we are.

Economic Realism

With the exception of a few die-hard union dues - payers, and their labor bosses, the American people are fed up with union agitation, strikes, picketing, threats, and physical violence.

But the danger is that, in anger and out of patience, the government will be invoked to clamp down on unions and deal with them precisely as they have been dealing with their victims.

Don't the unions deserve just that kind of treatment? Possibly some of the worst of the union racketeers deserve worse than this, but that is not the point. The economy does not deserve that kind of treatment, either from unions or from those who would now punish unions. And out of recognition of what is at stake here, we should be careful not to make ourselves a party to a reaction simply because it appears to be justified.

We must contend that the single reason for the existence of any union is economic ignorance. And therefore, if we are correct, the single solution to the problem is economic enlightenment.

We can almost hear our critics mouthing their disgust. "You've got to take action!" they are saying. "You've got to pass a law. You've got to fight fire with fire!"

Let us admit that this could be done. But it would not bring a solution to the problem. It would simply redefine the problem along other lines.

It would bring the government into the picture with a larger hand and cause a larger incursion against human freedom in the business area.

What is really at stake is a free economy. And there is no way we can have a free economy by enslaving any part of it. True, unions have tried to enslave management. They have invoked a terrible legal curse on all business by obtaining legislation which permits them to disrupt business, and makes it possible for them to escape responsibility for their actions in many cases.

But enslavement in return will not help the economy, either. If more are prevented by law from joining an organization of their choice; or if men who are employed are prevented from quitting their jobs by the invocation of some kind of legal restraint, then the shackles of enslavement will still be present.

Again, permit us to suggest that education is the only way. We know it is slow. But it, at least, will get there. It may seem a tortoise to those who want to get there right now. But the slow and steady progress made by reliance on reason is the slow and steady progress that wins the race in the end.

When a large segment of the population really believes that capitalism is evil and that managers, by and large, are a special breed of exploiter, they will act on this belief. Restrain them in one way and their belief will crop up elsewhere. Restrain them totally and enterprise will cease.

Their beliefs must be improved. Who can do this? Each man must do it for himself. And this is the discouraging thing about it, for there are so many who are quick to say: "But only a few would be willing to try."

Then we will be asked: "Do you think you can change human nature?"

And we will answer, "Not for a minute."

We don't want to change human nature, we simply want people to understand the economic facts. When enough people, including the working people, understand how the economy works, we can rely on their human nature to invariably seek the course of action that will result in the greatest gains for themselves.

This is the beauty of economic realism. When the facts are known, you can rely on the individual to do the thing which will result in the greatest gain for himself.

When workers learn that unions, instead of assisting them, are actually at the root of many of their problems, then they will refuse to belong to unions and they will refuse to bite the hand that really is helping them. In short, they won't strike. And when workers refuse to strike, the problems arising from strikes will cease.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 155: "Would the common market be good or bad?"

There is no question but what a common market would be good if it were really a common market, but what is called the common market is really not a common market at all, but a European economic community usually miscalled the common market.

The "common market" includes France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

It is, instead of being a common market, surely a politically - controlled market.

Because it controls tariffs and because England has free trade with its own commonwealth and would lose the right to have free trade with its own commonwealth, England hesitates to go into the so - called "common market," or European economic community.

In 1957 a treaty made in Rome made it a legal foundation for the common market. To counterbalance this, the British trading bloc, known as the European free trade area, was formed, including seven countries: Australia, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

The so - called "common market" sets the price of agriculture and what can be shipped between different nations in their own group. It is just a larger political unit attempting to regulate prices. It is more power in the hands of a few politicians.

What the world needs is a real common market that doesn't interfere with all people in the world having the right to trade and thus help establish values. Trade is a great civilizer of mankind. It makes people respect the equal rights of others. Trade that is not interfered with is always voluntary and both parties to a voluntary exchange believe they are benefited. For this reason they become friendly and not war - like.

The great economist, Frederic Bastiat, years ago said: "Where goods do not cross borderlines because of protective tariffs (that is, because of interference by government), soldiers will." In other words, where you don't have a common market you are bound to have wars. And interfering with the free exchange of goods greatly reduces production of consumable goods. And what is not produced cannot be consumed.

Whether England will desert its commonwealth and go into the European economic community, erroneously called the "common market," is in question.

The "common market" simply gives the politicians more power.

DeGaulle objects to England coming in and retaining the right to have free trade with its own commonwealth. If England and all of its commonwealth would come in and they would not attempt to regulate what each nation or each individual or group could produce and the price at which it could be sold, and even regulate the price of farm products, it would be a great thing. But when they attempt to regulate prices of farm products, minerals, steel, and practically everything, it is a dangerous step if freedom and free trade are the objectives.

We will attempt to answer any question pertaining to the means used to improve the well - being of all mankind on this earth. The means, of course, predetermine the results.

CONGO POLICY

To the Editor:

During the holiday season, the armies of the United Nations gave a Christmas present of blood, pillage, rape, and slaughter to the people of Katanga, whose only crime was friendship to the U.S.A. and desiring to be free. This aggression and these atrocities were paid for with our money, urged on by our State Department and defended by official government spokesmen without consulting the American people. Our planes transported the killers to their victims.

We can do nothing for Katanga now, though we may shed a tear for a tragedy as old as man: the death of a people's freedom at the muzzle of a gun and the point of a bayonet. But we can resolve that it shall never happen again. We can demand a complete investigation by Congress of our Congo policy. We can take warning from the fact that the disarmament proposals now being negotiated by our government would place a monopoly of armed force in U.N. hands. We can defend our freedom by never again giving our hope and our trust to an organization capable of such a crime against humanity and the peace of the world.

RED INK

To the Editor:

Why become shackled with still another tentacle of the octopus of big, bureaucratic government? Why let it get its "arm" around our educational system? The encyclopedia says that when the octopus is frightened, it gives off a black, inky liquid. But our bureaucrats are not frightened so about all they'll give off will be a red, inky liquid (and plenty of it), judging from past performances.

Along this line I would like to present some excerpts from an article by Dr. Ernest L. Wilkinson, president of Brigham Young University, on the federal-aid-to-education issue. He says:

"In my judgment the most important reason against federal aid to education is that the growing centralization of government power constitutes a very serious threat to individual freedom. . ."

Furthermore, he goes on to say: "I, for one, as an educator do not want my profession to contribute to the fulfillment of Lenin's prophecy that he would cause us to spend ourselves in bankruptcy. We are already too near to its fulfillment. Nor do I want to contribute to the fulfillment of Khrushchev's prediction: 'I am convinced,' he said, 'that tomorrow the Red flag will fly over the United States. But we will not fly that flag. It will be the American people themselves.'

"As an educator I can think of nothing that in one step would more nearly fulfill this prediction of our becoming a kindred socialist republic than for us to surrender our local control of education.

"Without grass-root support, the cause of education in America is defeated, and no transfusion of federal greenbacks will remedy the irrevocable loss to our society. But I am fully confident that the American people will not allow this terrible loss. Rembering their sacred heritage and tradition, they will continue to fight for strong and high-quality public schools based on local fiscal jurisdiction, bold and imaginative planning and grass - roots control. . ."

If you too are against this thing, fine. But that's not enough. If we are going to accomplish anything we must let our congressmen know we are against it—and do that soon.

CHURCH LEADERS

To the Editor:

I wish to make use of this means to convey my strong support in behalf of the National Council of Churches, particularly in reference to their sponsorship of the church leaders of Russia now touring our country. Such a tour affords all Christians the excellent opportunity to extend the right hand of Christian fellowship both in spirit and in fact. A cordial welcome and genuine hospitality should be trademarks of any Christian person regardless of the race, creed, or nationality of guests in the community or area. Last summer, thirteen outstanding Christians had the opportunity to visit Russia at the invitation of these same church leaders who this day are visiting our country. Such exchange visits are extremely valuable in building the bridges that will help to span prejudice and mis-information with good will and increased insight.

To be sure, there will be numerous cries of "communist" with regard to the church leaders of Russia. Most of these cries will come from persons who act out of "communist fear phobia" which is only too characteristic of our day. A few cries will come from persons who, in sound sincerity of conviction, question the wisdom of such international exchanges.

I wish simply to indicate that the presence of the church leaders of Russia in our state affords excellent opportunity for strong, supportive Christian comment and action.

Few Juvenile Delinquents

GEORGE BOARDMAN, PH.D.

From time to time I am asked to comment on the so-called juvenile delinquency problem. Generally speaking, I avoid this issue because, as far as I am concerned, no problem exists in this carelessly used category. There is only the problem of totally irresponsible parents and the totally irresponsible parents are not inclined to read what I have to say except by accident.

The subject of juvenile delinquency is big business, as far as government is concerned. Solve this problem and you immediately throw a few hundred thousand bureaucrats out of work. Solve the problem and several hundred thousand busybodies who should be attending to their own responsibilities will be without their committees and meetings and other childishly foolish activities.

A minor child is not legally responsible for his or her actions; hence, the responsibility rests with the parents and the expression juvenile delinquency is a misnomer and means nothing. Since the parents of children are responsible for the acts of their children, the only juvenile delinquents are minor children without parents or guardians.

About twenty years ago, a justice of the peace in Southern California encountered a rapidly growing crime situation involving minors. He issued an order making it mandatory for parents to appear in ...s court as co-defendants. The names of the parents were made a matter of public record and when a well known socialite was charged with vandalism, the justice of the peace knew no peace. Hordes of psychologists and experts on child behavior descended upon the judge. Well known parents began applying pressures on the judge, but he was adamant. "If one of my own children breaks a law I will stand trial with my child," he said and he refused to back down. Oddly enough, he was also re-elected to the office a few months later and in less than a year a detail of a dozen law enforcement officers who handled juvenile crime was reduced to a single officer.

When I was very young, I had the good fortune of knowing a fine man who became the most famous police officer in his city. I listened intently when he told tales about his work and experiences to my parents and learned that this officer invariably escorted minors involved in wrong - doing to their parents. I remember that he occasionally encountered a parent who said he was too busy to leave the store or the office and that the officer should take the child to the "station." When my friend explained that he would also take the parent to the station, with the child, the parents always found the time to discuss the matter right then and there and to decide upon the punishment for the child.

The space provided for this column does not permit me to document experiences with which I was personally involved for more than two decades. Since none of the young people with whom I worked were the juveniles of delinquent parents, it follows that all of the parents were responsible.

Logic tells us that no juvenile delinquency problem exists except in cases of minor children without parents or guardians because the sole responsibility rests with the parents and guardians of children who violate laws. Haul the parents and guardians into court as co-defendants with the minor children for whom they are responsible and watch what happens to crimes and minor violations involving children.

Government has no intention of solving what it calls the juvenile delinquency problem. There are too many jobs and too many votes involved. When parents decide to become intellectually mature and face their own responsibilities, the number of crimes involving minors will be reduced in direct relation to the number of parents who become decent, self - responsible human beings.

Now don't start telling me about isolated instances which might prove my premise to be wrong in your opinion because I'll be able to dig up a topper and we'll wind up facing the fact that parental responsibility would effect a cure nine times out of ten. Let's worry about the 10 per cent after we activate the 90 per cent remedy. PERSONALLY.

Good luck and good health to you, in freedom.

Economic Views

'New Speak' Changes Words

By LAWRENCE FERTIG

In George Orwell's famous novel "1984" — a frightening account of life under an iron - fisted communist tyranny — the historical record of the past is periodically rewritten by the ruling commissars. They order some events completely expunged from history and others radically altered to suit their propaganda objectives. In addition, the meaning of important words is fundamentally changed under a system of "Newspeak". So people come to believe that "war is peace", "freedom is slavery", "ignorance is strength".

This kind of brain-washing can not happen here of course — as long as constitutional guarantees of free speech are enforced and economic power is not concentrated in Washington. But it is interesting to note how the Orwellian technique has been adopted even for our times.

The word which New Frontier officials and economists would like to expunge or completely change is the plain, simple word "deficit". If they are successful will the words "federal deficit" some day be defined in economic textbooks as "fiscal responsibility —a method of achieving prosperity for everyone?"

OMISSION

In my column last November, I pointed out the first significant effort towards this planned objective by Professor - Emeritus Alvin H. Hansen of Harvard University, who for more than a generation has urged more federal spending and bigger deficits. In an essay published last year he said: "As a nation we Americans firmly believe in the expanding use of credit by families, businesses and even state and local governments. But for some strange reason we refuse to view with the same munificence deficit financing by the government."

Hansen adroitly concealed the vast difference between business borrowing and government deficits. Corporations borrow to improve productive facilities, to produce more and better goods or services, to operate more efficiently and thus (they hope) to make a profit. The government borrows in large measure in order to increase federal payrolls, to grant more subsidies (like farm subsidies), to give more aid to foreign nations, or to make armaments like missiles (essential as the last item may be). Business borrowing encourages economic growth and future employment and improves everyone's standard of living. Government deficit - borrowing certainly does not have this effect. Business borrowers are subject to the laws of the market. They must earn a financial return on borrowed money to remain credit - worthy. The federal government is under no such restriction. Finally, the federal government can repay the loan by printing money. Business officials would go to jail for that.

After Hansen stated the main theme, others quickly followed. A few weeks ago, Walter Heller, Chief of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, deplored the public's attitude towards deficits and ascribed it to our "basic puritan ethic". Plainly this ethic is old - hat, according to Dr. Heller, and encourages "a failure to understand" the importance of government deficits. Another government official, Budget Director Kermit Gordon, told a Senate committee in January that "a balanced budget would lead to increased unemployment, higher taxes and a general economic decline". Coming from a man who is supposed to encourage fiscal responsibility such a statement has frightening implications.

HOWLER

It remained for Yale Professor James Tobin, formerly a member of Mr. Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers, to make the boldest statement and the biggest howler. Recently, in an article in the New Republic advocating big government deficits he said: "If you would like the federal deficit to be smaller, the deficits of business must be bigger."

By "deficits of business" Mr. Tobin does not mean business losses, the commonly accepted meaning. He means business borrowing for productive purposes — a twisted interpretation and a pure semantic trick. Also note that he equates wasteful government spending for any purposes with business borrowing for the more efficient production of goods and services for the public. He equates spending with investment. He does not allow for the fact that if government spending were cut and government deficits eliminated, the burden on business and on the consumer would be less and the chances for economic growth would be greater.

This attempt to change the meaning of a simple word is being thwarted by the common sense of the American public. They know that a deficit is a deficit.

Managed Debt

From Life Lines

Instead of trying to pay off the debt, our federal planners are trying to "manage" the debt. The task of management is not simple. In fact, it is staggering. Each year the U.S. Treasury must reschedule more than a quarter of the 300 billion dollar debt. This is done either by putting up cash or by trading new securities for old.

Thousands of federal employees who might be more productively employed are engaged in this immense operation. The cash money necessary for managing the debt is not being spent to reduce the debt. It is raised by borrowing more money. In only six years out of the past 32 fiscal years has there been a treasury surplus to provide any help in this task. The other years have shown deficits.

These Days

A Tale of Two Cities

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Tucked away on the financial pages in widely separated columns the other day were two sets of statistics. They at once suggested the title of an old story, "A Tale of Two Cities."

The statistics pointed to a glowing tale of automobile prosperity and a depressing drama of steel gloom — and the cities, of course, were Detroit and Pittsburgh. (I am using these names symbolically, for I realize that both cars and steel are manufactured in many places thruout the land.)

The automotive column led off with the record profit of $1.4 billion which accrued in 1962 to General Motors. It also set before the reader the luscious figures that signalized the big Chrysler comeback. Ford and the American Motors Company had done superlatively well, too. The 1962 automotive cash dividends jumped 19 per cent over the figures for 1961. But looking in another column at the 1962 steel company dividends, there was a drop of 5 per cent from the figures for the previous year.

Comparing the two sets of statistics, one couldn't help but think of that day last April when President Kennedy blasted the steel companies for their attempt to add $6 a ton to their prices. The presidential implication was that the steel companies were trying to gouge the rest of the economy.

FAVORED

But what seems to have happened, during the past ten months, is that one set of dividend receivers, the stockholders in the automobile companies, have been favored over another set, the stockholders in steel. What the President did, on that day in April, was to favor Detroit at the expense of Pittsburgh, which is something that no one who has been elected to represent all the people should have done.

Right at this point I want to say that I have nothing against the automobile companies. It always makes me happy when they are prospering. When Charlie Wilson made that supposedly terrible remark about "What's good for General Motors is good for the country" he was uttering a sentiment that in nine cases out of ten holds true. For it is incontestable that the entire U.S. economy does well when Detroit has a fine fine year.

But even tho the automobile companies deserve good things, would it have hurt the U.S. economy as a whole if they had made a little less money last year and the steel companies had made a little more? Obviously, the economy would have been strengthened if some of the profits that flowed into Detroit had been diverted, instead, to Pittsburgh.

Economists can argue, of course, that if the steel companies had raised the price of carbon steel to Detroit, the increase would subsequently have been added into the price of the automobile to the ultimate consumer, in 1963 if not in 1962. This, however, is questionable. For no matter what the believers in "administered prices" say to the contrary, automobile prices are competitively set. Detroit, today, may give "more car for the money," but, with Volkswagens coming in from overseas, it is not likely to try to get more money for the car.

IMPROVEMENT

Indeed, it is even questionable that Pittsburgh could have kept its own tonnage price of steel at the proposed higher level for very long. Steel competition from abroad would almost certainly have prevented it. But let us assume that the steel companies had been able to command a 10-lb more in cash for their product from the automobile companies thruout 1962. The increase in income could only have helped the steel men to plow something back into the improvement of their plant. The money-saving oxygen process and other technological advances would have spread to a few more steel mills. This would have made the American economy sounder at bottom, and more capable of serving the automobile companies at a cheaper price for steel later on.

What happened last April, when the steel companies backed down in face of the White House threat, might be likened to a blood transfusion in which the weaker party gave up some of his precious life fluid to the stronger. It was actually a transfusion-in-reverse. It did not result in anything beyond the subsidization of one set of stockholders at the expense of another. Detroit won and Pittsburgh lost. Instead of helping the economy as a whole, the effect was to create an imbalance. Now the steel companies need a transfusion, but who is there to give it to them? They will have to struggle out of their state of shock the best they can.

Industry in Saskatchewan

By AMBROSE HILLS

There is little doubt but that the province of Saskatchewan will soon be in a position to give other Canadian provinces a run for their money as far as economic expansion is concerned. When the South Saskatchewan power and irrigation dam is completed, one of the big roadblocks to both agricultural and industrial expansion will have been partially removed.

Speaking at Lethbridge, recently, D. L. Campbell, vice president of British American Oil, suggested that by 1981 "non-agricultural activities will account for 70 to 75 per cent of the province's net value of output."

Mr. Campbell paid tribute to the people of Saskatchewan for their persistence in the long hard struggle "from prairie trails to pipelines."

These words of praise were not the smooth pitch of an industrialist to butter up the people of the province in which his company has a large investment. It was a sincere tribute to a hard-working and determined prairie population; because Mr. Campbell went on to take a forthright crack at socialism — hardly designed to make him especially popular in a province with the only socialist government on the continent.

He pointed out that governments do not create wealth; that the so - called benefits governments distribute are for the most part paid out of the taxed earnings of free enterprise. He said, "Capitalism can properly claim to have contributed more to the public good than many of the earlier socialists ever dreamed of."

These assertions may cause some of the doctrinaire socialists in Saskatchewan to foam at the mouth. Nevertheless, the vast majority of the citizens of that province are not doctrinaire socialists, and they will recognize that it was the quality of the people rather than the political theories of their government that made a period of real expansion possible.

Saskatchewan has had a difficult struggle. Canadians everywhere will hope that the progress Mr. Campbell foresees will, in fact, come to pass.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The Conscientious Objector

A friend has asked our opinion of the conscientious objectors who refuse military service on behalf of their country. The question was specifically asked of us for editorial rather than television response and so we have reserved it for this space.

It is popular, these days, to deride such persons; to accuse them of non-patriotism, of being slackers, of aiding and abetting the foes of freedom. And to our mind, such accusation is, in itself, a part of the near war-hysteria we see and feel in so many places.

First of all, we go back in time to the conditions existing in Germany before World War I. We can recall how Kaiser Wilhelm II began a universal draft of the young men in his country, and how many men who did not willingly submit to this draft were called "draft dodgers" and "traitors."

A number of these fine young men fled Germany and came to America. They were welcomed by patriotic citizens who assured them that America was a "land of liberty" where the right of the individual was greater than the apparent military requirements of the state.

They were told that in America, they would NEVER be drafted. All they had to do here was to volunteer. If they didn't volunteer, that was the end of it.

We recall what happened, as most of our readers recall. In World War I and again in World War II, we set aside our principles and our traditions and invoked a draft. But in each case, the draft was a "temporary" expedient, turned to for war-time only. After the war, we were assured, no such thing as a draft would be tolerated. We were suspicious of large standing armies and of politicians who would demand them.

But after World War II, we began to see the influence of the political power holders who began to clamor, not for a war-time draft, but for a peace-time draft to be called "Universal Military Training." Conservatives in this country united to oppose this concept.

But since that time, we have had the Korean war and a score of near wars in various places, not to mention the U.N. military actions. So, now we have come full circle. And the curious thing is that the conservatives who once challenged the whole idea of universal draft, are now in the vanguard of those who cry "disloyalty" when any individual says that he is a "conscientious objector."

Our own views haven't changed. We believe, unalterably, in the individual rights of man. We believe that men drafted into the military make less than satisfactory soldiers. The experience in Korea, highlighted by some of the findings of the eminent military surgeon, Major Meyer, helps underscore our thinking. But whether draftees make good soldiers or not is beside the point.

We believe that the right of each individual to marshal his own life and his own life's energies is a right that cannot morally be put aside by any government for any reason. We think that compelling a man to serve in the military or anywhere else against his will is a case of involuntary servitude.

We are of the view that a man who refuses to enter the military for religious reasons or, for that matter, for any other reasons, is on very sound moral ground.

We know of some men who have willingly gone to prison rather than violate their personal philosophic or spiritual convictions. We honor these men, as we would honor any man with the courage to stand up against an evil law and abide by the principles in which he believes.

In short, we do not believe in slavery, in the draft or in any kind of involuntary servitude. We believe that if a military threat is real, there will always be enough volunteers to face up to it. And we further believe that if the military threat is not real, the draft places in the hands of politicians an unholy weapon by means of which they can enslave the citizens.

We believe in freedom and not in slavery.

Good and Bad

Experience helps to show that most of us are not nearly as bad as our enemies believe, nor nearly as good as we have convinced ourselves we are.

Economic Realism

With the exception of a few die-hard union dues - payers, and their labor bosses, the American people are fed up with union agitation, strikes, picketing, threats, and physical violence.

But the danger is that, in anger and out of patience, the government will be invoked to clamp down on unions and deal with them precisely as they have been dealing with their victims.

Don't the unions deserve just that kind of treatment? Possibly some of the worst of the union racketeers deserve worse than this, but that is not the point. The economy does not deserve that kind of treatment, either from unions or from those who would now punish unions. And out of recognition of what is at stake here, we should be careful not to make ourselves a party to a reaction simply because it appears to be justified.

We must contend that the single reason for the existence of any union is economic ignorance. And therefore, if we are correct, the single solution to the problem is economic enlightenment.

We can almost hear our critics mouthing their disgust. "You've got to take action!" they are saying. "You've got to pass a law. You've got to fight fire with fire!"

Let us admit that this could be done. But it would not bring a solution to the problem. It would simply redefine the problem along other lines.

What is really at stake is a free economy. And there is no way we can have a free economy by enslaving any part of it. True, unions have tried to enslave management. They have invoked a terrible legal curse on all business by obtaining legislation which permits them to disrupt business, and makes it possible for them to escape responsibility for their actions in many cases.

But enslavement in return will not help the economy, either. If men are prevented by law from joining an organization of their choice; or if men who are employed are prevented from quitting their jobs by the invocation of some kind of legal restraint, then the shackles of enslavement will still be present.

Again, permit us to suggest that education is the only way. We know it is slow. But it, at least, will get there. It may seem a tortoise to those who want to get there right now. But the slow and steady progress made by reliance on reason is the slow and steady progress that wins the race in the end.

When a large segment of the population really believes that capitalism is evil and that managers, by and large, are a special breed of exploiter, they will act on this belief. Restrain them in one way and their belief will crop up elsewhere. Restrain them totally and enterprise will cease.

Their beliefs must be improved. Who can do this? Each man must do it for himself. And this is the discouraging thing about it, for there are so many who are quick to say: "But only a few would be willing to try."

Then we will be asked: "Do you think you can change human nature?"

And we will answer, "Not for a minute."

We don't want to change human nature, we simply want people to understand the economic facts. When enough people, including the working people, understand how the economy works, we can rely on their human nature to invariably seek the course of action that will result in the greatest gains for themselves.

This is the beauty of economic realism. When the facts are known, you can rely on the individual to do the thing which will result in the greatest gain for himself.

When workers learn that unions, instead of assisting them, are actually at the root of many of their problems, then they will refuse to belong to unions and they will refuse to bite the hand that really is helping them. In short, they won't strike. And when workers refuse to strike, the problems arising from strikes will cease.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 155: "Would the common market be good or bad?"

There is no question but what a common market would be good if it were really a common market, but what is called the common market is really not a common market at all, but a European economic community usually miscalled the common market.

The "common market" includes France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

It is, instead of being a common market, surely a politically - controlled market.

Because it controls tariffs and because England has free trade with its own commonwealth and would lose the right to have free trade with its own commonwealth, England hesitates to go into the so - called "common market," or European economic community.

In 1957 a treaty made in Rome made it a legal foundation for the common market. To counterbalance this, the British trading bloc, known as the European free trade area, was formed, including seven countries: Australia, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

The so - called "common market" sets the price of agriculture and what can be shipped between different nations in their own group. It is just a larger political unit attempting to regulate prices. It is more power in the hands of a few politicians.

What the world needs is a real common market that doesn't interfere with all people in the world having the right to trade and thus help establish values. Trade is a great civilizer of mankind. It makes people respect the equal rights of others. Trade that is not interfered with is always voluntary and both parties to a voluntary exchange believe they are benefited. For this reason they become friendly and not war - like.

The great economist, Frederic Bastiat, years ago said: "Where goods do not cross borderlines because of protective tariffs (that is, because of interference by government), soldiers will." In other words, where you don't have a common market you are bound to have wars. And interfering with the free exchange of goods greatly reduces production of consumable goods. And what is not produced cannot be consumed.

Whether England will desert its commonwealth and go into the European economic community, erroneously called the "common market," is in question.

The "common market" simply gives the politicians more power.

DeGaulle objects to England coming in and retaining the right to have free trade with its own commonwealth. If England and all of its commonwealth would come in and they would not attempt to regulate what each nation or each individual or group could produce and the price at which it could be sold, and even regulate the price of farm products, it would be a great thing. But when they attempt to regulate prices of farm products, minerals, steel, and practically everything, it is a dangerous step if freedom and free trade are the objectives.

We will attempt to answer any question pertaining to the means used to improve the well - being of all mankind on this earth. The means, of course, predetermine the results.

CONGO POLICY

To the Editor:

During the holiday season, the armies of the United Nations gave a Christmas present of blood, pillage, rape, and slaughter to the people of Katanga, whose only crime was friendship to the U.S.A. and desiring to be free. This aggression and these atrocities were paid for with our money, urged on by our State Department and defended by official government spokesmen without consulting the American people. Our planes transported the killers to their victims.

We can do nothing for Katanga now, though we may shed a tear for a tragedy as old as man: the death of a people's freedom at the muzzle of a gun and the point of a bayonet. But we can resolve that it shall never happen again. We can demand a complete investigation by Congress of our Congo policy. We can take warning from the fact that the disarmament proposals now being negotiated by our government would place a monopoly of armed force in U.N. hands. We can defend our freedom by never again giving our hope and our trust to an organization capable of such a crime against humanity and the peace of the world.

RED INK

To the Editor:

Why become shackled with still another tentacle of the octopus of big, bureaucratic government? Why let it get its "arm" around our educational system? The encyclopedia says that when the octopus is frightened, it gives off a black, inky liquid. But our bureaucrats are not frightened so about all they'll give off will be a red, inky liquid (and plenty of it), judging from past performances.

Along this line I would like to present some excerpts from an article by Dr. Ernest L. Wilkinson, president of Brigham Young University, on the federal-aid-to-education issue. He says:

"In my judgment the most important reason against federal aid to education is that the growing centralization of government power constitutes a very serious threat to individual freedom. . ."

Furthermore, he goes on to say: "I, for one, as an educator do not want my profession to contribute to the fulfillment of Lenin's prophecy that he would cause us to spend ourselves in bankruptcy. We are already too near to its fulfillment. Nor do I want to contribute to the fulfillment of Khrushchev's prediction: 'I am convinced,' he said, 'that tomorrow the Red flag will fly over the United States. But we will not fly that flag. It will be the American people themselves.'

"As an educator I can think of nothing that in one step would more nearly fulfill this prediction of our becoming a kindred socialist republic than for us to surrender our local control of education.

"Without grass-root support, the cause of education in America is defeated, and no transfusion of federal greenbacks will remedy the irrevocable loss to our society. But I am fully confident that the American people will not allow this terrible loss. Remembering their sacred heritage and tradition, they will continue to fight for strong and high-quality public schools based on local fiscal jurisdiction, bold and imaginative planning and grass - roots control. . ."

If you too are against this thing, fine. But that's not enough. If we are going to accomplish anything we must let our congressmen know we are against it—and do that soon.

CHURCH LEADERS

To the Editor:

I wish to make use of this means to convey my strong support in behalf of the National Council of Churches, particularly in reference to their sponsorship of the church leaders of Russia now touring our country. Such a tour affords all Christians the excellent opportunity to extend the right hand of Christian fellowship both in spirit and in fact. A cordial welcome and genuine hospitality should be trademarks of any Christian person regardless of the race, creed, or nationality of guests in the community or area. Last summer, thirteen outstanding Christians had the opportunity to visit Russia at the invitation of these same church leaders who this day are visiting our country. Such exchange visits are extremely valuable in building the bridges that will help to span prejudice and mis-information with good will and increased insight.

To be sure, there will be numerous cries of "communist" with regard to the church leaders of Russia. Most of these cries will come from persons who act out of "communist fear phobia" which is only too characteristic of our day. A few cries will come from persons who, in sound sincerity of conviction, question the wisdom of such international exchanges.

I wish simply to indicate that the presence of the church leaders of Russia in our state affords excellent opportunity for strong, supportive Christian comment and action.

Few Juvenile Delinquents

GEORGE BOARDMAN, PH.D.

From time to time I am asked to comment on the so-called juvenile delinquency problem. Generally speaking, I avoid this issue because, as far as I am concerned, no problem exists in this carelessly used category. There is only the problem of totally irresponsible parents and the totally irresponsible parents are not inclined to read what I have to say except by accident.

The subject of juvenile delinquency is big business, as far as government is concerned. Solve this problem and you immediately throw a few hundred thousand bureaucrats out of work. Solve the problem and several hundred thousand busybodies who should be attending to their own responsibilities will be without their committees and meetings and other childishly foolish activities.

A minor child is not legally responsible for his or her actions; hence, the responsibility rests with the parents and the expression juvenile delinquency is a misnomer and means nothing. Since the parents of children are responsible for the acts of their children, the only juvenile delinquents are minor children without parents or guardians.

About twenty years ago, a justice of the peace in Southern California encountered a rapidly growing crime situation involving minors. He issued an order making it mandatory for parents to appear in ...is court as co-defendants. The names of the parents were made a matter of public record and when a well known socialite was charged with vandalism, the justice of the peace knew no peace. Hordes of psychologists and experts on child behavior descended upon the judge. Well known parents began applying pressures on the judge, but he was adamant. "If one of my own children breaks a law I will stand trial with my child," he said and he refused to back down. Oddly enough, he was also re-elected to the office a few months later and in less than a year a detail of a dozen law enforcement officers who handled juvenile crime was reduced to a single officer.

When I was very young, I had the good fortune of knowing a fine man who became the most famous police officer in his city. I listened intently when he told tales about his work and experiences to my parents and learned that this officer invariably escorted minors involved in wrong - doing to their parents. I remember that he occasionally encountered a parent who said he was too busy to leave the store or the office and that the officer should take the child to the "station." When my friend explained that he would also take the parent to the station, with the child, the parents always found the time to discuss the matter right then and there and to decide upon the punishment for the child.

The space provided for this column does not permit me to document experiences with which I was personally involved for more than two decades. Since none of the young people with whom I worked were the juveniles of delinquent parents, it follows that all of the parents were responsible.

Logic tells us that no juvenile delinquency problem exists except in cases of minor children without parents or guardians because the sole responsibility rests with the parents and guardians of children who violate laws. Haul the parents and guardians into court as co-defendants with the minor children for whom they are responsible and watch what happens to crimes and minor violations involving children.

Government has no intention of solving what it calls the juvenile delinquency problem. There are too many jobs and too many votes involved. When parents decide to become intellectually mature and face their own responsibilities, the number of crimes involving minors will be reduced in direct relation to the number of parents who become decent, self - responsible human beings.

Now don't start telling me about isolated instances which might prove my premise to be wrong in your opinion because I'll be able to dig up a tapper and we'll wind up facing the fact that parental responsibility would effect a cure nine times out of ten. Let's worry about the 10 per cent after we activate the 90 per cent remedy, PERSONALLY.

Good luck and good health to you, in freedom.

Economic Views

'New Speak' Changes Words

By LAWRENCE FERTIG

In George Orwell's famous novel "1984" — a frightening account of life under an iron - fisted communist tyranny — the historical record of the past is periodically rewritten by the ruling commissars. They order some events completely expunged from history and others radically altered to suit their propaganda objectives. In addition, the meaning of important words is fundamentally changed under a system of "Newspeak". So people come to believe that "war is peace", "freedom is slavery", "ignorance is strength".

This kind of brain-washing can not happen here of course — as long as constitutional guarantees of free speech are enforced and economic power is not concentrated in Washington. But it is interesting to note how the Orwellian technique has been adopted even for our times.

The word which New Frontier officials and economists would like to expunge or completely change is the plain, simple word "deficit". If they are successful will the words "federal deficit" some day be defined in economic textbooks as "fiscal responsibility —a method of achieving prosperity for everyone?"

OMISSION

In my column last November, I pointed out the first significant effort towards this planned objective by Professor - Emeritus Alvin H. Hansen of Harvard University, who for more than a generation has urged more federal spending and bigger deficits. In an essay published last year he said: "As a nation we Americans firmly believe in the expanding use of credit by families, businesses and even state and local governments. But for some strange reason we refuse to view with the same munificence deficit financing by the government."

Hansen adroitly concealed the vast difference between business borrowing and government deficits. Corporations borrow to improve productive facilities, to produce more and better goods or services, to operate more efficiently and thus (they hope) to make a profit. The government borrows in large measure in order to increase federal payrolls, to grant more subsidies (like farm subsidies), to give more aid to foreign nations, or to make armaments like missiles (essential as the last item may be). Business borrowing encourages economic growth and future employment and improves everyone's standard of living. Government deficit - borrowing certainly does not have this effect. Business borrowers are subject to the laws of the market. They must earn a financial return on borrowed money to remain credit - worthy. The federal government is under no such restriction. Finally, the federal government can repay the loan by printing money. Business officials would go to jail for that.

After Hansen stated the main theme, others quickly followed. A few weeks ago, Walter Heller, Chief of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, deplored the public's attitude towards deficits and ascribed it to our "basic puritan ethic". Plainly this ethic is old - hat, according to Dr. Heller, and encourages "a failure to understand" the importance of government deficits. Another government official, Budget Director Kermit Gordon, told a Senate committee in January that "a balanced budget would lead to increased unemployment, higher taxes and a general economic decline". Coming from a man who is supposed to encourage fiscal responsibility such a statement has frightening implications.

HOWLER

It remained for Yale Professor James Tobin, formerly a member of Mr. Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers, to make the boldest statement and the biggest howler. Recently, in an article in the New Republic advocating big government deficits he said: "If you would like the federal deficit to be smaller, the deficits of business must be bigger."

By "deficits of business" Mr. Tobin does not mean business losses, the commonly accepted meaning. He means business borrowing for productive purposes — a twisted interpretation and a pure semantic trick. Also note that he equates wasteful government spending for any purposes with business borrowing for the more efficient production of goods and services for the public. He equates spending with investment. He does not allow for the fact that if government spending were cut and government deficits eliminated, the burden on business and on the consumer would be less and the chances for economic growth would be greater.

This attempt to change the meaning of a simple word is being thwarted by the common sense of the American public. They know that a deficit is a deficit is a deficit.

The statistics pointed to a glowing tale of automobile prosperity and a depressing drama of steel gloom — and the cities, of course, were Detroit and Pittsburgh. (I am using these names symbolically, for I realize that both cars and steel are manufactured in many places thruout the land.)

The automotive column led off with the record profit of $1.4 billion which accrued in 1962 to General Motors. It also set before the reader the luscious figures that signalized the big Chrysler comeback. Ford and the American Motors Company had done superlatively well, too. The 1962 automotive cash dividends jumped 19 per cent over the figures for 1961. But looking in another column at the 1962 steel company dividends, there was a drop of 5 per cent from the figures for the previous year.

Comparing the two sets of statistics, one couldn't help but think of that day last April when President Kennedy blasted the steel companies for their attempt to add $6 a ton to their prices. The presidential implication was that the steel companies were trying to gouge the rest of the economy.

FAVORED

But what seems to have happened, during the past ten months, is that one set of dividend receivers, the stockholders in the automobile companies, have been favored over another set, the stockholders in steel. What the President did, on that day in April, was to favor Detroit at the expense of Pitts- which is something that no one who has been elected to represent all the people should have done.

Right at this point I want to say that I have nothing against the automobile companies. It always makes me happy when they are prospering. When Charlie Wilson made that supposedly terrible remark about "What's good for General Motors is good for the country" he was uttering a sentiment that in nine cases out of ten holds true. For it is incontestable that the entire U.S. economy does well when Detroit has a fine fine year.

But even tho the automobile companies deserve good things, would it have hurt the U.S. economy as a whole if they had made a little less money last year and the steel companies had made a little more? Obviously, the economy would have been strengthened if some of the profits that flowed into Detroit had been diverted, instead, to Pittsburgh.

Economists can argue, of course, that if the steel companies had raised the price of carbon steel to Detroit, the increase would subsequently have been added into the price of the autobile to the ultimate consumer, in 1963 if not in 1962. This, however, is questionable. For no matter what the believers in "administered prices" say to the contrary, automobile prices are competitively set. Detroit, today, may give "more car for the money," but, with Volkswagens coming in from overseas, it is not likely to try to get more money for the car.

IMPROVEMENT

Indeed, it is even questionable that Pittsburgh could have kept its own tonnage price of steel at the proposed higher level for very long. Steel competition from abroad would almost certainly have prevented it. But let us assume that the steel companies had been able to command a little more in cash for their product from the automobile companies thruout 1962. The increase in income could only have helped the steel men to plow something back into the improvement of their plant. The money-saving oxygen process and other technological advances would have spread to a few more steel mills. This would have made the American economy sounder at bottom, and more capable of serving the automobile companies at a cheaper price for steel later on.

What happened last April, when the steel companies backed down in face of the White House threat, might be likened to a blood transfusion in which the weaker party gave up some of his precious life fluid to the stronger. It was actually a transfusion-in-reverse. It did not result in anything beyond the subsidization of one set of stockholders at the expense of another. Detroit won and Pittsburgh lost. Instead of helping the economy as a whole, the effect was to create an imbalance. Now the steel companies need a transfusion, but who is there to give it to them? They will have to struggle out of their state of shock the best they can.

Industry in Saskatchewan

By AMBROSE HILLS

There is little doubt but that the province of Saskatchewan will soon be in a position to give other Canadian provinces a run for their money as far as economic expansion is concerned. When the South Saskatchewan power and irrigation dam is completed, one of the big roadblocks to both agricultural and industrial expansion will have been partially removed.

Speaking at Lethbridge, recently, D. L. Campbell, vice president of British American Oil, suggested that by 1981 "non-agricultural activities will account for 70 to 75 per cent of the province's net value of output."

Mr. Campbell paid tribute to the people of Saskatchewan for their persistence in the long hard struggle "from prairie trails to pipelines."

These words of praise were not the smooth pitch of an industrialist to butter up the people of the province in which his company has a large investment. It was a sincere tribute to a hard-working and determined prairie population; because Mr. Campbell went on to take a forthright crack at socialism — hardly designed to make him especially popular in a province with the only socialist government on the continent.

He pointed out that governments do not create wealth; that the so - called benefits governments distribute are for the most part paid out of the taxed earnings of free enterprise. He said, "Capitalism can properly claim to have contributed more to the public good than many of the earlier socialists ever dreamed of."

These assertions may cause some of the doctrinaire socialists in Saskatchewan to foam at the mouth. Nevertheless, the vast majority of the citizens of that province are not doctrinaire socialists, and they will recognize that it was the quality of the people rather than the political theories of their government that made a period of real expansion possible.

Saskatchewan has had a difficult struggle. Canadians everywhere will hope that the progress Mr. Campbell foresees will, in fact, come to pass.

THE TONSIL-ADENOID PROBLEM

Two million tonsilectomies are done in this country each year, according to estimates. This sounds like a lot of surgery but the operation is so controversial, modern physicians must have good reasons for recommending it before obtaining the consent of the patient or the parents.

Many indications exist for removing diseased tonsils and adenoids, despite the fact they have a function to perform. The throat is encircled by lymphoid tissue that acts as a barrier to infection. The tonsils and adenoids form only part of the ring. These structures tend to enlarge during childhood, as the youngster makes his initial contacts with bacteria and viruses.

The cells concerned with immunity develop in lymph tissue and, for this reason, tonsils and adenoids grow larger at this time of life and return to normal size later.

But this defense mechanism often backfires. The swollen adenoids may obstruct the nose and encourage mouth breathing. In addition, enlarged tonsils harbor micro-organisms and act not only as a local source of disease but encourage infections elsewhere in the body. As a result, the child has recurrent colds with sniffling, nasal discharge, bronchitis, croup, or sinus trouble.

Infected tonsils and adenoids give off a fetid odor and may be responsible for symptoms of toxicity such as mental dullness, gastrointestinal disorders, poor appetite, disturbed sleep, and night terrors. Facial deformity and crooked teeth occur with continuous mouth breathing.

The adenoids are close to the eustachian tubes going to the ear. Hearing impairment, earache, and running ear often are traced to this source. The glands in the neck also enlarge and tonsilectomy is advisable when this is combined with any of the previously mentioned signs of tonsil infection and enlargement.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Sciatic Pain

Reply

Nine out of ten victims of sciatica have a slipped or ruptured disk in the lower spine. It presses upon the nerve leading down the back of the leg. Distress may come and go, depending upon the extent of the lesion, but surgery is needed to obtain permanent relief in this type of sciatica. In the others, discomfort stems from pressure on the nerve due to arthritis, or from a true sciatic neuritis. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on sciatica.

Heart Defects

G. K. writes: Are heart defects transmitted by heredity?

Reply

Heredity plays a role now and then but in most instances these conditions stem from faulty development of certain parts. We don't know why this occurs except when the mother had German measles in early pregnancy.

Scarring From Acne

Mrs. M. writes: Is there any way to prevent scars from forming after pimples heal?

Reply

Most ordinary pimples do not leave scars. They usually follow overzealous squeezing or trying to dig out pus from a deep abscess. A deep abscess should be drained by the physician via a small incision.

Nasal Infection

E. P. writes: My mother suffers from nose and throat trouble, which the doctor says is due to rhinitis. What does this condition come from?

Reply

Rhinitis is inflammation of the nose. Allergy and infection are the most common causes.

Hormone Indispensable In Man's Adaption to Heat

Aldosterone, a hormone secreted by the adrenal gland, today was said to play an essential role in man's adaptability to hot weather.

Dr. Jerome W. Conn, University of Michigan Medical Center, Ann Arbor, Mich., said it now seems reasonable to believe that one of the major functions of aldosterone is its indispensable place in bringing about the bodily adjustments necessary for man's survival in hot climates.

The hormone is secreted by the adrenal cortex, or outer part of the gland, and regulates salt and water balances.

Dr. Conn drew his conclusion from studies dating back to World War II when acclimatization to heat was of great practical importance to the armed services. He was one of those assigned to study the problem.

Writing in the current Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Conn said the process of adaptation to heat, which occurs when man is exposed to an environment hotter than that to which he is accustomed, results in a remarkable increase in his capacity to live and work in heat without distressing symptoms.

The big difference between the acclimatized and the unacclimatized man is the change in the function of the heart and circulatory system and the sweat glands, he said.

Thru acclimatization, blood is shunted to the skin by reflex action, which has a cooling effect, he said. The acclimatized man also perspires more freely than the unacclimatized man and, under non-humid conditions, this constitutes an important aid in eliminating heat from the body by vaporization of water from the skin, he said.

Upon initial exposure to heat with a moderate work load and an average salt intake, he said, a reduction of extracellular fluid and plasma volumes occurs because of the large amount of salt lost in the sweat and the larger volume of blood diverted to the skin.

Dr. Conn said studies have shown that the initial phase of acclimatization is characterized by intense salt - saving activities of both the kidneys and the sweat glands. These activities result from an increased secretion of aldosterone which is stimulated by the body's need for salt, he said.

The sweat glands are able to reduce the loss of salt from the skin to less than five per cent of the original loss, when necessary, he said. In fact, he said, the critical factors in successful adaptation are the speed and degree of salt retention achieved by these glands.

The kidneys eventually escape the sodium - retaining effects of aldosterone by means of a delicate mechanism, he said. On the basis of such a mechanism, he said, it is not difficult to understand why it takes a man 10 to 20 days to gradually expand his extracellular fluid volume before a new equilibrium is established.

Tests have shown that administration of aldosterone to unacclimatized men in a temperate climate produced the same salt retention effects that occur in the process of acclimatization to heat, he said.

Tests also have shown that if aldosterone administration is stopped after it has been given to a fully acclimatized man working and living in a hot room, he will develop symptoms characteristic of the unacclimatized man, he said. As long as the hormone was given, the man performed his daily task efficiently with no symptoms, he said, but when the hormone was withdrawn, the man became physically unable to complete the usual amount of work.

"When one considers that the aldosterone - sweat gland system can reduce losses of salt from the skin by as much as 95 per cent he must conclude that all forms of temperature regulation in hot climates would fail were it not for the activity of this system in maintaining the volume of the extracellular fluid," Dr. Conn concluded.

A DOLLS' HOUSE — Twenty-nine of the almost 800 dolls collected by Mr. and Mrs. David Black, 2026 N. Cascade Ave., and their daughter Mrs. Robert Hensley of Kingsport, Tenn., are displayed above. The large dolls on the lower shelf are German bisque and were used by stores to display children's clothes. They are distinguished from French bisque by their open mouths, since the French dolls normally had closed lips. Jewelry is family heirlooms. The American baby doll at upper left wears Mrs. Black's own baby chain.

Two China Dolls Nucleus For Collection of 800

By Marguerite Mitchell

When Mrs. David Black was 4, an uncle gave her his lucky talisman, a pair of white china dolls attached to each other.

This tiny twosome started Mrs. Black's collection of dolls which unfortunately were destroyed by fire with the exception of the original good luck piece, now more than 100 years old.

This she passed on to her daughter Catherine, now Mrs. Robert Hensley, 34, wife of a commercial artist in Kingsport, Tenn.

Mrs. Hensley's collection is presently housed at the Black home at 2026 N. Cascade Ave., and by her father's count numbers close to 800.

The Blacks have added to their daughter's collection and the family hopes eventually their granddaughter Becky Hensley, 6, will take over.

Searching out the unusual in dolls has become an engrossing hobby for the Blacks, who don't seem at all to mind being almost completely surrounded by the play pretties.

Almost every room in their home is stocked with dolls and one is given over to a workshop where necessary repairs are made to some of their old finds.

They vie with other local doll collectors at the auction houses to acquire huge cupboards to store the dolls but many are arranged thruout the home on tables, chests, chairs and whatnots.

Mr. Black caught the fever from his wife and daughter and has a limited but special collection of Rose O'Neal's engaging Kewpie dolls which came into vogue about 1910.

One of the most valuable dolls in the mammoth collection is an Elizabethan court figure of a woman in her original period costume. From a national doll magazine, the couple learned that the doll dates circa 1612 - 1637, and similar ones are on display at the Smithonian Institute and in the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

The collection boasts several almost impossible to find Bonnet dolls, so named because the figure's bonnet is part of the head, not detachable. Another unusual one is a white china doll with a bald head, right up to date now as she changes her wig to suit her moods.

Mrs. Black's favorite is a Bru, a French bisque doll which is distinguished by its puffy cheeks and large hands. Another French doll, a Steiner, has a key at the nape of her neck which is manipulated to open and close her eyes.

Many of the early dolls, Mrs. Black said, had what is referred to now as "paperweight" eyes, so termed because their eyes bulge outward. Representative dolls in the collection show this trait.

Mrs. Black explained that the first patent on an American doll was the Greiner; the one in their collection is over 100 years old and still has the trademark sticker on its shoulder.

The Blacks have come up with many odd facts in their doll research; for instance, during the last century only one out of every hundred dolls had brown eyes.

Because of the popularity of Victoria, the remaining dolls were blue eyed as was the British Empire's queen.

This has led to a scarcity of brown eyed dolls but the Blacks own two.

The coiffure on china dolls had a lot to do with the price of the dolls — the more elaborate, the more expensive. Dresden dolls were extremely dear because many had flowers adorning their hairdos.

Some of the unique figures in the collection include a rag doll with a face painted in the manner of a Hicks' primitve; these were referred to as family portrait dolls — one dressed in pale pink trimmed with velvet ribbon has a note in its dress pocket dating it to 1868 in Ayshire, Scotland — a small china doll in a brown gown has its legs mended with pieces of newspaper printed during the Civil War days.

The trying times of this period are futher echoed in this doll as her dress has been fastened with three unmatched buttons.

Three tiny buttons on the gown of another doll would cause envy among button collectors as they are some of the rare three-eyed buttons.

When the Blacks aren't tracking down dolls for their daughter, they're on the prowl to add to their own special collections.

Mrs. Black collects colored glass pickle jars and has 65, most of which still have their silver forks attached to the casters.

Mr. Black has a corner cupboard filled with his forte, English copper lustre.

Neither seems to mind living with "our clutter." Mrs. Black remarked, and pulled out a server drawer to show off several dozen silver napkin rings she recently started collecting.

What to do with old family jewelry was easily solved by the couple who have simply placed brooches, necklaces and other heirlooms on the dolls' dresses.

"That way," Mrs. Black said, "we always know where everything is and we can always see them."

National Forests Graze 1 Million Animals in 1962

Nordwall said these cattle and sheep grazed on more than 9,000,000 acres of public land in the 16 national forests and seven national grasslands in Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska, Kansas and South Dakota.

Last year 242,500 cattle and 864,331 sheep grazed on the Region's national forests under 3,239 paid permits. The national grasslands provided forage last year for an additional 72,820 cattle and 29,721 sheep.

Lands open for grazing on the national forests exceed 7,000,000 acres, while the National Grasslands near the 2,000,000 acre mark.

The average cow with calf consumes about 5,000 pounds of forage during the normal forest-grassland grazing season, and weighs an average of 1,250 pounds.

A ewe and lamb consumes about 340 pounds of forage during the season. Lambs average out at 85-90 pounds in body weight.

"This means the Rocky Mountain Region forests and grassland provided 957,000 tons of forage; producing 48,000 tons of beef; 22,500 tons of lamb and 9,355 tons of wool; during the 1962 grazing season," Nordwall said.

The normal grazing season occurs during the summer months and runs four to six months for cattle and two and a half months for sheep.

"Effective and efficient management of national forest and grassland grazing lands, so as to provide the optimum sustained yield of forage, plays an important role in the livestock economy of this region," Nordwall explained. He added that wildlife resources on these public lands are also important to the recreation and economy of local communities and states.

"Forest Service resource management responsibilities include the protection and improvement of wildlife habitat to insure a continuing supply of big game animals, fish and birds," Nordwall pointed out.

The national grasslands are managed by the Forest Service under the same multiple use-sustained yield program. The grasslands are becoming important upland bird habitat acres and the Forest Service works closely with state game and fish departments to improve hunting and fishing conditions on both forest and grassland.

Colorado's 11 national forests lead in the number of animals grazed, with 149,125 cattle and 481,746 sheep on 5-million acres.

Wyoming is next with 1.5-million acres of forest grazing land sustaining 63,700 cattle and 156,600 sheep. South Dakota's Black Hills National Forest grazed 19,996 cattle and 80,404 sheep in both South Dakota and Wyoming.

The Nebraska national forest shows 14,346 cattle on 231,295 acres.

National grasslands in South Dakota carried 33,190 cattle and 6,567 sheep on 669,904 acres, followed by Colorado with 19,633 cattle on 573,625 acres of grassland. Wyoming grazed 12,499 cattle and 20,624 sheep on 572,970 acres, and Nebraska shows 4,062 cattle and 2,530 sheep on 87,135 acres. Kansas, with one national grassland, provided forage for 3,436 cattle on 87,226 acres of suitable grazing land.

On a forest basis, the White River National Forest in Colorado leads in domestic animal numbers with 27,062 cattle and 98,179 sheep. The Routt National Forest leads all forests in sheep numbers with 106,600 head reported last year.

Combat Training Ends For Victor G. Peters

Marine Pvt. Victor G. Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Peters of 4306 Mallow Rd., has completed Marine individual combat training at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The month-long course includes instruction in tactics, mines and booby traps, demolitions, scouting and patrolling, camouflage, weapons instruction on the rocket launcher, flame thrower, hand and rifle grenades and hand-to-hand combat training.

Pvt. Peters, a 1962 graduate of Palmer High School, joined the Marine Reserve in September, 1961. He departed for active duty with the regular Marine Corps last August.

Peters will now be transferred to the Marine Corps Base, 29 Palms, Calif. to receive training in an artillery specialty.

Carson Sergeant Retires After 20 Years Service

Sgt. 1.C. Calvin Knigh closed more than 20 years with the Army Artillery when he retired Thursday at Ft. Carson.

His final assignment was Battery A, 6th Battalion, 20th Artillery, supply sergeant since December, 1962, when he reported from Germany.

Knight plans to retire to Trenton, N.J., where his sister, Mrs. Catherine Session, lives at 35 Southard Pl., and enter Civil Service at Fort Dix, N.J.

The veteran artilleryman entered the Army in 1942 at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and went into action in Italy with the 92nd Infantry Division, Fifth U.S. Army. He is ending his career in Fifth Army at Ft. Carson.

Between World War II and the Korean action, Knight served at Ft. Benning, Ga.; attended artillery maintenance classes at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.; and traveled to Japan.

He went into the Korean action for 10 months before his rotation to Ft. Sill, Okla., where he remained until 1954.

David L. Dawson Promoted to Pfc.

David L. Dawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester F. Dawson of 1712 N. Wahsatch Ave., has been promoted to the rank of Marine Pfc.

Pfc. Dawson is currently undergoing instruction at Basic Electronics School at the Marines' base at San Diego, Calif. He will undergo a total of 32 weeks in radio, radar and electronics.

Dawson, a former student at Palmer High School, enlisted in the Marines for three years last July.

Hormone Indispensable In Man's Adaption to Heat

Aldosterone, a hormone secreted by the adrenal gland, today was said to play an essential role in man's adaptability to hot weather.

Dr. Jerome W. Conn, University of Michigan Medical Center, Ann Arbor, Mich., said it now seems reasonable to believe that one of the major functions of aldosterone is its indispensable place in bringing about the bodily adjustments necessary for man's survival in hot climates.

The hormone is secreted by the adrenal cortex, or outer part of the gland, and regulates salt and water balances.

Dr. Conn drew his conclusion from studies dating back to World War II when acclimatization to heat was of great practical importance to the armed services. He was one of those assigned to study the problem.

Writing in the current Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Conn said the process of adaptation to heat, which occurs when man is exposed to an environment hotter than that to which he is accustomed, results in a remarkable increase in his capacity to live and work in heat without distressing symptoms.

The big difference between the acclimatized and the unacclimatized man is the change in the function of the heart and circulatory system and the sweat glands, he said.

Thru acclimatization, blood is shunted to the skin by reflex action, which has a cooling effect, he said. The acclimatized man also perspires more freely than the unacclimatized man and, under non-humid conditions, this constitutes an important aid in eliminating heat from the body by vaporization of water from the skin, he said.

Upon initial exposure to heat with a moderate work load and an average salt intake, he said, a reduction of extracellular fluid and plasma volumes occurs because of the large amount of salt lost in the sweat and the larger volume of blood diverted to the skin.

Dr. Conn said studies have shown that the initial phase of acclimatization is characterized by intense salt - saving activities of both the kidneys and the sweat glands. These activities result from an increased secretion of aldosterone which is stimulated by the body's need for salt, he said.

The sweat glands are able to reduce the loss of salt from the skin to less than five per cent of the original loss, when necessary, he said. In fact, he said, the critical factors in successful adaptation are the speed and degree of salt retention achieved by these glands.

The kidneys eventually escape the sodium - retaining effects of aldosterone by means of a delicate mechanism, he said. On the basis of such a mechanism, he said, it is not difficult to understand why it takes a man 10 to 20 days to gradually expand his extracellular fluid volume before a new equilibrium is established.

Tests have shown that administration of aldosterone to unacclimatized men in a temperate climate produced the same salt retention effects that occur in the process of acclimatization to heat, he said.

Tests also have shown that if aldosterone administration is stopped after it has been given to a fully acclimatized man working and living in a hot room, he will develop symptoms characteristic of the unacclimatized man, he said. As long as the hormone was given, the man performed his daily task efficiently with no symptoms, he said, but when the hormone was withdrawn, the man became physically unable to complete the usual amount of work.

"When one considers that the aldosterone - sweat gland system can reduce losses of salt from the skin by as much as 95 per cent he must conclude that all forms of temperature regulation in hot climates would fail were it not for the activity of this system in maintaining the volume of the extracellular fluid," Dr. Conn concluded.

A DOLLS' HOUSE — Twenty-nine of the almost 800 dolls collected by Mr. and Mrs. David Black, 2026 N. Cascade Ave., and their daughter Mrs. Robert Hensley of Kingsport, Tenn., are displayed above. The large dolls on the lower shelf are German bisque and were used by stores to display children's clothes. They are distinguished from French bisque by their open mouths, since the French dolls normally had closed lips. Jewelry is family heirlooms. Two China Dolls Nucleus For Collection of 800

By Marguerite Mitchell

This tiny twosome started Mrs. Black's collection of dolls which unfortunately were destroyed by fire with the exception of the original good luck piece, now more than 100 years old.

This she passed on to her daughter Catherine, now Mrs. Robert Hensley, 34, wife of a commercial artist in Kingsport, Tenn.

Mrs. Hensley's collection is presently housed at the Black home at 2026 N. Cascade Ave., and by her father's count numbers close to 800.

The Blacks have added to their daughter's collection and the family hopes eventually their granddaughter Becky Hensley, 6, will take over.

Searching out the unusual in dolls has become an engrossing hobby for the Blacks, who don't seem at all to mind being almost completely surrounded by the play pretties.

Almost every room in their home is stocked with dolls and one is given over to a workshop where necessary repairs are made to some of their old finds.

They vie with other local doll collectors at the auction houses to acquire huge cupboards to store the dolls but many are arranged thruout the home on tables, chests, chairs and whatnots.

Mr. Black caught the fever from his wife and daughter and has a limited but special collection of Rose O'Neal's engaging Kewpie dolls which came into vogue about 1910.

One of the most valuable dolls in the mammoth collection is an Elizabethan court figure of a woman in her original period costume. From a national doll magazine, the couple learned that the doll dates circa 1612 - 1637, and similar ones are on display at the Smithonian Institute and in the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

The collection boasts several almost impossible to find Bonnet dolls, so named because the figure's bonnet is part of the head, not detachable. Another unusual one is a white china doll with a bald head, right up to date now as she changes her wig to suit her moods.

Mrs. Black's favorite is a Bru, a French bisque doll which is distinguished by its puffy cheeks and large hands. Another French doll, a Steiner, has a key at the nape of her neck which is manipulated to open and close her eyes.

Many of the early dolls, Mrs. Black said, had what is referred to now as "paperweight" eyes, so termed because their eyes bulge outward. Representative dolls in the collection show this trait.

Mrs. Black explained that the first patent on an American doll was the Greiner; the one in their collection is over 100 years old and still has the trademark sticker on its shoulder.

The Blacks have come up with many odd facts in their doll research; for instance, during the last century only one out of every hundred dolls had brown eyes.

Because of the popularity of Victoria, the remaining dolls were blue eyed as was the British Empire's queen.

This has led to a scarcity of brown eyed dolls but the Blacks own two.

The coiffure on china dolls had a lot to do with the price of the dolls — the more elaborate, the more expensive. Dresden dolls were extremely dear because many had flowers adorning their hairdos.

Some of the unique figures in the collection include a rag doll with a face painted in the manner of a Hicks' primitve; these were referred to as family portrait dolls — one dressed in pale pink trimmed with velvet ribbon has a note in its dress pocket dating it to 1868 in Ayshire, Scotland — a small china doll in a brown gown has its legs mended with pieces of newspaper printed during the Civil War days.

The trying times of this period are futher echoed in this doll as her dress has been fastened with three unmatched buttons.

Three tiny buttons on the gown of another doll would cause envy among button collectors as they are some of the rare three-eyed buttons.

When the Blacks aren't tracking down dolls for their daughter, they're on the prowl to add to their own special collections.

Mrs. Black collects colored glass pickle jars and has 65, most of which still have their silver forks attached to the casters.

Mr. Black has a corner cupboard filled with his forte, English copper lustre.

Neither seems to mind living with "our clutter," Mrs. Black remarked, and pulled out a server drawer to show off several dozen silver napkin rings she recently started collecting.

What to do with old family jewelry was easily solved by the couple who have simply placed brooches, necklaces and other heirlooms on the dolls' dresses.

"That way," Mrs. Black said, "we always know where everything is and we can always see them."

Electoral College System Termed To Be 'Unjust'

DENVER (AP) — The Republican floor leader of the Colorado House of Representatives, in a memorial offered here, termed "unfair and unjust" the historic Electoral College system of electing the president.

Rep. John Mackie of Longmont proposed a constitutional convention to write an amendment changing the system.

The new procedure, he said, should reflect the minority votes cast in a presidential election instead of throwing all of a state's electoral votes to a single candidate.

Under the Electoral College system, each state is entitled to as many electors as it has senators and representatives in Congress.

Those electors who receive a plurality of the popular vote in a given state are entitled to cast all the state's votes, regardless of the closeness of the election.

Thus, in Illinois, all 27 electoral votes were cast for President Kennedy in the last presidential election although the Democratic margin in that populous state was only 8,858 votes.

Mackie and other political leaders, notably former Gov. Edwin C. Johnson, a Democrat, and Republican House Speaker John Vanderhoof, are pushing for either of two alternative plans.

One would elect the electors in the same manner as members of Congress are elected. The other would divide the electors of each state in proportion to the popular vote in that state.

"Either plan would give adequate recognition to the minority voters and reduce the bloated influence of the block votes," say the memorial's sponsors.

"It is not wholesome to deny millions of voters participation in the election of a president, and it must be corrected."

Childhood Romance Leads to Marriage

WARWICK, R. I. (UPI) — Back in 1893, Wilbur Curtis and Clara Bush were childhood sweethearts.

Clara's family moved to Michigan and the couple lost track of each other.

Recently Curtis, a widower, and Clara, a widow, were re-united at the age of 87 and 86, respectively. Now, at long last, they are married.

Edwards performs as an impressionist and folk singer and accompanies himself on the guitar. An eye specialist at the dispensary at Ent Air Force Base, Edwards has recently been reassigned to Japan.

Ill Man Sues for Alimony From Wife

DENVER (UPI) — Dist. Judge Sherman G. Finesilver will hear a motion April 17 to award alimony or support to a 52-year-old Denver multiple sclerosis victim from his wife.

Seeking the award was Michael J. Talone, who claimed in a petition filed in district court Thursday that his wife, who is divorcing him, was "a gainfully employed, able-bodied woman capable of providing temporary alimony or support."

Talone, who said he had been confined to a wheel chair for two years, and his wife, Mrs. Frieda Talone of Denver, have been married for 23 years.

Judge Finesilver said the case was unique in Colorado history.

SMALLPOX

NEW YORK (UPI) —The World Health Organization reported that in 1961, there were 79,000 cases of smallpox recorded throughout the world, up 21,000 cases over 1960, and 803 cases of plague, nearly double the number in 1960.

Biology Study Is Conducted By Television

By HAROLD SHEEHAN

BETHPAGE, N. Y.—The biology lesson was about to begin.

On a table stood a large platter of gelatin dessert in which was suspended a quantity of cooked spaghetti. On a nearby wall a dozen black and white costume jewelry beads were attached. And live mice scampered around a cage on another table.

From inside the television studio of the Plainedge, Long Island School District, it looked more like a weird cooking class. But when the gelatin-spaghetti mess was seen on viewing screens in five glassrooms it looked for all the world like a magnified reproduction cell.

And the plastic beads, with a little imagination, could have been chromosomes pairing up to produce color characteristics in mice or humans.

With variations, similar lessons are being presented over 400 closed television circuits throughout the United States. Plainedge set up its system in 1958, making it one of the oldest. It's programs reach 9,000 children in the district's eight schools with such subjects as science, English, French and Spanish.

The experience of Plainedge school officials helps answer the question: "What happened to the revolution in education that television was supposed to have inspired?"

Well, after five years and a lot of work it can be said that no miracles have taken place. Experience at Plainedge illustrates that TV cannot take the place of teachers. Beleagured school budgets across the country cannot be relieved with the flick of a plastic knob.

On the other hand, it has been demonstrated that television can be a useful teaching tool—like a textbook or piece of chalk—when it is used right. Sometimes it is not.

"Bad classroom television can be worse than none at all," said Dalton Levy, director of Plainedge's productions.

"We had trouble at first. Some teachers and students were critical of the programs. Kids, you have to remember, have grown up with home television and they are used to professional programs. Give them less than that and they get bored.

"But gradually, as lecture methods, camera technique, sound and equipment improved, the programs have been rewarding. And that means higher marks."

The choice of topics, Levy points out, are now made by staff meetings of the interested teachers. The result is lectures are coordinated with areas being studied in the classroom. A program on the human heart, for example, is not intended to replace the teacher's lecture. "But in 15 minutes," said Levy, "we can explain on a plastic model or animal heart just how the heart functions. It would take all day to pass that model around in an auditorium full of pupils.

"Likewise, we can use gimmicks—like the bowl of gelatin and spaghetti—to dramatize the structure of a human cell. In a classroom you could never get away with it."

Most of the camera work, sound effects, card flipping, lighting, wire splicing, and the hundreds of other studio jobs are done by student volunteers—some of whom use their high school experience as a spring-board into further television studies. Television lecturers are recruited from the school faculty.

By using relatively cheap, high-frequency equipment the annual cost of Plainedge's eight - school network is about $27,000 or $3 per pupil.

By cutting corners, according to Levy, a school system of comparable size could get such a program started for about $30,000.

So well received have been these video lectures that officials are requesting $170,000 in next year's school budget to move the studio to larger and air - conditioned quarters (temperature now hits 110 degrees under the lights).

Also, equipment to permit video taping is being sought. This means that a good lecture could be filed for reruns and better cameras would allow professional-type fade-outs and other improved techniques.

New York, like some other states, underwrites much of the cost of such educational projects and may pay all but $68,000 of the moving costs and new equipment.

That is still a sizeable slice out of an already fat school budget. But they think a lot of educational television at Plainedge.

U.S. Does Not Lure Scientists, Britishers Told

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials today branded as absurd allegations by Britain's minister of science that the United States is conducting a high-pressure recruiting campaign to lure British scientists.

The American school system is able to meet most of the United States' need for scientists and engineers, the officials said. Although some foreigners are drawn to this country, "greener pastures" and not high-pressure tactics are the reason, they said.

The British minister, Lord Hailsham, told the House of Lords this week that the American high school system is unable to turn out first-rate scientific talent. As a result, he said, the United States sends talent scouts to Britain to buy British brains for service in the United States, thus creating a "brain drain."

Officials of the National Science Foundation, the National Academy of Sciences, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and others flatly denied the charge.

Dr. Edward Wenk, assistant to Dr. Jerome N. Wiesner, President Kennedy's science adviser, said:

"The facts indicate that the total number of people coming from the United Kingdom is very small. In 1961, the United States turned out 93,000 engineers and scientists and there were 3,900 immigrants, only 4 per cent of the total. Of the foreigners, 5 per cent came from the United Kingdom.

"These 575 who came from the United Kingdom may represent a sizable fraction of the English production but the facts suggest at the present time that one should not conclude that we depend in any major way on the brain drain of which Lord Hailsham spoke."

Dinosaur Park Will Get New Entrance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The interior department said the site for a new entrance and administrative headquarters at Dinosaur National Monument has been selected on a 400-acre tract near Artesia, Colo.

The site is on U.S. Highway 40. It was authorized by congressional revision of the boundaries of the monument, which includes lands in Colorado and Utah.

The National Park Service is planning to begin construction of the administration building after the new fiscal year opens July 1. Roads and parking areas are under construction.

The monument contains an ancient burial ground, exposing to view fossilized skeletons of dinosaurs, crocodiles and turtles, and fossilized tropical plants.

Upward Curve Seen in Sales of Women's Slacks

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP)—The sales chart of women's slacks is shaping an upward curve these days as the garment industry tightens its grip on the American female's wardrobe.

And now the industry has European women in mind, despite criticism of a sort from that direction.

Industry sources confirmed statistically today what many Europeans told the U.S. Information Agency in a recent survey: that in many American homes the women wear the pants.

It's true in this sense: less than a decade ago sales of women's pants, including slacks and Bermuda shorts, totaled less than 10 million pairs. Today, more than 40 million pair a year are sold.

The latest bulge in the sales figure comes from stretch fabrics.

The European criticism was that—figuratively of course—the family member who wore the pants was the boss as well.

Not so, say the slacks manufacturers. Slacks make women look more feminine and lovelier.

"Slacks," said Paul Christenfeld, a manufacturer, "are entirely feminine. They look good. They give the figure a nice silhouette." They belong in every wardrobe from 6 to 60, he said.

"Worn correctly," said a woman spokesman for another company, "slacks can make even a heavy woman look sleek. Of course they're fashionable."

"Listen," said Christenfeld, "weren't men wearing skirts a few hundred years ago? And aren't the Scots wearing them. Does that make them any less men? It's just the fashion."

The latest in fashions, the stretch slack, apparently originated in, of all places, Europe.

"I was in Europe when I first saw them," said Christenfeld. "I brought the idea back to my company but I was disappointed American women didn't go for them at first. But that was last year. Now sales are zooming. No, cross that out, they are astronomical."

Jack Winter, president of a company bearing his name, says he plans to expand into the Common Market area. Winter used to be in the men's pants line but switched when he saw a good thing.

The sportswear market should grow in Europe, he said, due to the rising standard of living, entry of more women into the labor market and the accompanying increase in leisure time and recreation.

Junk With Refugees Sinks Off China Coast

MACAO (AP) — A motorized junk smuggling 31 refugees out of Red China sank Feb. 19 near Hong Kong and 30 are believed to have drowned, according to a letter received in Macao from a 19-year-old girl.

She said she alone survived and was rescued by Red Chinese fishermen and taken back to Canton.

Veteran Soldier Retired Thursday At Ent AFB

Service with the Field Artiller at Ft. Lewis, Wash., was the be ginning of a military career fo M. Sgt. Phillip Meyer, 4608th Sup port Sq. at Ent AFB. That caree came to a close, Thursday, afte more than 30 years of continuou active military duty.

Sgt. Meyer will take into retire ment experiences gained from pre-WW II duty in China as a member of the 15th Infantry, in 1936.

According to service - lon friend Lt. Col. James A. Treece now at Hamilton AFB, Calif Sergeant Meyer has the singula distinction of being one of the members of the only mounted platoon in the U. S. Army.

One particular patrol of which Meyer was a member became lost, Colonel Treece recalls, while surveying an area near a railroad connecting Tientsin and Peking China. Sign language and sparse Chinese failed to convey to near by villagers what the troopers needed to know; the whereabouts of the railroad.

Finally, Meyer, calling on act ing ability, assumed a kneeling position and began puffing, blow ing and generally making noises he hoped sounded like a railroad engine, while his inscrutable au dience waited patiently.

After watching some minutes of considerable puffing and chug ging, one Chinese spoke up, "I say, you must be inquiring about our railroad" — in perfect En glish.

Col. Treece later became a member of the same mounted platoon. His friendship with Sgt Meyer dates back to both their original enlistments and basic training with the 10th Field Artillery at Ft. Lewis, Wash., in 1932.

Sgt. Meyer and his wife Fran live at 1310 LaSalle St.

Traffic Light Saves Time at Barber Shop

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI) — Vincent Scancarella, 67, has mounted a red-green signal resembling a traffic light on his barber shop. When the light flashes green, the potential customer can run in and get himself clipped without waiting.

"Saves a lot of waiting time, keeps steady customers," commented the imaginative barber.

"I was in Europe when I first saw them," said Christenfeld. "I brought the idea back to my company but I was disappointed. American women didn't go for them at first. But that was last year. Now sales are zooming. No, cross that out, they are astronomical."

Jack Winter, president of a company bearing his name, says he plans to expand into the Common Market area. Winter used to be in the men's pants line but switched when he saw a good thing.

The sportswear market should grow in Europe, he said, due to the rising standard of living, entry of more women into the labor market and the accompanying increase in leisure time and recreation.

Junk With Refugees Sinks Off China Coast

MACAO (AP) — A motorized junk smuggling 31 refugees out of Red China sank Feb. 19 near Hong Kong and 30 are believed to have drowned, according to a letter received in Macao from a 19-year-old girl.

She said she alone survived and was rescued by Red Chinese fishermen and taken back to Canton.

Veteran Soldier Retired Thursday At Ent AFB

Service with the Field Artillery at Ft. Lewis, Wash., was the beginning of a military career for M. Sgt. Phillip Meyer, 4606th Support Sq. at Ent AFB. That career came to a close, Thursday, after more than 30 years of continuous active military duty.

Sgt. Meyer will take into retirement experiences gained from pre-WW II duty in China as a member of the 15th Infantry, in 1936.

According to service - long friend Lt. Col. James A. Treece now at Hamilton AFB, Calif. Sergeant Meyer has the singular distinction of being one of the members of the only mounted platoon in the U. S. Army.

One particular patrol of which Meyer was a member became lost, Colonel Treece recalls, while surveying an area near a railroad connecting Tientsin and Peking China. Sign language and sparse Chinese failed to convey to nearby villagers what the troopers needed to know; the whereabouts of the railroad.

Finally, Meyer, calling on acting ability, assumed a kneeling position and began puffing, blowing and generally making noises he hoped sounded like a railroad engine, while his inscrutable audience waited patiently.

After watching some minutes of considerable puffing and chugging, one Chinese spoke up, "I say, you must be inquiring about our railroad" — in perfect English.

Col. Treece later became a member of the same mounted platoon. His friendship with Sgt. Meyer dates back to both their original enlistments and basic training with the 10th Field Artillery at Ft. Lewis, Wash., in 1932.

Sgt. Meyer and his wife Fran live at 1310 LaSalle St.

Traffic Light Saves Time at Barber Shop

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI) — Vincent Scancarella, 67, has mounted a red-green signal resembling a traffic light on his barber shop. When the light flashes green, the potential customer can run in and get himself clipped without waiting.

"Saves a lot of waiting time, keeps steady customers," commented the imaginative barber.

Fifth Army Commander to Visit Region

Maj. Gen. Charles G. Dodge, new Fifth Army commander, will make a three day visit to Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) on his tour of installations within his 13-state command area.

An honor guard ceremony will greet him at 8:15 a.m., Monday in front of Ft. Carson headquarters. He will receive a briefing by post and division staff officers and an aerial tour of the post.

Gen. Dodge took command of Fifth Army on Feb. 1 after a two year tour as Army chief of information. He will observe training and will lunch in the field with troops of the 4th Squadron, 12th Cavalry.

At 1 p.m. Monday, he will speak at the Palace Theater to post and division officers and sergeants-major.

The remainder of the day will be spent in visits to post facilities, especially maintenance and supply facilities, service clubs, barracks, and messes.

On Tuesday he will visit the United States Army Air Defense Command and the North American Air Defense Command for briefings before departing by plane at 11 a.m.

He will meet with Governor John Love in Denver Tuesday afternoon and then return to Fifth U.S. Army Headquarters in Chicago.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) —The director of the Illinois Department of Conservation says more Canadian geese are wintering in Southern Illinois this year than in 1962. Approximately 196,000 were counted during the annual winter waterfowl survey, an increase of 37,000 over last year.

Arms Race to Go On; Talks Deadlocked

EDITOR'S NOTE—For 17 years the United States has operated on the assumption that disarmament may be possible. What are the current chances, and is it a case of now or never? John M. Hightower, Pulitzer Prize winning AP writer who has covered the ups and downs of disarmament efforts for many years, analyzes the situation.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The best chance the Soviet Union and the United States may ever have to end the nuclear arms race now appears to be collapsing under the weight of a new disarmament deadlock.

This, at least, is the grim view of the current state of East-West arms control negotiations held by some high officials responsible for U.S. policy.

It is a view subject to sharp dispute.

A serious question can be raised as to whether any real chance of accord between Moscow and Washington has existed since the start of the cold war—or will exist while the cold war continues. Some authorities say "until you can settle the Berlin problem, until Moscow and Peking abandon their ambitions to take over the world, how can you expect to disarm?"

But for 17 years the United States has operated on the assumption that disarmament may be possible. That hope persists today.

The hope rests now, as in the past, on a deeper belief that at some point the Soviet Union will begin to change its fundamental world position and move toward agreements with the West. Then the often-cited need of all nations to avoid destruction in a great nuclear war could begin to have its impact.

What makes the present stalemate at Geneva critical is that recent Soviet actions have dealt a severe blow to this deeper belief precisely when American leaders thought it might finally be justified by what had seemed to be some new trends in Soviet policy.

The high optimism about the chances for a nuclear test ban which prevailed here within the past two months was born in the aftermath of the Cuban crisis. There is no doubt that President Kennedy, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other leaders felt some great results might flow from the easing of the nerve-wracking confrontation of the United States and the Soviet Union over Cuba last October.

This optimism was prevalent when Soviet Premier Khrushchev last Dec. 19 sent a note to the President reversing his stand on international inspection to police a test ban inside the Soviet Union as well as on the territory of the United States and Britain. He said he would accept two or three on-site inspections a year. This was contrary to the position which he had taken in November 1961.

Khrushchev had said during the Cuban crisis that he was willing to have on-site inspection of the removal of Soviet missiles and bombers from Cuba and a change in his position on that issue of the test ban negotiations had been expected.

One other fact of basic importance in Washington's view entered into the calculation of American officials. This was—and is—that with France already in the process of becoming a nuclear power it was only a question of time and probably not a very long time until Red China would explode a nuclear device and introduce a wholly new and dangerous element into the world power balance.

It has therefore seemed to officials here that the period between the ending of the Cuban crisis and the further spread of nuclear weapons — a restless period marked also by wide-open splits in both the Communist and Western camps—offered an unusually hopeful prospect for progress toward a disarmament break through.

In mid-January there seemed to be no doubt that the United States and Britain on one hand and the Soviet Union on the other were closer to agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty with inspection safeguards than they had been at any time in the past. Today they seemed to be as far apart as ever.

The deadlock has developed, as the dispute now stands, over the difference between Khrushchev's two or three inspections a year and the eight or 10 which Kennedy has asked with an indication that he would reduce the number if other inspection problems were solved at the same time.

In a speech in Moscow Wednesday, Khrushchev slammed the door on any new concessions from his side, saying "nothing else can be expected from us."

His statement came as no surprise because in talks in this country in late January and more recently at the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva his representatives had taken the same line.

Their unyielding stand was initially a surprise and disappointment to U.S. officials, however, because they had thought that his December policy reversal was the opening play in a new round of negotiations which Khrushchev himself wanted to be successful.

In Geneva last month, Hubert H. Humphrey, assistant Senate Democratic leader, said the negotiators should be close to agreement by April or the opportunity which he then thought existed for nailing down a test ban might well be lost.

At a news conference on Jan. 24 President Kennedy said he did not agree with the deadline concept but the world should know by spring whether an agreement could be reached.

In a few quick sentences Kennedy then went on to sketch both the basis of his policy for persisting in negotiations no matter how desperate the prospect and the problems which he foresees at home as well as in the discussion with the Soviet Union.

"We have been on this (seeking disarmament) for 15 years," he said. "I must say that a good many people are opposed to this effort which is being directed by Mr. (William C.) Foster in Geneva, and quite obviously it is a matter which we should approach with a good deal of care. But the alternative, if we fail, of increasing the number of nuclear powers around the world over the next 5, 10, 15, or 20 years is so dangerous (it) keeps me committed to the effort of trying to get a test ban treaty."

A few days later at a Feb. 1 news conference Secretary of State Dean Rusk recognized the progressive breakdown of test ban talks by saying, "We cannot hold out great expectations that this matter can be resolved promptly."

The inspection issue has been at the heart of the East-West disarmament problem since negotiations first started back in 1946. At that time, while it still had a nuclear weapons monopoly, the United States had put a plan before the United Nations for internationalizing all atomic power. The Soviet Union shortly produced a counter plan.

The two nations rejected each other's programs.

Since then disarmament has been involved periodically in what appeared to be serious negotiations and at times has served as a propaganda football.

In July 1955 when President Eisenhower advanced his famous "open skies" proposal for reciprocal U.S. and Soviet aerial inspection, the Soviets denounced it as a U.S. espionage plot against the Soviet Union. American officials felt that although Eisenhower had been prepared to back up his proposal, the fact that he put it forward and that the Soviet Union rejected it represented a propaganda victory for the United States.

Negotiations for a treaty prohibiting nuclear tests began in the fall of 1958 concurrent with a moratorium on testing which the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain all observed for the next 34 months. In September 1961, after the negotiations had developed a stalemate earlier in the year, Khrushchev resumed nuclear testing. Kennedy shortly ordered a resumption of U.S. testing.

In November of that year Khrushchev announced that the Soviet Union would no longer agree to international inspection to police the test ban but would consider national detection systems adequate to discover any sneak explosions in violation of a ban.

From that time until he sent word of the new change in his position to Kennedy last December the Soviet position remained firm and the deadlock on test ban negotiations was complete.

In the situation which now confronts the United States on this issue, the State Department disclosed Thursday that a new draft of a test ban treaty is being prepared for introduction at Geneva. It will embody various concessions on inspection which the United States says are justified by scientific advances in detection techniques.

The United States is prepared to rely more than in the past on national detection systems to prevent cheating but insists that some on-site inspections are necessary on Soviet territory. Kennedy also wants more automatic detection stations established inside the Soviet Union than Khrushchev has been willing to grant.

As he reduces inspection requirements, Kennedy increasingly faces a new problem with the Senate. Any treaty to outlaw testing would have to be submitted for Senate approval and at that time the President would have to justify in detail the safeguards which he had agreed to on the ground that they would make secret Soviet weapons testing virtually impossible.

That undoubtedly was what the President had in mind when he said that "a good many people" are opposed to Foster's efforts to work out an agreement with the Soviets. Apart from opposition based on the adequacy of inspection there would also be opposition based on the argument that continued testing is essential to discover atomic weapons presently undreamed of.

Kennedy therefore faces pressures and criticisms both from those who may argue he has not made enough concessions for an agreement with the Soviet Union and those who argue he is making too many.

His own determination to continue seeking an accord with security safeguards, however gloomy the outlook, seems to be based on a conviction that he has no other choice.

His deputy secretary of defense, Roswell Gilpatric, has recently summed it up this way:

"Anyone who does not realize that some form of disarmament is inevitable has not faced up to the kind of world we live in. The principal question is whether the world is going to achieve disarmament before or after we have a nuclear war."

Carson Troops Train for War Games

Current training of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Ft. Carson, is aimed at "Exercise Coulee Crest" May 5-20. The war games between Colorado's 5th and Washington's 4th Infantry Divisions are slated for the Yakima, Wash. area.

Division artillery and infantry units have either completed or are undergoing rail movement training in preparation for the planned transportation by rail of equipment and some vehicles. The movement west will run from April 22 thru Map 3.

Army training tests on platoon and company levels plus qualification with the rifle will toughen up the men for the rugged Coulee Crest maneuver. Two command post exercises in March will also prepare the soldiers for the exercise.

Following the May 5 to 20 war games, 5th Division tankers will be tested at the Yakima firing center. The 1st Battalion, 77th Armor, and the 4th Squadron, 12th cavalry, will participate in extensive Washington maneuvers and firing tests until early July, when they return to Ft. Carson.

1962 Life Insurance Buys In Region at Record High

For the community as a whole, life insurance holdings totaled $528,344,000.

Data on the amount of insurance in force and on its distribution thruout the country is given for each of the states in the life insurance fact book.

It shows that the American people, despite the financial safeguards they have been accumulating under Social Security, have been adding to their private coverage, in many cases as a way of providing money for particular future objectives.

At present they hold well over $685 billion of such insurance, or nearly $80 billion more than in the prior year.

Some $6,514,000,000 of it is in force in the State of Colorado, the figures show.

Examination of the distribution within the state indicates that life insurance ownership is roughly proportional to income. The amount that the average family has is equal to its entire income, after taxes, covering a period of 20.8 months.

On this basis, applying the average to El Paso County, where the net income per household is approximately $564 per month, according to the latest Sales Management figures, life insurance holdings locally come to nearly $11,610 per family.

This compares favorably with the amount of coverage elsewhere in the United States, $10,800 per family. In the Mountain States it is $10,260.

It is noted that life insurance protection in the United States has more than tripled since 1945. Much of the expansion is attributed to group insuracne, which has risen faster than any other type. The majority of those who have it acquired it at their places of employment. Others obtained it thru their unions, professional associations and other groups.

Altho some families invest in life insurance specifically for savings and investment, they are in the minority. Most of them get it to provide financial protection in case the breadwinner should die prematurely.

Thus, ownership is found to be highest among adult men. Nearly 8 out of 10 men have life insurance, but only 6 out of 10 women.

Dog Swallows Poison; Hospitalized

The dog's owner, Ray Johnson of 2004 Roanoke St., reported to the sheriff's office he found the animal lying sick in the back yard of his home at about 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Johnson said someone must have dropped the poison into his back yard. The dog could not have picked up the poison elsewhere, he said, since the animal is kept secured and cannot leave the yard.

LEADS PROHIBITION MOVEMENT — The Rev. Roy E. Holloman, head of the Kansas United Dry Forces, is leading a drive for the return of prohibition in the state. The drive came when hotel and restaurant operators asked the legislature to legalize sales of alcohol by the drink with meals. The dry forces countered with a strong demand for resubmission of the entire alcohol question, hoping to set aside all sales of alcoholic beverages. (AP Wirephoto)

Hockstrasser to Head State Wildlife Week Program

Herb Hockstrasser, Fort Morgan has been named state chairman to direct the 1963 National Wildlife Week program in Colorado by the Colorado Wildlife Federation which will join with the National Wildlife Federation in sponsoring the educational observance during the period March 17-23.

Held during the first week of spring each year since first proclaimed by President Roosevelt in 1938, National Wildlife Week serves to focus public attention on the importance of natural resources conservation and to spotlight specific conservation problems.

This year the Wildlife Week theme will be "Chemical Pesticides are Poison—Handle with care." Positive steps which can be taken to reduce the dangers of potent chemical poisons to man and wildlife will be emphasized during the campaign, according to Hockstrasser.

The dangers of chemical poisons to wildlife and man are to be spotlighted during National Wildlife Week. Here, according to State Wildlife Week Chairman Hockstrasser, are a few examples of how chemicals applied to control undesirable insects, rodents, weeds and other pests have taken a toll of beneficial fish and wildlife—and why conservationists including the National Wildlife Federation and the members of its state affiliate, the Colorado Wildlife Federation, are pleading for a more knowledgeable and intelligent use of agricultural poisons.

Some communities have given a brief lease on life to their elm trees thru spraying and have lost their robin populations. Rodenticides used to control orchard mice have killed foxes, rabbits, quail and fish. Japanese beetles have been temporarily reduced in numbers by aerial spraying—along with the fish and songbirds in the vicinity. Mosquitos — and many valuable forms of life — have been eliminated by DDT from numerous salt marshes. The eradication of sagebrush in the West b ychemical spraying is at the same time destroying the habitat of the sage grouse.

Pesticide applications may "get to" fish and wildlife populations in various ways, Hockstrasser pointed out. Animals may be killed by direct contact with the chemical soon after its application. They may be forced to leave the area or starve because their food was destroyed by the poison.

The concentration of specific poison in many species of animals may cause genetic disturbances or death. (Worms concentrate DDT, killing the robins which eat them.) Reproductive failure among birds has been blamed on their exposure to insecticides.

There are often alternatives to the spraying of chemicals which do not pose a threat to beneficial forms of life, such as biological controls and the maintenance of soil fertility for agricultural pests, the use of screening and sanitary practices around the home, and the elimination of breeding places, the fluctuation of water levels and the introduction of certain fish to control mosquitoes, Chairman Hockstrasser said.

Hockstrasser has suggested that all citizens support:

More research to find specific, short-life chemical pesticides and effective non-chemical methods of controlling unwanted animals and plants, so that "broad-spectrum" chemicals which kill all forms of life and retain their toxicity for long periods of time can be taken off the market.

Control of pesticide use thru enforcement of strict chemical registration, labeling, and application laws and the establishment of state and local boards of review to pass on applications for mass pesticide programs.

Public decisions as to whether or not publicly-financed insect and other pest control programs should be conducted, thru public hearings well in advance of the date proposed for the initiation of the control programs.

Hockstrasser urged, additionally, that everyone be especially careful with bug sprays, weed killers and other chemical poisons around their homes, suggesting that they follow application directions closely to avoid damage to birds, fish and other wildlife as well as pets and children.

"Try using bug screens instead of bug sprays, good grades of grass plus water and fertilizer rather than crab grass killer, and thoro house cleaning instead of poison baits," he concluded.

Jerry W. Faires Served in Caribbean

Jerry W. Faires, aviation structural mechanic third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Faires of 2824 West Kiowa St., was serving with Airborne Early Warning Squadron Four during the recent United States quarantine operations in the Caribbean.

The squadron, known as the "Hurricane Hunters" who specialize in surveillance missions, flies radar-outfitted Super Constellation aircraft.

During the routine operations, the squadron's crews and their aircraft in the Caribbean area provided advance warning to threatened areas.

Harrison High News

Harrison's International Relations Club and Future Homemakers of America held an international potluck supper in observance of International Brotherhood Week. Students attending the supper were to bring a foreign dish. The food was labeled as to what it was and which country it represented. Students brought Russian, Italian, Spanish, Oriental, English, and German foods.

The table centerpieces were made of foreign dolls. Music for the meal was provided by Spanish, Italian, Jewish, and Turkish records. Some students came in costume.

Student Council launched a Hall Safety Campaign. Student Council members put light colored tape down the center of the hall to represent white lines on the "road." A skit showing how the halls looked at various times of the day was presented to the student body. Each day announcements were made on hall traffic and "walking conditions." Tickets were given to careless walkers by members of council. A "casualty" of lunch hour rush was carried to the classrooms on a stretcher to demonstrate what happens in "heavy traffic." The gag and poster committees made signs urging courtesy and safety in the halls.

"Grandad Goes Wild," by Felicia Metcalfe, has been chosen as the senior class play. Rehearsals began last week. The play will be presented sometime in March.

The fourth six weeks period ended Friday.

The sophomore class won the pep jug from the seniors at the last pep assembly of the year. Jerry Williams, sophomore class president, received the pep jug on behalf of the sophomores.

Colorado Springs Firm Completes Nursery Project

The final acceptance of buildings constructed by the Digman Construction Company under a $148,565 contract at the new Mt. Sopris tree nursery near Basalt has been announced by the Colorado Forest Service.

The contract to construct four buildings, a fire protection water system and the installation of general utilities was awarded in June of 1962, officials said.

The nursery will have a capacity of 25-million trees annually. Last year forest service nurseries at Monument, and Halsey, Neb. provided 5-million trees for Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Arizona, and New Mexico National and State Forests.

Regional Forester D. S. Nordwall said the building contract provided for a tree processing building, pumphouse, office building, garage-equipment storage, gasoline and chemical storage building and the fire protection and utilities system.

Yoshitaka Nakama Ends Training in Germany

Army Spec. 6 Yoshitaka Nakama, whose wife, Yukiko, lives on Route 1, Fountain, recently completed annual winter training with other members of the 8th Transportation Battalion's 11th Light Helicopter Company, stationed at Nellingen, Germany.

The company's mission is to provide support for the Seventh U.S. Army.

Specialist Nakama, a crew chief, entered the Army in 1945 and arrived overseas in November 1962 on this tour of duty.

WESTMOOR Park

"In the Shadow of the Garden of the Gods"

Bathed in romance and history as colorful as the rocky spires and formations which grace its acres, the Garden of the Gods has and always will hold its ageless appeal.

Early settlers were drawn to the "Garden" with wonder. To the Indians it was sacred ground, a ceremonial place, and many legends were centered around the garden itself, the mesa beyond and the Camp Creek Valley between, where WESTMOOR PARK is building.

Its spiritual significance is reflected in the Easter Sunrise Service held each year from this beautiful setting and broadcast on a nationwide radio network.

It is fitting that garden number two—as Glenn Eyrie was often called before General Palmer named it — should become a retreat and headquarters for the Navigators, one of America's dominant non-secretarian Christian organizations. In 1953, after prayerful considerations and miraculous support and aid from throughout the world, historic Glenn Eyrie Castle and Estate were transferred to the Navigators,and from here their work continues.

Glenn Eyrie Castle was not the first home of the Palmers. Their first home was an unpretentious one, actually not quite completed when the General brought his bride, the former Mary Lincoln Mellon, to Colorado. Until it was completed they lived in the loft of the hayharn.

The castle which contained 67 rooms and 22 baths when finished is a story in itself . . . and much of that story can be relived by a visit to the Pioneer Museum where many of the Palmer relics have been preserved.

The story of Camp Creek is not a story of a man or a castle . . . rather it is a story of a land, a magnificent park, a valley—the site of much of the early history of Colorado Springs . . . and now the setting for many fine homes—the final destiny of Camp Creek, now WESTMOOR PARK in the shadow of the Garden of the Gods.

SNACK BAR — This is the only eating area provided in the Chidlaw building and is located on the lower level. Pleasantly decorated in bright colors, the snack bar features stand-up dining tables and cafeteria style service and is open to all employes at the building.

Formal Dedication of New ADC Building, Thursday

More than 70 high - ranking civilian and military dignitaries are expected to attend the formal dedication Thursday of the new Chidlaw Building, Headquarters Air Defense Command.

The colorful public ceremony will be held outside the main lobby entrance on E. Bijou Street starting at 10:45 a.m.

Highlight of the dedication will be the unveiling of a portrait of retired Air Force General Benjamin W. Chidlaw for whom the building is named and who will attend as a guest of honor.

Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, ADC commander will unveil the portrait which was painted by T. Sgt. Manuel J. Rodriguez, a NORAD illustrator. It will be permanantly displayed in the place of honor inside the main lobby of the building.

Gen. Chidlaw is a former ADC commander and was the first commander of the Continental Air Defense Command.

Scheduled to take part in the dedication program, in addition to Gen. Lee and Gen. Chidlaw, are G. E. McNamara, administrator of Region VIII, Government Services Administration; Jack Howard, president of UNITCO Co., owners of the building, and Ralph Tice, construction superintendent of Peter Kiewit and Sons Co.

The NORAD band and the ADC Honor Guard will form on opposite sides of the flag pole in front of the main entrance for the dedication ceremonies.

The public will have an opportunity to tour the non-classified facilities of the building starting at 11:30 a.m. ADC civil engineers will conduct these public tours which will be held until 1:15 p.m. All tours will start from the main lobby.

Among the civilian dignitaries invited to attend are U. S. Sen. Gordon Allott, U. S. Sen. Peter Dominick, Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth, Gov. John A. Love, Mayor William C. Henderson, City Manager John M. Biery; Keith McBurney, chairman of El Paso County Commissioners; Blakemore McCarty, president of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, and O. Donald Olson, president of the Colorado Springs Air Power Council.

Military guests invited include Gen. John K. Gerhart, CINC NORAD; Air Marshall C. Roy Slemon, deputy CINC NORAD; Lt. Gen. W. W. Dick, ARADCOM commander; Rear Adm. Thomas A. Ahroon, Naval Forces CONAD commander; Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, commander of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Ft. Carson; Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren, Air Force Academy superintendent, and former ADC commanders, now retired, Gen. Earle E. Partridge and Lt. Gen. Joseph H. Atkinson.

The U. S. Air Force headquarters will be represented by Maj. Gen. A. M. Minton, director of civil engineering.

In event of inclement weather, the dedication program will be held in the main entrance lobby of the Chidlaw Building.

The Chidlaw Building is the largest structure in Colorado Springs. It covers 300,000 square feet of space and provides work facilities for some 1,700 military and civilian employes. It is the hub of activity for the 110,000-man-strong Air Defense Command, the U. S. Air Force element of the joint U. S. - Canadian North American Air Defense Command.

The structure will be rented by the government at an annual rental of $500,000 and for the first time since NORAD was created will consolidate all of the offices of the ADC under one roof.

The building, which occupies enough space for four football fields, contains approximately 400 rooms. There are 722 interior doors, 1,800 telephones, a communications operations center and special telephone equipment and exchange rooms.

The corridors total about six-tenths of a mile in length on each of the two floors. Also included are several briefing rooms and a 200-seat briefing auditorium divisible by a folding partition into two equal spaces for added utility.

The warroom or vault is doubly protected against fallout and blast in event of nuclear attack and is under constant electronic surveillance to guard against spying devices.

The building has no windows and has its own emergency source of electricity, gas, water and other necessities.

Nine months were required to complete construction on the building which is being leased by the federal government's General Services Administration for 10 years.

Chidlaw and Lee To Take Part In Dedication

The man who built the Continental Air Defense Command to its present status and the man who now heads the ADC will come together Thursday to dedicate the ADC's new mammoth headquarters in the Chidlaw Building.

Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, retired, for whom the building is named, and Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, present commander, will take part in the ceremonies scheduled to begin at 10:45 a.m.

During the ceremonies Gen. Lee will unveil a portrait of Gen. Chidlaw which will be hung in a place of honor in the lobby of the building.

The portrait and the dedication will honor the man who in 1951 was given the task of building up a force which could be up to the mission of defending the United States from air attack.

His success was recognized when the force was designated as the first truly joint command involving the Air Force, Army, Navy and Marines inside this country.

Under Gen. Lee's command, the ADC has grown even more. It has seen the development, among other things of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Early Warning System (BMEWS).

And for the first time, all of the offices of the ADC are now located under one roof.

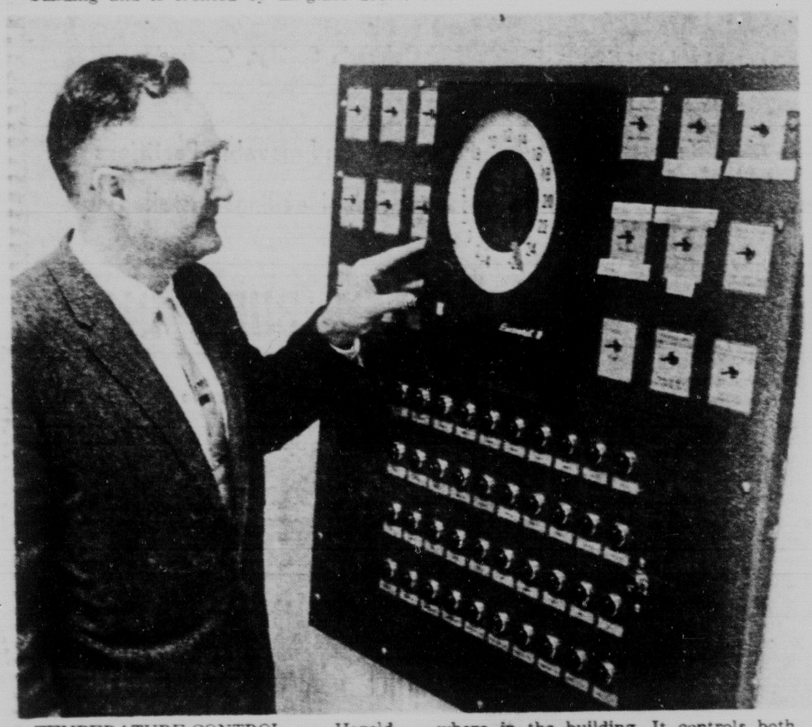
Gen. Chidlaw, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, who now makes his home in Colorado Springs, was a lieutenant general in 1951 when he was named commander-in-chief of the CADC. He is a graduate of West Point with the class of 1922, the Air Corps Flying School in 1924, the Air Corps Engineering School in 1931, the Air Corps Tactical School in 1936 and the Command and General Staff School in 1937.

Among other accomplishments Gen. Chidlaw directed the testing of the B-17 bombers, one of the workhorses of World War II, and was one of the first men to fly jet planes.

Gen. Lee was appointed as commander-in-chief of ADC in 1961. Prior to this appointment he had served as vice commander-in-chief for two years.

He attended West Point and graduated with the class of 1931. He graduated from the Air Corps Primary and Advanced Flying Schools and in 1942 organized and activated the 73rd Observation Group.

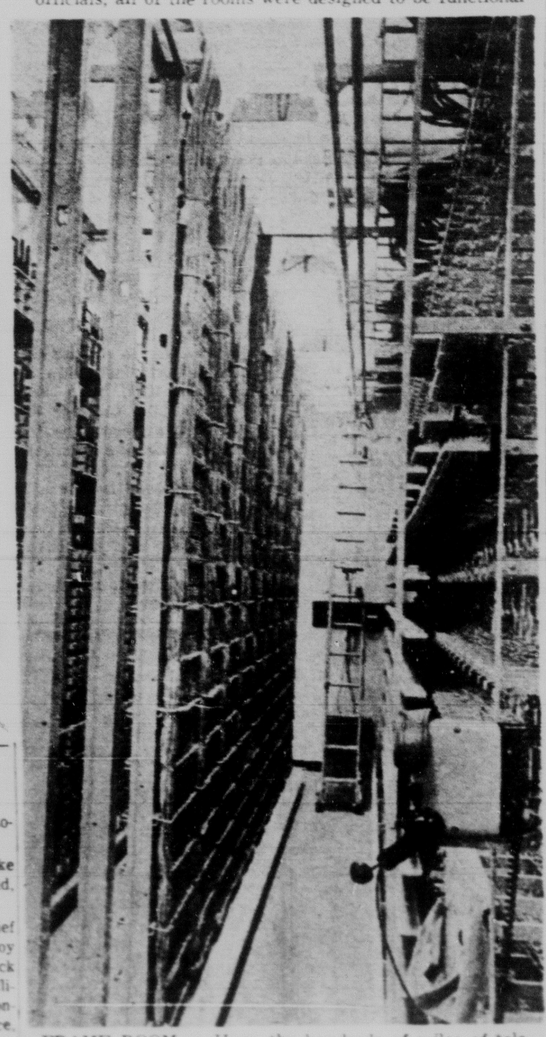
In 1958 he was named an chief of staff, United Nations Command and United States Forces in Seoul, Korea, a post he held until coming to Colorado Springs in 1960.



TEMPERATURE CONTROL — Harold Hasfjord, resident engineer for the ADC checks over the temperature control panel on the lower level of the Chidlaw building. The panel automatically points out deficiencies in the flow of air anywhere in the building. It controls both the flow of air coming into the building and leaving. The building has no windows and must rely on this method of circulation.

ENGINEERING ROOM — This is one of several civil engineering rooms at the Chidlaw building and these are the only rooms laid out this way. As explained by officials, all of the rooms were designed to be functional and most of the offices contain no more than three or four desks and persons. The bay rooms were designed for use of engineers, both military and civil, because of the nature of their work.

COMMAND RECEPTION — This command reception room is located on the lower level of the Chidlaw building and is used as a general reception room for visitors. At right rear, are the offices which will be used by visiting generals and officials. The receptionist at left is Jan Smith.



FRAME ROOM — Here, the hundreds of miles of telephone lines which connect the Chidlaw building offices to each other and to the rest of the country terminate. Officials explained that this room holds only regular communications wiring. Wiring for special communications are located elsewhere.

Heart Fund Short of $25,000 Goal

Only $11,825.45 has been received so far for the Heart Fund which has a goal of $25,000. Mrs. Frances Whyte, treasurer, in announcing the figure Saturday, mentioned that El Paso County will receive more than $25,000 in benefits from Heart Association work this year.

"Almost $11,000 will be used for the cholesterol research program alone," she said. "Another $13,370 will be saved by 382 persons in this county who are on the low-cost penicillin program for rheumatic fever victims."

She pointed out that another several thousand dollars will be spent here by the Colorado Heart Association in educational materials and research reports to professional medical personnel. This does not include the materials available to all residents of the area on prevention and care of heart disease.

Heart Sunday donations are still being received by mail, these total so far $7,072.73. Donations from business and go-clubs are only $2,643.79 and memorials $1,326.68.

Other miscellaneous activities and contributions have brought the total received up to $11,825.45.

All donations may be mailed to Heart Fund, in care of the Colorado Commercial Bank, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Firemen Have Busy Night Answering Calls

The Colorado Springs fire department had a busy night Friday responding to various calls.

At 6:38 p.m. an alarm was received of a fire at the residence of M. Sgt. Eugene E. Spencer, 923 N. Weber St. The fire was caused by electric wiring. Some floor joists were burned and there was smoke damage. Companies 2, 7 and the aerial put out the fire.

The next call was at 7:32 p.m. Company 4 and Battalion Chief Bernard Bailey washed gasoline from the street in the 1800 block on Pikes Peak Ave. that had been left there from a car accident.

At 10:13 p.m. Company 1 put out a trash fire on the Superstein Steel and Supply Co. grounds, 102 W. Cucharras St. No damage was done.

At 12 midnight a box alarm turned in from 30th and Kiowa Streets, brought out companies 3 and 5. It turned out to be a false alarm.

At 12:51 p.m. Friday Company 4 put out a grass fire at 324 Circle Dr. and at 5:43 p.m. Friday Companies 1 and 4 resuscitator crews went to 724 E. High St. where Mike Mitchell, 15 months old child of Mrs. Loretta Mitchell, of 733 E. High St., was having difficulty breathing. An inhalator was used for eight minutes when the boy was restored to normal breathing.

Grease Jar Causes Car Crash Wednesday

A jar of grease, perched uncovered on the front seat of a car, was listed as the cause of a two - car crash and $500 damages to the vehicles involved.

Mickey F. Miller, 56, of 822 E. Monument St., admitted to police investigators that she failed to notice a stop sign at the Del Norte Street and Nevada Avenue intersection when she, momentarily, turned her attention from the road to the open grease jar on the front seat.

The Miller car, according to the police report, proceeded into Nevada Avenue, from Del Norte Street, and across the path of a southbound car driven by Carolyn H. James, 53, of 2329 Revere Lane.

Both car drivers escaped injury in the collision, which occurred at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

SNACK BAR — This is the only eating area provided in the Chidlaw building and is located on the lower level. Pleasantly decorated in bright colors, the snack bar features stand-up dining tables and cafeteria style service and is open to all employes at the building.

Formal Dedication of New ADC Building, Thursday

More than 70 high - ranking civilian and military dignitaries are expected to attend the formal dedication Thursday of the new Chidlaw Building, Headquarters Air Defense Command.

The colorful public ceremony will be held outside the main lobby entrance on E. Bijou Street starting at 10:45 a.m.

Highlight of the dedication will be the unveiling of a portrait of retired Air Force General Benjamin W. Chidlaw for whom the building is named and who will attend as a guest of honor.

Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, ADC commander will unveil the portrait which was painted by T. Sgt. Manuel J. Rodriguez, a NORAD illustrator. It will be permanantly displayed in the place of honor inside the main lobby of the building.

Gen. Chidlaw is a former ADC commander and was the first commander of the Continental Air Defense Command.

Scheduled to take part in the dedication program, in addition to Gen. Lee and Gen. Chidlaw, are G. E. McNamara, administrator of Region VIII, Government Services Administration; Jack Howard, president of UNITCO Co., owners of the building, and Ralph Tice, construction superintendent of Peter Kiewit and Sons Co.

The NORAD band and the ADC Honor Guard will form on opposite sides of the flag pole in front of the main entrance for the dedication ceremonies.

The public will have an opportunity to tour the non-classified facilities of the building starting at 11:30 a.m. ADC civil engineers will conduct these public tours which will be held until 1:15 p.m. All tours will start from the main lobby.

Among the civilian dignitaries invited to attend are U. S. Sen. Gordon Allott, U. S. Sen. Peter Dominick, Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth, Gov. John A. Love, Mayor William C. Henderson, City Manager John M. Biery, Keith McBurney, chairman of El Paso County Commissioners, Blakemore McCarty, president of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, and O. Donald Olson, president of the Colorado Springs Air Power Council.

Military guests invited include Gen. John K. Gerhart, CINC NORAD; Air Marshall C. Roy Slemon, deputy CINC NORAD; Lt. Gen. W. W. Dick, ARADCOM commander; Rear Adm. Thomas A. Abroon, Naval Forces CONAD commander; Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, commander of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Ft. Carson; Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren, Air Force Academy superintendent, and former ADC commanders, now retired, Gen. Earle E. Partridge and Lt. Gen. Joseph H. Atkinson.

The U. S. Air Force headquarters will be represented by Maj. Gen. A. M. Minton, director of civil engineering.

In event of inclement weather, the dedication program will be held in the main entrance lobby of the Chidlaw Building.

Colorado Ratifies Poll Tax Amendment

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Friday completed ratification of an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to abolish the poll tax as a requirement to vote.

After approval by both houses of the legislature, the measure was signed by Lt. Gov. Robert Knous and, as the final step, by House Speaker John Vanderhoof. It was sponsored by State Sen. George Brown, first Negro ever to be elected to the Colorado Senate.

Council Division Supports Court Prayer Decision

DENVER (UPI) — The National Council of Churches' Division of Christian Education has proposed a policy statement supporting the Supreme Court's school prayer decision but suggesting that school boards should determine whether "a brief devotional period with prayer to God" be part of school programs.

The proposed five-page statement was submitted to the policy making General Board of the National Council at the close of its meeting. It will be considered at the board's next meeting, in New York June 6-7.

"We endorse the ruling of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Regents' Prayer case that 'in this country it is no part of the business of government to compose official prayers,'" the statement says. "But whether the school program should include a brief devotional period with prayer to God may well be left to the judgment of the board responsible for the program of the public schools of the local community."

The statement would "reaffirm our support of the system of public education" and call on all Christians to work for improvement of public schools through "positive steps" such as working for improved legislative and financial support.

The statement also supports "the right of religious groups to establish and maintain schools at their own expense provided they meet prescribed educational standards."

Although the statement says neither church nor state should use public schools "to compel acceptance of any creed or conformity to any specific religious practice," it notes that "information about religion is an essential part of many school subjects...

"No person is truly educated for life in the modern world who is not aware of the vital part played by religion in the shaping of our history and culture."

In presenting the statement, the Division of Education said it was approved unanimously by its administrative board in St. Louis Feb. 14.

The conclusion of the meeting of the General Board was witnessed by 16 Russian Orthodox and Protestant clergymen from the Soviet Union who were invited to attend at observers.

Their presence here has created considerable controversy, climaxed by a protest rally in City Auditorium last night at which Dr. Carl McIntire, president of the International Council of Christian Churches, attacked them as "spies."

In New York City there are 13,289 places to post a letter, including mail boxes, mail drops, and branch post offices in the metropolitan area.

Increase of Venereal Disease Is Reported

DENVER (AP) — Almost twice as many cases of venereal diseases have been reported in Colorado during the first two months of this year as compared with last year.

Dr. C. S. Mollohan, State Health Department official, said today 94 cases of venereal diseases were reported during the period as compared with 51 cases last year, nearly half of the cases were reported from Denver.

Last year was Colorado's worst for the diseases since World War II with a total of 522 reported. In 1961 there were only 345 cases.

Dr. Mollohan said many of the nation's larger cities had increases ranging from 200 to 300 per cent in venereal diseases two years ago. "It's just now beginning to hit us," he added.

If engaged in combat, a dove, considered an emblem of peace, will mercilessly peck an opponent to death.

Uranium Milling Plant at Durango Will Be Closed

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — The Vanadium Corp. of America announced here it will close its uranium milling plant at Durango and a concentrator plant at Naturita, Colo., because of high costs and unprofitable operations.

G. LaMont Weissenburger, president and chairman of VCA, said the action is effective "soon after March 1."

Operations at the two plants will be shifted to Shiprock, N. M., where, Weissenburger said, a new plant is being purchased, together with related mills. The plant was bought from Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc.

About 150 are employed at the Durango plant and 35 at Naturita. Weissenburger said some will be transferred to Shiprock, but he gave no estimate.

He said mining and ore purchases on the Colorado Plateau of Colorado and Utah will not be affected.

Since 1958 when Atomic Energy Commission contracts were revised to provide for reduced production of uranium concentrates, the official said, company operations on the Colorado Plateau have shown increasing losses.

These have been aggravated by higher mining and processing costs, lower grade ores and the reduced availability of ores, Weissenburger said.

Assembly Must Amend Bond Law During Session

DENVER (UPI)— State Education Commissioner Byron Hansford said here the current State Legislature may have to straighten out Colorado's school bond election law before adjourning to meet the challenge of a district court decision that the law is unconstitutional.

Dist. Judge Addison M. Gooding ruled in Hot Sulphur Springs here that two sections of the bond law are invalid.

Gooding struck down one section on grounds that it fails to establish a reasonable time between rejection of a bond issue by voters and the submission of the same question to the electorate again. Another section, prohibiting absentee voting in municipal or school elections, was held to be discriminatory.

Hansford said the decision casts a shadow on any bond issues passed from now on under the current law, pending appeal court action or a change in the law.

The commissioner said Gooding's ruling drew attention to the need for recodification of state school laws and noted the State Department of Education has submitted recommendations for same to the General Assembly.

Gooding's decision was made as he granted an injunction against a proposed election March 4 on a $639,000 bond issue for the East Grand County School District. The election was scheduled after voters rejected the bond issue, 296-293, in December.

Gooding said it was "intolerable" to schedule two elections on the same subject within such a short period of time.

The Grand Lake Chamber of Commerce and a group of Grand Lake residents filed the injunction petition.

The proposed bond issue would finance a school construction program that involved closing elementary schools in Grand Lake and Hot Sulphur Springs. Children would be transported to schools in Granby and Fraser.

Railway Labor Act Revival Is Seen by Morse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said here Congress may have to revise the Railway Labor Act to deal with the problem of job losses due to automation.

Morse, an authority on labor-management relations, made the statement during questioning of Howard G. Gamser of New York by the Senate Labor Committee. The committee approved Gamser's appointment to the National Mediation Board which mediates labor disputes involving railroads and airlines.

"It is only a matter of time," Morse said, "probably at this session before Congress will have to give careful consideration to revising the Railway Labor Act."

He said the "problem of automation" is bound to increase and some method will have to be found for settling disputes brought about by job losses without resorting to compulsory arbitration.

The railroads have served notice on operating unions that they will put work rule changes into effect that would lay off thousands of workers and the unions have served notice they will strike. The dispute is now in the courts.

Colorado Ratifies Poll Tax Amendment

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Friday completed ratification of an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to abolish the poll tax as a requirement to vote.

After approval by both houses of the legislature, the measure was signed by Lt. Gov. Robert Knous and, as the final step, by House Speaker John Vanderhoof. It was sponsored by State Sen. George Brown, first Negro ever to be elected to the Colorado Senate.

Council Division Supports Court Prayer Decision

DENVER (UPI) — The National Council of Churches' Division of Christian Education has proposed a policy statement supporting the Supreme Court's school prayer decision but suggesting that school boards should determine whether "a brief devotional period with prayer to God" be part of school programs.

The proposed five-page statement was submitted to the policy making General Board of the National Council at the close of its meeting. It will be considered at the board's next meeting, in New York June 6-7.

"We endorse the ruling of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Regents' Prayer case that 'in this country it is no part of the business of government to compose official prayers,' " the statement says. "But whether the school program should include a brief devotional period with prayer to God may well be left to the judgment of the board responsible for the program of the public schools of the local community."

The statement would "reaffirm our support of the system of public education" and call on all Christians to work for improvement of public schools through "positive steps" such as working for improved legislative and financial support.

The statement also supports "the right of religious groups to establish and maintain schools at their own expense provided they meet prescribed educational standards."

Although the statement says neither church nor state should use public schools "to compel acceptance of any creed or conformity to any specific religious practice," it notes that "information about religion is an essential part of many school subjects...

"No person is truly educated for life in the modern world who is not aware of the vital part played by religion in the shaping of our history and culture."

In presenting the statement, the Division of Education said it was approved unanimously by its administrative board in St. Louis Feb. 14.

The conclusion of the meeting of the General Board was witnessed by 16 Russian Orthodox and Protestant clergymen from the Soviet Union who were invited to attend at observers.

Their presence here has created considerable controversy, climaxed by a protest rally in City Auditorium last night at which Dr. Carl McIntire, president of the International Council of Christian Churches, attacked them as "spies."

In New York City there are 13,289 places to post a letter, including mail boxes, mail drops, and branch post offices in the metropolitan area.

Increase of Venereal Disease is Reported

DENVER (AP) — Almost twice as many cases of venereal diseases have been reported in Colorado during the first two months of this year as compared with last year.

Dr. C. S. Mollohan, State Health Department official, said today 94 cases of venereal diseases were reported during the period as compared with 51 cases last year. nearly half of the cases were reported from Denver.

Last year was Colorado's worst for the diseases since World War II with a total of 522 reported. In 1961 there were only 345 cases.

Dr. Mollohan said many of the nation's larger cities had increases ranging from 200 to 300 per cent in venereal diseases two years ago. "It's just now beginning to hit us," he added.

Dates Set for Colorado Caller and Fiddler Contest

The dates for the 27th Annual Offical Colorado Square Dance, Calling and Fiddlers Contest were announced Saturday by Clifford P. Marple, commander, Zebulon Pikes Chapter No. 1, Disabled American Veterans, sponsor of the popular event. They are April 19th and 26th and May 3rd.

In the early 1930's participatnts in the Annual Seed Show, which was held in the City Auditorium, brought their meeting to a conclusion with a square dance. Square dance sets were composed of exhibitors from the various Colorado counties.

When the seed show was discountinued, square dance enthusiasts were looking for some organization to sponsor and revive square dancing.

The Disabled American Veterans, thru the effort and cooperation of such old - timers as T. F. "Pop" Rooney; Merle "Tiny" Jones; Ted Flinn; Boyda and Oscar Babcock; Harold Hamilton; Frank Conner and others inaugurated the State Square Dance, Callers and Fiddlers Contest. C. Merle "Tiny" Jones was contest manager and master of ceremonies. There have been only four master of ceremonies during the existence of the contest. They were: C. Merle "Tiny" Jones; Lloyd "Pappy" Shaw; Darius Allen; and D. L. "Andy" Anderson.

As in the past, eliminations will be held on the first two Friday nights with the three best fiddlers, callers and square dance teams qualifying for places in the finals or championship night on May 2rd.

Trophies will be presented to the winners and runners up on the championship night in the fiddling and calling contest.

Each member of the first and second place winning set in the open division will receive a medallion — gold for first place and silver for second.

There will be three divisions in the square dance contest: One for pre-teens; the teen-agers, 4-H groups, etc.; and the open contest.

Persons interested in competing may secure information and entry blanks by writing Zebulon Pike Chapter No. 1, Disabled American Veterans, Post Office Box 435, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Lewis J. Moore Ends Combat Training

Marine Pfc. Lewis J. Moore, son of Paul E. Moore of 2415 N. Wahsatch Ave., has completed four weeks of individual combat training at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The course includes training in mines and booby traps, demolitions, small unit tactics, camouflage, scouting and patrolling, weapons instruction on the flame thrower, rocket launcher, hand and rifle grenades and hand-to-hand combat.

Pfc. Moore will now report to the Technical Training Center at Memphis, Tenn. for formal schooling in an aviation specialty.

Moore, a 1962 graduate of Wasson High School, enlisted in the Marines delay enlistment program for aviation duty last September, leaving for active duty on Nov. 1.

Carson Soldier Versatile in Military Jobs

From merchandising to military writing was the change made by Cpl. Michael J. Whiteman, information clerk and historian in the 2nd Battalion, 61st Infantry.

His last civilian job was field editor and photographer for "Chain Store Age," which serves merchandising businesses from New York City.

He had also written for "Hi Fi Stereo Review" and worked as a freelance writer in advertising and public relations in the New York area after graduation from New York's Syracuse University.

Now he looks forward to "Exercise Coulee Crest" which will bring the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) from Ft. Carson to Yakima, Wash., in May. Whiteman flew to "Exercise Swift Strike II" last August armed with his portable typewriter and feels that he's a seasoned peacetime field correspondent.

While a scholarship student at Syracuse, he was music director for the school FM station which pioneered classical music broadcasting in the area. He also wrote for the "Daily Orange," university newspaper.

He was an English major in college with engineering and journalism as minor studies. He is studying economics by correspondence from the University of California where he plans to enroll later for graduate study.

Mrs. Whiteman is art director for William Barber & Co. in Colorado Springs. She is a graduate of Brooklyn's Pratt Institute and worked in the advertising field in New York City. The Whitemans live at 1124 N. Weber St.

Where oh, where have all those old things gone that used to be ours?

What, we wonder, has happened to those old black iron pots that always stood on the back of mother's coal range after a big Sunday dinner of fried chicken, potatoes, peas and gravy? They were always there, with their tin covers and their crying need of being washed.

One pot I remember had a three little short legs on its bottom, while the others had smooth, round bottoms without legs. They were soot covered up to about an inch high on their sides and of course could not be placed in the dish pan to be washed but had to be perched perilously on the pan's edge while the soapy water was dashed inside. A good job of washing necessitated reaching into that black depth and using the pot scraper well-lathered with Kirk's White Russian soap, and all this while we sisters had on our best Sunday dresses with tight sleeves that reached to our wrists and could not be pushed up more than about four inches, and also our tight ribbon collars that we never thought to loosen or take off.

Along with this pot washing experience were the boys who had come out from town for one of mother's good Sunday dinners. Of course the most of them were easily persuaded to dry the dishes for us, and lighten the work with their company but still it is with distaste that I am recalling those old black iron pots, while I wonder what has become of them.

One day while Charles Morse, who later in life became a popular surgeon in Alamosa, Colo., obligingly sought to take our minds off the unpleasant task of "doing the dishes" and also to keep from having to wipe the plates, tied a cord to the knob of the cupboard door and by using his mouth, the knob, and both hands made a wonderfully performing see-saw.

He was going back and forth to our great amusement when the cupboard door flew open and gave him a smart bump on his forehead. I believe that even the black pots enjoyed that joke.

I'm wondering, too, what has become of those wash boards that rubbed holes as well as the soil from our clothing, and the three wooden tubs that came out every Monday morning to help the washboards. Later those heavy old fellows were replaced by tin tubs that refused to hold the clamps of the wringer unless they were reinforced by a wooden contrivance with hooks.

Wash-day meant we sisters must take our turns at "turning the wringer." That old wringer would not have looked so ugly to us if we had been allowed to put the pillow slips in open end first. They made such a nice fuss getting through the wringer, when they were filled with air, a procedure which mother did not approve.

I have a curiosity, too, to know what became of that old Missouri Steam Washer, the one that Mrs. W. B. Jones of Ivywild sold to mother, even though mother had warned her neighbor "not to bring any new-fangled thing to our house." But Mrs. Jones proved to have a good sales-talk and along with a practical demonstration she landed that washer in mother's kitchen and for years it was a most useful and valued machine. It had a wheel in the galvanized boiler, a wheel which held the clothes and was surrounded by hollow pipes through which the steam penetrated the contents of the washer. I might not have had any aversion to the washer if it could have been run by machinery but it required our turning the crank of the wheel and that too in front of a roaring coal fire in thex range, so that the water should be kept at a boiling point.

One day Curt Goerke came over from Manitou to show us his new rifle. I was downtown that afternoon but he and mother and Lucy had a grand time practicing with it, using the shop door as a convenient target. They had had a few rounds apiece when mother suddenly heard a bell ringing in the ship and came to the realization that the shots might be going through the door and hitting some of the things that were stored inside. Sure enough, the old Missouri Steam Washer was in the direct line of fire but its galvanized sides were strong enough to withstand the attack and came through the fray unharmed. "Just think," mother said, "What if we had made holes in that washer."

Father had a grindstone that had passed into oblivion, but I have not forgotten it and "wonder who's turning it now." I used to think that brother made up the excuses he gave for having work elsewhere whenever fa ther's axe or other tools needed grinding. I just knew that if father could realize how hard that old stone turned about in its wooden frame that he would not have borne his axe down so hard on the wheel.

One other old antique that is probably rusting on the hillside near the ash pile is that tin pie pan that used to hold the two pieces of brick and the brick dust that we used to scour the steel knives after breakfast each morning. How I hated the sight of that little pan, it's red gritty contents and its piece of gray flannel that we used to scour with. Only occasionally did the forks need the rubbing that the knives required and for that I am still grateful to the forks. If it were not for bringing back that old red scouring brick pan I gladly welcome back the keen edged knives that cut the steaks so neatly. But come to think of it, I wonder where the steaks have gone?

Need we wonder where all the old things have gone? They have gone "down the back entry of time."

The most of our family antiques are deep under the ashes on the hillside here.

P. S. My sister Lucy has an antique that she prizes. It's a black metal box and on its cover are these words, "Standard Tackle Box." Sister uses it to hold her little tack hammer. The lock is temperamental and often refuses to let the box open. So sister keeps the hammer outside on the top of the box so that when the lock refuses to work she can give the lock a tap with the hammer, so she can get the box open so she can put the hammer inside. Easy enough if it is tackled right.

Academy High To Give Concert Wednesday

The Air Academy High School Band will present its annual winter concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, in the high school auditorium. The band is directed by Keith W. Carter.

Selections included on the program are: "Concert Overture" by Robert G. Johnson, "The Impresario" overture by W. A. Mozart, "American Heritage" (A suite for band) by James D. Ployhar, Mozarts' "Trauermusik" K. 447, "The Golden Eagle" by Harold Walters, "The Band of Bands" by Ted Mesang, excerpts from "Brigadoon" by Frederick Lowe, "Theme for Tomorrow" by Fred Kepner, Harold Walter's "La Mascarada" and "Deep River Rhapsody."

Miss Elizabeth Shellaberger, vocal music director at AAHS, will be guest soloist with the band. She will sing Leonard Bernstein's "I Just Found Out Today" and "Climb Every Mountain" from Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music." Larry J. Perkins, junior high school band director for the Air Academy Schools, will be guest conductor.

David Sprinkel will be student soloist. He will play "A" Trumpeter's Lullaby" by Leroy Anderson.

There is no admission charge for the concert and the public is cordially invited to attend.

COLD WAR CASUALTY—Even for a make-believe soldier, war game can be fearsome and fatiguing, as three-year-old Randy Caulfield of Merriam, Kan., discovered. His arm got stuck in a toy cannon. Finally the cannon had to be cut apart to free him. Working on the toy is police Capt. Michael Donahue. Randy wasn't hurt. (AP Wirephoto)

Carson Soldier Versatile in Military Jobs

From merchandising to military writing was the change made by Cpl. Michael J. Whiteman, information clerk and historian in the 2nd Battalion, 61st Infantry.

His last civilian job was field editor and photographer for "Chain Store Age," which serves merchandising businesses from New York City.

He had also written for "Hi Fi Stereo Review" and worked as a freelance writer in advertising and public relations in the New York area after graduation from New York's Syracuse University.

Now he looks forward to "Exercise Coulee Crest" which will bring the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) from Ft. Carson to Yakima, Wash., in May. Whiteman flew to "Exercise Swift Strike II" last August armed with his portable typewriter and feels that he's a seasoned peacetime field correspondent.

While a scholarship student at Syracuse, he was music director for the school FM station which pioneered classical music broadcasting in the area. He also wrote for the "Daily Orange," university newspaper.

He was an English major in college with engineering and journalism as minor studies. He is studying economics by correspondence from the University of California where he plans to enroll later for graduate study.

Mrs. Whiteman is art director for William Barber & Co. in Colorado Springs. She is a graduate of Brooklyn's Pratt Institute and worked in the advertising field in New York City. The Whitemans live at 1124 N. Weber St.

Where oh, where have all those old things gone that used to be ours?

What, we wonder, has happened to those old black iron pots that always stood on the back of mother's coal range after a big Sunday dinner of fried chicken, potatoes, peas and gravy? They were always there, with their tin covers and their crying need of being washed.

One pot I remember had a three little short legs on its bottom, while the others had smooth, round bottoms without legs. They were soot covered up to about an inch high on their sides and of course could not be placed in the dish pan to be washed but had to be perched perilously on the pan's edge while the soapy water was dashed inside. A good job of washing necessitated reaching into that black depth and using the pot scraper well-lathered with Kirk's White Russian soap, and all this while we sisters had on our best Sunday dresses with tight sleeves that reached to our wrists and could not be pushed up more than about four inches, and also our tight ribbon collars that we never thought to loosen or take off.

Along with this pot washing experience were the boys who had come out from town for one of mother's good Sunday dinners. Of course the most of them were easily persuaded to dry the dishes for us, and lighten the work with their company but still it is with distaste that I am recalling those old black iron pots, while I wonder what has become of them.

One day while Charles Morse, who later in life became a popular surgeon in Alamosa, Colo., obligingly sought to take our minds off the unpleasant task of "doing the dishes" and also to keep from having to wipe the plates, tied a cord to the knob of the cupboard door and by using his mouth, the knob, and both hands made a wonderfully performing see-saw.

He was going back and forth to our great amusement when the cupboard door flew open and gave him a smart bump on his forehead. I believe that even the black pots enjoyed that joke.

I'm wondering, too, what has become of those wash boards that rubbed holes as well as the soil from our clothing, and the three wooden tubs that came out every Monday morning to help the washboards. Later those heavy old fellows were replaced by tin tubs that refused to hold the clamps of the wringer unless they were reinforced by a wooden contrivance with hooks.

Wash-day meant we sisters must take our turns at "turning the wringer." That old wringer would not have looked so ugly to us if we had been allowed to put the pillow slips in open end first. They made such a nice fuss getting through the wringer, when they were filled with air, a procedure which mother did not approve.

I have a curiosity, too, to know what became of that old Missouri Steam Washer, the one that Mrs. W. B. Jones of Ivywild sold to mother, even though mother had warned her neighbor "not to bring any new-fangled thing to our house." But Mrs. Jones proved to have a good sales-talk and along with a practical demonstration she landed that washer in mother's kitchen and for years it was a most useful and valued machine. It had a wheel in the galvanized boiler, a wheel which held the clothes and was surrounded by hollow pipes through which the steam penetrated the contents of the washer. I might not have had any aversion to the washer if it could have been run by machinery but it required our turning the crank of the wheel and that too in front of a roaring coal fire in thex range, so that the water should be kept at a boiling point.

One day Curt Goerke came over from Manitou to show us his new rifle. I was downtown that afternoon but he and mother and Lucy had a grand time practicing with it, using the shop door as a convenient target. They had had a few rounds apiece when mother suddenly heard a bell ringing in the ship and came to the realization that the shots might be going through the door and hitting some of the things that were stored inside. Sure enough, the old Missouri Steam Washer was in the direct line of fire but its galvanized sides were strong enough to withstand the attack and came through the fray unharmed. "Just think," mother said, "What if we had made holes in that washer."

Father had a grindstone that had passed into oblivion, but I have not forgotten it and "wonder who's turning it now." I used to think that brother made up the excuses he gave for having work elsewhere whenever father's axe or other tools needed grinding. I just knew that if father could realize how hard that old stone turned about in its wooden frame that he would not have borne his axe down so hard on the wheel.

One other old antique that is probably rusting on the hillside near the ash pile is that tin pie pan that used to hold the two pieces of brick and the brick dust that we used to scour the steel knives after breakfast each morning. How I hated the sight of that little pan, it's red gritty contents and its piece of gray flannel that we used to scour with. Only occasionally did the forks need the rubbing that the knives required and for that I am still grateful to the forks. If it were not for bringing back that old red scouring brick pan I gladly welcome back the keen edged knives that cut the steaks so neatly. But come to think of it, I wonder where the steaks have gone?

Need we wonder where all the old things have gone? They have gone "down the back entry of time."

The most of our family antiques are deep under the ashes on the hillside here.

P. S. My sister Lucy has an antique that she prizes. It's a black metal box and on its cover are these words, "Standard Tackle Box." Sister uses it to hold her little tack hammer. The lock is tempermental and often refuses to let the box open. So sister keeps the hammer outside on the top of the box so that when the lock refuses to work she can give the lock a tap with the hammer, so she can get the box open so she can put the hammer inside. Easy enough if it is tackled right.

Academy High To Give Concert Wednesday

The Air Academy High School Band will present its annual winter concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, in the high school auditorium. The band is directed by Keith W. Carter.

Selections included on the program are: "Concert Overture" by Robert G. Johnson, "The Impresario" overture by W. A. Mozart, "American Heritage" (A suite for band) by James D. Ployhar, Mozarts' "Trauermusik" K. 447, "The Golden Eagle" by Harold Walters, "The Band of Bands" by Ted Mesang, excerpts from "Brigadoon" by Frederick Lowe, "Theme for Tomorrow" by Fred Kepner, Harold Walter's "La Mascarada" and "Deep River Rhapsody."

Miss Elizabeth Shellaberger, vocal music director at AAHS, will be guest soloist with the band. She will sing Leonard Bernstein's "I Just Found Out Today" and "Climb Every Mountain" from Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music." Larry J. Perkins, junior high school band director for the Air Academy Schools, will be guest conductor.

David Sprinkel will be student soloist. He will play "A" Trumpeter's Lullaby" by Leroy Anderson.

There is no admission charge for the concert and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Atlanta Racial Barricade Is Torn Down

ATLANTA (UPI) —Street barriers erected last December in an effort to prevent racial block-busting were torn down by the city Friday night on court orders.

The barriers were sometimes called "Atlanta's Berlin wall" by opponents of the measure enforced by the city's board of aldermen.

They weren't walls at all but road barriers of wood and steel that blocked two streets to through traffic for perhaps 200 yards. City workmen had little trouble in hauling them away.

Superior Court Judge George P. Whitman ruled late Friday in an injunction sought by 10 Negro and white residents that the barriers were "illegal and unconstitutional."

Whitman gave the city until March 4 to comply with the directive but Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. instructed workmen to tear them down immediately.

The mayor said he would ask the board of aldermen not to appeal Whitman's ruling. He also said he would ask for authority to create a special real estate commission to draw up a code of ethics covering sale and use of property in transititonal areas.

Allen said he would also instruct the city planning department to institute a complete and comprehensive study of available areas to find which of the areas "could properly and adequately be zoned for open housing."

African Students Stone White Official

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) —African students stoned a white police official as he tried to calm them down after they attacked their principal Friday.

The incident occurred in Evaton, when Lt. Col. William Wessels, district police commandant, visited the Wilberforce Institute escorted by an armored car.

The uproar was caused by the ouster of two students accused of urging fellow Africans not to pay board or tuition fees. When authorities supported the principal's expulsion order, angry students went on strike and stoned anyone who tried to stop them.

THREE INJURED — Three persons, all of Denver, were injured at 3:15 p.m. Saturday when these two vehicles collided on Garden Drive in the Garden of the Gods. Driver of the truck, Benjy C. Kuehling, 25, of Denver, escaped injury but was ticketed for driving on the wrong side of the road by City Park Police Officer J. Camerón. A passenger in the truck, Jean Spike, was treated at Penrose Hospital for face and head lacerations. Driver of the car, Pfc. Bradley G. Alexander, of Fitzsimons Hospital in Denver, escaped injury but two passengers, Angelica Jackson and Orville Burgess, were treated for face and head lacerations and leg abrasions at Ft. Carson Hospital. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

$700 Million in Cash Lost Each Year in U.S.

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Is it "subconscious feelings of fear, guilt, dependence and self-alienation" which makes Americans lose $700 million in cash each year?

This is the theory, at least, of Michael Fooner, chairman of the Committee on Research of the Association of Applied Psychoanalysis. He thinks all those costly feelings may be encouraged by living in "an affluent society." He says, "An individual's psychological disturbance may take the form of loss-proneness with money, comparable with accident proneness in physical injury.

"The individual," says Fooner, "subconsciously poised or cash loss, offers temptation or opportunity to the thief. Criminal and victim act together; and the measure of the victim's responsibility needs to be assessed."

Fooner says a recent survey found that 9.5 million adults in the United States lost cash in a single year. The average was $75 per individual; three out of 10 lost $100 or more.

Fooner thinks a sizeable chunk of the almost three-fourths of a billion dollars in cash lost each year may fall into the hands of pickpockets. All of which has prompted scientists to study the "scientific" techniques of America's pickpockets.

Research men are attracted to pickpockets by finding that criminals in some areas are becoming less skilled in their trade. Dr. Lewis Yablonsky, associate professor of sociology and social welfare of the University of California, Los Angeles, believes that the old sense of craftsmanship is disappearing in many areas of crime. But pickpockets are an exception. Scientists find this is one criminal occupation that has held fast to its "high standards of workmanship."

For one thing, the scientists find that pickpockets or "dips" have a seasonal travel-activity schedule that can be mapped.

After the Christmas season, many head for the warm climate of the East Coast, West Coast and gulf winter resort areas. They are attracted by the heavy influx of tourists.

However, many of the "dips" stay in the major shopping areas in the North, because of the weather, they shift their trade indoors. There is a lot of action in the department stores, according to American Express Co. chief inspector Ben Cunningham. He says the thieves are attracted by crowds of people returning gifts and looking for post-Christmas bargains.

Also popular are train and airplane terminals that service crowds leaving for warm-climate vacations.

As the winter wears on, crowded big city buses become popular. Especially attractive are buses carrying adults with school children, who contribute to the crowding, shoving and horsing around to help distract the adults.

In the spring, people start leaving their overcoats at home. Visitors and returning vacationers start flowing back into the cities. The pickpockets move back outdoors. Many of the "dips" who moved South for the winter come back.

But some of the pickpockets stop off at a fair or a major amusement park.

Easter is a big shopping and travel season. Pickpockets divide their attention between big city stores, crowds on the streets near those stores and bus, train and airplane terminals.

When the summer travel season begins, many pickpockets move to the major overseas shipping ports, the major international airports and major bus and train terminals. Then baseball, horse racing and other big sporting events begin to draw sizeable numbers. Late summer brings football and new opportunities.

Then as November gets under way and Christmas shopping starts, the pickpockets move back to the major shopping districts. This is the major period of activity. Crowds, excitement, drinking and anxieties create a maximum number of d"marks," the scientists report. Pickpocket activity then doubles or triples.

Woman Receives $6.5 Million in Divorce Action

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Cecil Blaffer Hudson, winner of $6.5 million in a divorce action, said here she achieved an ambition—she received a larger settlement than Bobo Rockefeller's $5.5 million.

Mrs. Hudson received the $6.5 million in Domestic Relations Court last week from engineer-businessman Edward J. Hudson—adding to the already huge fortune she inherited from her father.

It was believed to be a record divorce settlement. Mrs. Rockefeller received her $5.5 million in 1954.

Brunette Mrs. Hudson, 43, mother of two sons and a patron of the arts, sighed: "At last it's over. I'm so happy I could sing."

The Hudsons were married in 1943. They separated in 1960 when he sued for divorce. Mrs. Hudson filed a cross-complaint charging cruel treatment and excesses.

Mrs. Hudson also got custody of the couple's two sons.

Judge Wendell Odom also ordered Hudson to pay $1,200 a month child support until the younger son, Robert Lee Blaffer Hudson, 11, is 18. The other boy is Edward Joseph Jr., 14.

Hudson, 58, was given visiting privileges with the boys.

Mrs. Hudson was already a multimillionaire although an estimate of her personal fortune was not available. She is the daughter of Joseph Lee Blaffer, a founder of Humble Oil Co.

Hudson, formerly of New York and New Jersey, founded Hudson Oil & Gas Co., recently sold for $26 million, and was founder and principal stockholder in Hudson Engineering Co.

Mrs. Hudson has an art studio in New York and a home in Newport, R.I.

Stay of Execution Granted Aspen Man

DENVER (UPI)— James Eugene Mogan, scheduled to die in the Colorado gas chamber next week, received an indefinite stay of execution from the Colorado Supreme Court Friday.

Mogan, sentenced to death by a Mesa County District Court jury in Grand Junction, will have his case reviewed by the state high court. The stay was granted to allow time for the study.

Air Force Wants Bigger Role, More Space Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force said Friday it wants a bigger role and more money in space. And if anybody tries to scuttle its Dyna-Soar program it will stand up and fight."

Lt. Gen. James Ferguson, deputy chief of staff, told the House Space Committee if this country waits until there is a known, specific military mission in space, it may find it has waited too long. By then, he said, Russia may have preempted the field.

Ferguson said the Air Force wants to get moving now toward technological advances that will make possible conversion later to specific military projects as they develop. Among its immediate goals would be a "space patrol" that could detect, intercept and if necessary disable a hostile satellite.

"The military space program we have proposed would be expensive," he said, "and it involves expenditures substantially beyond the current level of military space effort. Nevertheless I consider the program a prudent one in a dangerous world."

As for the Dyna-Soar, Ferguson was asked about published reports that it is about to be axed for economy reasons. The project, for which $300 million has been budgeted for the new fiscal year, envisions a winged, manned orbital vehicle which could return under control to the atmosphere and land like a plane.

Ferguson confirmed that this program now is under review.

"I can assure you that the Air Force does and will stand up and fight for the Dyna-Soar," he added. "I think it is an important part of the national program."

Churchill Would Be Grateful for U.S. Citizenship

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill's views on honorary U.S. citizenship have changed. Now, according to word reaching here, the former British prime minister would be "delighted" and "deeply moved by such an honor."

An aide of Rep. Francis Walter, D-Pa., said Friday night Walter had received word from the British Embassy expressing Churchill's acceptance of proposals to confer honorary citizenship on him.

But the 88-year-old Briton "could not undertake any trip overseas for the purpose of participating in ceremonies if honorary citizenship were offered."

Churchill sustained a fractured hip last summer, was hospitalized almost two months, then returned to his London home for convalescence.

Walter, chairman of the House Immigration and Nationality subcommittee which Wednesday approved a bill to confer citizenship, had asked the embassy to determine if Churchill had reversed his stand of 1958 when he rejected such an honor.

"Sir Winston feels that since four American states have now offered him honorary citizenship, or are about to do so, the situation from 1958 has radically changed and he will be delighted to be so honored," said the embassy's reply as quoted by the Washington Post.

Pakistan, Red China Sign New Border Pact

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China and Pakistan signed a border agreement to fix the frontier between the two nations in disputed Kashmir.

The Peking radio said the agreement was signed by Foreign Ministers Chen Yi of Red China and Zulfikar Ali Rhutto of Pakistan.

(In Karachi, the Foreign Office announced that the agreement split the difference on a 3,400-square-mile border area which had been in dispute, giving Red China 2,050 square miles and Pakistan 1,350 square miles.

(The territory alloted to Pakistan included 750 square miles which was not already held by that country, covering the Okran valley and the Hunza salt mines, the Karachi announcement said.)

The Red radio said the agreement goes "into force" today. This appeared to contradict earlier statements that the agreement would be provisional pending settlement of Pakistan's dispute with India over Kashmir.

Auto Not Much Less In Cost Than Coach

BOSTON (UPI) — When the nation's first hard-surfaced road opened in 1796 between Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pa., the trip by stage coach took 12 hours and the fare was $3.50. Today, the American Automobile Association reports, buses making several stops complete the trip in 3 hours and 10 minutes, and the fare is $5.90.

Colorado Demo Party Shows New Life Signs

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado State Democratic Party, which took a licking in the last general election, has rolled over and showed signs of life.

The stirrings began here when Maurice W. Leckenby of Steamboat Springs announced that he was quitting as Democratic national committeeman.

Leckenby's announcement was followed closely by one by Fred M. Betz of Lamar, who said he would not seek re-election as state chairman but instead would enter the race to succeed Leckenby.

Former Gov. Steve McNichols, overwhelmingly defeated in the gubernatorial election last November by Republican John A. Love, indicated he too was interested in the national committeeman's post.

Meanwhile, Roland Faricy, 36, a Pueblo automobile dealer, announced he would seek the party's state chairmanship.

Leckenby, 63, publisher of the Steamboat Springs Pilot, said he was quitting because of poor health. He recently was hospitalized for pneumonia and reportedly suffered severe rib fractures in a fall recently.

Leckenby's letter of resignation also said he felt "a young and more vigorous man can do a better job and help lead us (Democrats) to victory in 1964. Betz is two years older than Leckenby.

McNichols said he would serve as Democratic national committeeman from Colorado if Colorado Democrats "want me to do it." But, he said, "I'm not going to do it if there's any great battle."

Betz said he felt he could better serve the party on the national level.

"It is my conviction that I can be of great value as representative of the party on the national level, and at the same time work closely with other officials of the party in the state."

Long-Distance Dial Becomes Expensive

WASHINGTON (AP)—The parents of George Basle were puzzled but proud that somehow he had learned to dial the Weather Bureau for the latest forecasts.

"We thought it was real cute and smart," said his mother, Mrs. George A. Basle. "It was a Sunday he first did it. George was praying so bad for it to snow so he could play in it, and he went over to the phone and dialed the weather all by himself. He thought he was real big.

"My husband was proud, very proud. He was walking around with his chest out. Only 6, and already he can dial the weather. We were amazed he could get it so rapidly all the time, even when the weather was bad."

That first Sunday, George called the weather nine times. By Feb. 10 he had called the weather 42 times. Then the Basles received their telephone bill. Surprise, it came to $33 for toll calls. Why? George's calls all had been to the Weather Bureau in New York City.

Instead of dialing 9361212 for the recorded Washington weather forecast he had, in each of the 42 calls, prefaced the number with 212, the New York City area code for distance dialing.

But everything turned out good for poppa and George. The telephone company canceled the charges after he explained what had happened.

The uproar was caused by the ouster of two students accused of urging fellow Africans not to pay board or tuition fees. When authorities supported the principal's expulsion order, angry students went on strike and stoned anyone who tried to stop them.

THREE INJURED — Three persons, all of Denver, were injured at 3:15 p.m. Saturday when these two vehicles collided on Garden Drive in the Garden of the Gods. Driver of the truck, Benjy C. Kuehling, 25, of Denver, escaped injury but was ticketed for driving on the wrong side of the road by City Park Police Officer J. Camerón. A passenger in the truck, Jean Spike, was treated at Penrose Hospital for face and head lacerations. Driver of the car, Pfc. Bradley G. Alexander, of Fitzsimons Hospital in Denver, escaped injury but two passengers, Angelica Jackson and Orville Burgess, were treated for face and head lacerations and leg abrasions at Ft. Carson Hospital. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

$700 Million in Cash Lost Each Year in U.S.

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Is it "subconscious feelings of fear, guilt, dependence and self-alienation" which makes Americans lose $700 million in cash each year?

This is the theory, at least, of Michael Fooner, chairman of the Committee on Research of the Association of Applied Psychoanalysis. He thinks all those costly feelings may be encouraged by living in "an affluent society." He says, "An individual's psychological disturbance may take the form of loss-proneness with money, comparable with accident proneness in physical injury.

"The individual," says Fooner, "subconsciously poised or cash loss, offers temptation or opportunity to the thief. Criminal and victim act together; and the measure of the victim's responsibility needs to be assessed."

Fooner says a recent survey found that 9.5 million adults in the United States lost cash in a single year. The average was $75 per individual; three out of 10 lost $100 or more.

Fooner thinks a sizeable chunk of the almost three-fourths of a billion dollars in cash lost each year may fall into the hands of pickpockets. All of which has prompted scientists to study the "scientific" techniques of America's pickpockets.

Research men are attracted to pickpockets by finding that criminals in some areas are becoming less skilled in their trade. Dr. Lewis Yablonsky, associate professor of sociology and social welfare of the University of California, Los Angeles, believes that the old sense of craftsmanship is disappearing in many areas of crime. But pickpockets are an exception. Scientists find this is one criminal occupation that has held fast to its "high standards of workmanship."

For one thing, the scientists find that pickpockets or "dips" have a seasonal travel-activity schedule that can be mapped.

After the Christmas season, many head for the warm climate of the East Coast, West Coast and gulf winter resort areas. They are attracted by the heavy influx of tourists.

However, many of the "dips" stay in the major shopping areas in the North, because of the weather, they shift their trade indoors. There is a lot of action in the department stores, according to American Express Co. chief inspector Ben Cunningham. He says the thieves are attracted by crowds of people returning gifts and looking for post-Christmas bargains.

Also popular are train and airplane terminals that service crowds leaving for warm-climate vacations.

As the winter wears on, crowded big city buses become popular. Especially attractive are buses carrying adults with school children, who contribute to the crowding, shoving and horsing around to help distract the adults.

In the spring, people start leaving their overcoats at home. Visitors and returning vacationers start flowing back into the cities. The pickpockets move back outdoors. Many of the "dips" who moved South for the winter come back.

But some of the pickpockets stop off at a fair or a major amusement park.

Easter is a big shopping and travel season. Pickpockets divide their attention between big city stores, crowds on the streets near those stores and bus, train and airplane terminals.

When the summer travel season begins, many pickpockets move to the major overseas shipping ports, the major international airports and major bus and train terminals. Then baseball, horse racing and other big sporting events begin to draw sizeable numbers. Late summer brings football and new opportunities.

Then as November gets under way and Christmas shopping starts, the pickpockets move back to the major shopping districts. This is the major period of activity. Crowds, excitement, drinking and anxieties create a maximum number of d"marks," the scientists report. Pickpocket activity then doubles or triples.

Woman Receives $6.5 Million in Divorce Action

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Cecil Blaffer Hudson, winner of $6.5 million in a divorce action, said here she achieved an ambition—she received a larger settlement than Bobo Rockefeller's $5.5 million.

Mrs. Hudson received the $6.5 million in Domestic Relations Court last week from engineer-businessman Edward J. Hudson—adding to the already huge fortune she inherited from her father.

It was believed to be a record divorce settlement. Mrs. Rockefeller received her $5.5 million in 1954.

Brunette Mrs. Hudson, 43, mother of two sons and a patron of the arts, sighed: "At last it's over. I'm so happy I could sing."

The Hudsons were married in 1943. They separated in 1960 when he sued for divorce. Mrs. Hudson filed a cross-complaint charging cruel treatment and excesses.

Mrs. Hudson also got custody of the couple's two sons.

Judge Wendell Odom also ordered Hudson to pay $1,200 a month child support until the younger son, Robert Lee Blaffer Hudson, 11, is 18. The other boy is Edward Joseph Jr., 14.

Hudson, 58, was given visiting privileges with the boys.

Mrs. Hudson was already a multimillionaire although an estimate of her personal fortune was not available. She is the daughter of Joseph Lee Blaffer, a founder of Humble Oil Co.

Hudson, formerly of New York and New Jersey, founded Hudson Oil & Gas Co., recently sold for $26 million, and was founder and principal stockholder in Hudson Engineering Co.

Mrs. Hudson has an art studio in New York and a home in Newport, R.I.

Stay of Execution Granted Aspen Man

DENVER (UPI)— James Eugene Mogan, scheduled to die in the Colorado gas chamber next week, received an indefinite stay of execution from the Colorado Supreme Court Friday.

Mogan, sentenced to death by a Mesa County District Court jury in Grand Junction, will have his case reviewed by the state high court. The stay was granted to allow time for the study.

Air Force Wants Bigger Role, More Space Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force said Friday it wants a bigger role and more money in space. And if anybody tries to scuttle its Dyna-Soar program it will stand up and fight."

Lt. Gen. James Ferguson, deputy chief of staff, told the House Space Committee if this country waits until there is a known, specific military mission in space, it may find it has waited too long. By then, he said, Russia may have preempted the field.

Ferguson said the Air Force wants to get moving now toward technological advances that will make possible conversion later to specific military projects as they develop. Among its immediate goals would be a "space patrol" that could detect, intercept and if necessary disable a hostile satellite.

"The military space program we have proposed would be expensive," he said, "and it involves expenditures substantially beyond the current level of military space effort. Nevertheless I consider the program a prudent one in a dangerous world."

As for the Dyna-Soar, Ferguson was asked about published reports that it is about to be axed for economy reasons. The project, for which $300 million has been budgeted for the new fiscal year, envisions a winged, manned orbital vehicle which could return under control to the atmosphere and land like a plane.

Ferguson confirmed that this program now is under review.

"I can assure you that the Air Force does and will stand up and fight for the Dyna-Soar," he added. "I think it is an important part of the national program."

Churchill Would Be Grateful for U.S. Citizenship

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill's views on honorary U.S. citizenship have changed. Now, according to word reaching here, the former British prime minister would be "delighted" and "deeply moved by such an honor."

An aide of Rep. Francis Walter, D-Pa., said Friday night Walter had received word from the British Embassy expressing Churchill's acceptance of proposals to confer honorary citizenship on him.

But the 88-year-old Briton "could not undertake any trip overseas for the purpose of participating in ceremonies if honorary citizenship were offered."

Churchill sustained a fractured hip last summer, was hospitalized almost two months, then returned to his London home for convalescence.

Walter, chairman of the House Immigration and Nationality subcommittee which Wednesday approved a bill to confer citizenship, had asked the embassy to determine if Churchill had reversed his stand of 1958 when he rejected such an honor.

"Sir Winston feels that since four American states have now offered him honorary citizenship, or are about to do so, the situation from 1958 has radically changed and he will be delighted to be so honored," said the embassy's reply as quoted by the Washington Post.

Pakistan, Red China Sign New Border Pact

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China and Pakistan signed a border agreement to fix the frontier between the two nations in disputed Kashmir.

The Peking radio said the agreement was signed by Foreign Ministers Chen Yi of Red China and Zulfikar Ali Rhutto of Pakistan.

(In Karachi, the Foreign Office announced that the agreement split the difference on a 3,400-square-mile border area which had been in dispute, giving Red China 2,050 square miles and Pakistan 1,350 square miles.

(The territory alloted to Pakistan included 750 square miles which was not already held by that country, covering the Okran valley and the Hunza salt mines, the Karachi announcement said.)

The Red radio said the agreement goes "into force" today. This appeared to contradict earlier statements that the agreement would be provisional pending settlement of Pakistan's dispute with India over Kashmir.

Auto Not Much Less In Cost Than Coach

BOSTON (UPI) — When the nation's first hard-surfaced road opened in 1796 between Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pa., the trip by stage coach took 12 hours and the fare was $3.50. Today, the American Automobile Association reports, buses making several stops complete the trip in 3 hours and 10 minutes, and the fare is $5.00.

Colorado Demo Party Shows New Life Signs

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado State Democratic Party, which took a licking in the last general election, has rolled over and showed signs of life.

The stirrings began here when Maurice W. Leckenby of Steamboat Springs announced that he was quitting as Democratic national committeeman.

Leckenby's announcement was followed closely by one by Fred M. Betz of Lamar, who said he would not seek re-election as state chairman but instead would enter the race to succeed Leckenby.

Former Gov. Steve McNichols, overwhelmingly defeated in the gubernatorial election last November by Republican John A. Love, indicated he too was interested in the national committeeman's post.

Meanwhile, Roland Faricy, 36, a Pueblo automobile dealer, announced he would seek the party's state chairmanship.

Leckenby, 63, publisher of the Steamboat Springs Pilot, said he was quitting because of poor health. He recently was hospitalized for pneumonia and reportedly suffered severe rib fractures in a fall recently.

Leckenby's letter of resignation also said he felt "a young and more vigorous man can do a better job and help lead us (Democrats) to victory in 1964. Betz is two years older than Leckenby.

McNichols said he would serve as Democratic national committeeman from Colorado if Colorado Democrats "want me to do it." But, he said, "I'm not going to do it if there's any great battle."

Betz said he felt he could better serve the party on the national level.

"It is my conviction that I can be of great value as representative of the party on the national level, and at the same time work closely with other officials of the party in the state."

Long-Distance Dial Becomes Expensive

WASHINGTON (AP)—The parents of George Basle were puzzled but proud that somehow he had learned to dial the Weather Bureau for the latest forecasts.

"We thought it was real cute and smart," said his mother, Mrs. George A. Basle. "It was a Sunday he first did it. George was praying so bad for it to snow so he could play in it, and he went over to the phone and dialed the weather all by himself. He thought he was real big.

"My husband was proud, very proud. He was walking around with his chest out. Only 6, and already he can dial the weather. We were amazed he could get it so rapidly all the time, even when the weather was bad."

That first Sunday, George called the weather nine times. By Feb. 10 he had called the weather 42 times. Then the Basles received their telephone bill. Surprise, it came to $33 for toll calls. Why?

George's calls all had been to the Weather Bureau in New York City.

Instead of dialing 9361212 for the recorded Washington weather forecast he had, in each of the 42 calls, prefaced the number with 212, the New York City area code for distance dialing.

But everything turned out good for poppa and George. The telephone company canceled the charges after he explained what had happened.

Local Soldiers Take Part in Alaskan Service

Army Sgt. Joseph H. Higbee, 22, and Pfc. Darrell D. McCullough, 23, of Colorado Springs, and Army Pfc. William T. Hambric, of Penrose, played the parts of aggressors with other members of the 23rd Infantry's 1st Battle Group during "Exercise Timberwolf" in central Alaskan wilderness last month.

Higbee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Higbee, 2891 Merry Lane and is a fire team leader in the group's Company E. He entered the Army in January, 1959, and was stationed at Ft Carson before arriving in Alaska in December, 1962, on this tour of duty. He attended the Colorado Springs High School. His wife Sharon is with him in Alaska.

McCullough is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dillon, 2229 Hagerman St. He is a radio operator in the group's Company D. He entered the army in December, 1961, and received basic training at Ft. Carson. He was stationed at Ft. Carson before arriving in Alaska in May, 1962. He is a 1957 graduate of the Colorado Springs High School.

Hambric is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Hambric of Penrose. He is a clerk in Company A at Ft. Richardson, Alaska, and entered the Army in September, 1961. He is a graduate of the Penrose High School and was employed by the Railway Express Agency in Pueblo before entering the Army.

Fire Boss School Set for March By Forest Service

Forest Service firefighters last year got the jump on fires and their swiftness played a big part in setting a new record low in acreage burned on the National Forests. Last year's nation-wide record low of 87,903 acres burned was roughly a little more than a third of 224,394 burned in 1961.

Training plays an important part in forest fire control. To keep abreast of the latest methods key men of the Forest Service in the Rocky Mountain Region will go to school in Denver on March 12-14.

The special course, adapted from lesson plans presented at the National Fire Generalship Sessions, will cover the duties and responsibilities of the fire boss and his key assistants in plans and surveys.

95-Year-Old Woman Is Fan of Racing

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — When Mrs. Alice Simpson went to the hospital with a ruptured appendix, it was the first surgery for the 95-year-old woman.

While she did make a quick recovery, her stay kept her from one of her main interests — car races, in which her grandson participates.

Before her surgery, she was attending a race in Colorado. The man at the gate asked if she intended to enter the race. Mrs. Simpson was quick to assure him, "No, I'm just going to ride with my grandson."

Science Giants Planetarium Spring Subject

Ten "giants" of science and astronomy and their contributions to man's knowledge is the subject of the spring presentation at the Air Force Academy planetarium.

"On the Shoulders of Giants", running from March 16 to May 14, will show the growth of knowledge and understanding of the universe as related to those persons most directly concerned with its development.

The "giants" to be discussed include Ptolomy, Copernicus, Brahe, Kepler, Galileo, Newton, Hershel, Hubble, Einstein, and Jansky.

Thru the magic of the Spitz projector and allied equipment, planetarium lecturers will trace the scientific exploration of the universe from the earliest concept of a flat earth to the development of the giant Jodrell Bank (England) radio telescope.

Theme of the unique persentation, according to Planetarium Director Lt. Col. W. E. Moore, is that altho each of the men mentioned (and many others) was important in his own right but not one could have accomplished very much had he not been able to build on the work of his predecessors.

As Newton said, "If I have been able to see farther than other men of my day, it is because I have stood on the shoulders of giants."

The public is invited to attend performances of the program scheduled each Saturday and Sunday at 2 and 3:15 p.m.

Beginning May 15, a very special planetarium presentation "Apollo and the Moon" will be given. Dealing with the Air Force Apollo project to place men on the moon, the program will show "a landing on the moon" and the moon as it might appear to U.S. astronauts.

Concepts of Mental Health Care Changing AMA Says

Last year Americans, thru local, state and federal governments, spent two and a half billion dollars on mental health.

Most of this money was used to maintain a population nearly the size of Detroit's in mental hospitals. Yet most mental patients don't belong in such institutions.

According to modern psychiatric thought, they belong in their own community — at home — not miles away.

"Institutional care may have seemed the only solution at one time, but we know now that it can be more of a detriment than a help, explains Dr. Hamilton C. Ford, chairman of the American Medical Association's Council on Mental Health.

"There has been a revolution in the treatment of the mentally ill in the past decade and this in turn has revolutionized our way of looking at mental illness.

"In the language of this missile age, it's time to start phasing out many of our centralized mental hospitals, just as these hospitals phased out the ancient concept of insane asylums not so many years ago."

Just as emphatic is another member of the council, Dr. Robert H. Felix, director of the National Institute of Mental Health at Bethesda, Md.

"Based on what we have learned," he declared, "the concept of a large mental hospital as the most desirable place for a sick mind seems rather ridiculous.

"There is no valid reason why mental illness cannot be treated like any other illness — in a doctor's office or a local hospital if necessary."

There are years of precedent against such a stand, but apparently precedent is going to have to stand aside if we're to make inroads against the growing problem of mental illness.

The first true mental hospital in this country was built before the Revolution at Williamsburg, Va. It wasn't for another 100 years, however, that states took over full responsibility for mental illness and centralized hospitals came into being.

Sheer size ultimately proved to be no answer, and in recent years the trend has been toward smaller, altho still somewhat centralized, state hospitals.

The new accentuation goes still further, and aims at decentralization on a grand scale. The idea is to put mental health squarely up to the individual communities under high quality state standards.

Only in this way, mental health planners feel, can truly effective programs be worked out and the whole spectrum of problems, ranging from those of the anxiety-wrought housewife to those of the criminally insane, be fully met.

Several states have already passed legislation permitting, but not obliging, communities to work out such programs. In those places where it has been tried, results are exremely gratifying.

In fact, after a five - year study of the results, the Council on Mental Health last year urged nationwide application of the concept. Details of what would be necessary were further spelled out by delegates to the First National Congress on Mental Health, held last October in Chicago by the AMA.

A start toward working out the intricacies of such a vast undertaking will be made Friday when officials of state medical societies and mental health agencies meet with the AMA council in Chicago.

The crux of the problem is how to get medical care for mental illness essentially on the same footing as traiditional medical care. This may sound simple and uninvolved, but is not, for it represents a radical departure from the past.

"Since medieval times the idea has been to segregate the mentally ill," explained Dr. Ford. "Perhaps this was often all that was possible when the average stay in an institution was 30 years.

It is not true today when a period of weeks is often the rule.

"You can't look at psychiatry as a plug - along affair anymore. Drugs — an array of sedatives, hypnotics, tranquilizers and stimulants, — new hospital techniques, such as day care and night care, group therapy and many other factors have given psychiatry the momentum of atomic physics."

The impact of all this on mental health and mental institutions is startling. At Worchester State Hospital in Massachusetts, the application of the new forms of treatment decreased the patient population nearly 40 per cent in five years and closed down 10 wards.

But if the technique works so well in large institutions, why shift the base of mental health care to the community?

To Dr. Felix the answer is obvious. The patient does even better in his own community. "Each of us lives in a community, or more to the point, in a neighborhood," he explained. "When, for psychiatric reasons, we can't quite make it among our neighbors anymore, we've got to get help.

"Now, when a person needs help, that is not the time to wrench him from his family, his friends, all that is familiar to him, and deliver him to an institution. The first thing he has to do in an institution is get re-adjusted, and this can impose a severe jolt when he doesn't even see many normal people, except for the staff, and sometimes is too far from home to get visitors regularly.

"What the mental patient needs as much as drugs and techniques is a good theraputic environment. Some of our better institutions literally spend millions creating a home - like atmosphere. But nothing can be more home - like than your own neighborhood and friends.

Ancient Ulcer Theory Backed By New Evidence

New evidence supporting a 100-year-old theory that abnormalities of the blood vessels are somehow involved in the occurence of peptic ulcer was reported today in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

A study by University of Iowa researchers revealed a higher incidence of certain blood vessel formations of the lips among persons with ulcers of the stomach and duodenum than in those without ulcer.

Peptic ulcer is an inflammation of the lining of the stomach or duodenum, the first part of the small intestine. Ulcers occur more often in men than women and are found more often in the duodenum than the stomach.

The study involved 427 hospital patients, including 339 men and 88 women, according to the journal report. Of the 427, 101 had an ulcer or a history of an ulcer.

The patients were examined for three types of vascular formations visible to the naked eye and found inside the lips or under the tongue-- the microcherry or small red dot, the glomerulus, a convolution of blood vessels, and the venous lake, a dilated portion of vein, or blow-out.

In addition to a greater frequency of these formations among persons with ulcer or a history of ulcer, the researchers also found:

—An increasing frequency with age.

—Patients with ulcer appeared to develop the formations earlier in life and in greater number than those without ulcer.

—A greater frequency in men than in women.

—A direct relationship between the number of vascular formations and the incidence of ulcer.

This evidence tends to support the theory that abnormalities of the blood vessels--present in other parts of the body--in some manner lead to impairment of the circulation of the stomach and duodenum and render this area vulnerable to the corrosive action of the digestive juices, the researchers concluded.

This theory was advanced more than 100 years ago, they said, and has since been reaffirmed by many investigators. At present, however, ulcers are generally believed to be caused by an oversecretion of stomach juices as a result of nervous and hormonal factors, they said.

The report was authored by John A. Gius, M.D., Don E. Boyle, B.A., Donald D. Castle, B.A., and Ralph H. Congdon, B.A., department of surgery, University of Iowa College of Medicine and the University Hospital, Iowa City, Ia.

Local Soldiers Take Part in Alaskan Service

Army Sgt. Joseph H. Higbee, 22, and Pfc. Darrell D. McCullough, 23, of Colorado Springs, and Army Pfc. William T. Hambric, of Penrose, played the parts of aggressors with other members of the 23rd Infantry's 1st Battle Group during "Exercise Timberwolf" in central Alaskan wilderness last month.

Higbee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Higbee, 2891 Merry Lane and is a fire team leader in the group's Company E. He entered the Army in January, 1959, and was stationed at Ft. Carson before arriving in Alaska in December, 1962, on this tour of duty. He attended the Colorado Springs High School. His wife Sharon is with him in Alaska.

McCullough is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dillon, 2229 Hagerman St. He is a radio operator in the group's Company D. He entered the army in December, 1961, and received basic training at Ft. Carson. He was stationed at Ft. Carson before arriving in Alaska in May, 1962. He is a 1957 graduate of the Colorado Springs High School.

Hambric is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Hambric of Penrose. He is a clerk in Company A at Ft. Richardson, Alaska, and entered the Army in September, 1961. He is a graduate of the Penrose High School and was employed by the Railway Express Agency in Pueblo before entering the Army.

Fire Boss School Set for March By Forest Service

Forest Service firefighters last year got the jump on fires and their swiftness played a big part in setting a new record low in acreage burned on the National Forests. Last year's nation-wide record low of 87,903 acres burned was roughly a little more than a third of 224,394 burned in 1961.

Training plays an important part in forest fire control. To keep abreast of the latest methods key men of the Forest Service in the Rocky Mountain Region will go to school in Denver on March 12-14.

The special course, adapted from lesson plans presented at the National Fire Generalship Sessions, will cover the duties and responsibilities of the fire boss and his key assistants in plans and surveys.

95-Year-Old Woman Is Fan of Racing

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — When Mrs. Alice Simpson went to the hospital with a ruptured appendix, it was the first surgery for the 95-year-old woman.

While she did make a quick recovery, her stay kept her from one of her main interests — car races, in which her grandson participates.

Before her surgery, she was attending a race in Colorado. The man at the gate asked if she intended to enter the race. Mrs. Simpson was quick to assure him, "No, I'm just going to ride with my grandson."

Science Giants Planetarium Spring Subject

Ten "giants" of science and astronomy and their contributions to man's knowledge is the subject of the spring presentation at the Air Force Academy planetarium.

"On the Shoulders of Giants", running from March 16 to May 14, will show the growth of knowledge and understanding of the universe as related to those persons most directly concerned with its development.

The "giants" to be discussed include Ptolomy, Copernicus, Brahe, Kepler, Galileo, Newton, Hershel, Hubble, Einstein, and Jansky.

Thru the magic of the Spitz projector and allied equipment, planetarium lecturers will trace the scientific exploration of the universe from the earliest concept of a flat earth to the development of the giant Jodrell Bank (England) radio telescope.

Theme of the unique persentation, according to Planetarium Director Lt. Col. W. E. Moore, is that altho each of the men mentioned (and many others) was important in his own right but not one could have accomplished very much had he not been able to build on the work of his predecessors.

As Newton said, "If I have been able to see farther than other men of my day, it is because I have stood on the shoulders of giants."

The public is invited to attend performances of the program scheduled each Saturday and Sunday at 2 and 3:15 p.m.

Beginning May 15, a very special planetarium presentation "Apollo and the Moon" will be given. Dealing with the Air Force Apollo project to place men on the moon, the program will show "a landing on the moon" and the moon as it might appear to U.S. astronauts.

Concepts of Mental Health Care Changing AMA Says

Last year Americans, thru local, state and federal governments, spent two and a half billion dollars on mental health.

Most of this money was used to maintain a population nearly the size of Detroit's in mental hospitals. Yet most mental patients don't belong in such institutions.

According to modern psychiatric thought, they belong in their own community — at home — not miles away.

"Institutional care may have seemed the only solution at one time, but we know now that it can be more of a detriment than a help, explains Dr. Hamilton C. Ford, chairman of the American Medical Association's Council on Mental Health.

"There has been a revolution in the treatment of the mentally ill in the past decade and this in turn has revolutionized our way of looking at mental illness.

"In the language of this missile age, it's time to start phasing out many of our centralized mental hospitals, just as these hospitals phased out the ancient concept of insane asylums not so many years ago."

Just as emphatic is another member of the council, Dr. Robert H. Felix, director of the National Institute of Mental Health at Bethesda, Md.

"Based on what we have learned," he declared, "the concept of a large mental hospital as the most desirable place for a sick mind seems rather ridiculous.

"There is no valid reason why mental illness cannot be treated like any other illness — in a doctor's office or a local hospital if necessary."

There are years of precedent against such a stand, but apparently precedent is going to have to stand aside if we're to make inroads against the growing problem of mental illness.

The first true mental hospital in this country was built before the Revolution at Williamsburg, Va. It wasn't for another 100 years, however, that states took over full responsibility for mental illness and centralized hospitals came into being.

Sheer size ultimately proved to be no answer, and in recent years the trend has been toward smaller, altho still somewhat centralized, state hospitals.

The new accentuation goes still further, and aims at decentralization on a grand scale. The idea is to put mental health squarely up to the individual communities under high quality state standards.

Only in this way, mental health planners feel, can truly effective programs be worked out and the whole spectrum of problems, ranging from those of the anxiety-wrought housewife to those of the criminally insane, be fully met.

Several states have already passed legislation permitting, but not obliging, communities to work out such programs. In those places where it has been tried, results are exremely gratifying.

In fact, after a five - year study of the results, the Council on Mental Health last year urged nationwide application of the concept. Details of what would be necessary were further spelled out by delegates to the First National Congress on Mental Health, held last October in Chicago by the AMA.

A start toward working out the intricacies of such a vast undertaking will be made Friday when officials of state medical societies and mental health agencies meet with the AMA council in Chicago.

The crux of the problem is how to get medical care for mental illness essentially on the same footing as traiditional medical care. This may sound simple and uninvolved, but is not, for it represents a radical departure from the past.

"Since medieval times the idea has been to segregate the mentally ill," explained Dr. Ford. "Perhaps this was often all that was possible when the average stay in an institution was 30 years.

It is not true today when a period of weeks is often the rule.

"You can't look at psychiatry as a plug - along affair anymore. Drugs — an array of sedatives, hypnotics, tranquilizers and stimulants, — new hospital techniques, such as day care and night care, group therapy and many other factors have given psychiatry the momentum of atomic physics."

The impact of all this on mental health and mental institutions is startling. At Worchester State Hospital in Massachusetts, the application of the new forms of treatment decreased the patient population nearly 40 per cent in five years and closed down 10 wards.

But if the technique works so well in large institutions, why shift the base of mental health care to the community?

To Dr. Felix the answer is obvious. The patient does even better in his own community. "Each of us lives in a community, or more to the point, in a neighborhood," he explained. "When, for psychiatric reasons, we can't quite make it among our neighbors anymore, we've got to get help.

"Now, when a person needs help, that is not the time to wrench him from his family, his friends, all that is familiar to him, and deliver him to an institution. The first thing he has to do in an institution is get re-adjusted, and this can impose a severe jolt when he doesn't even see many normal people, except for the staff, and sometimes is too far from home to get visitors regularly.

"What the mental patient needs as much as drugs and techniques is a good theraputic environment. Some of our better institutions literally spend millions creating a home - like atmosphere. But nothing can be more home - like than your own neighborhood and friends.

Ancient Ulcer Theory Backed By New Evidence

New evidence supporting a 100-year-old theory that abnormalities of the blood vessels are somehow involved in the occurence of peptic ulcer was reported today in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

A study by University of Iowa researchers revealed a higher incidence of certain blood vessel formations of the lips among persons with ulcers of the stomach and duodenum than in those without ulcer.

Peptic ulcer is an inflammation of the lining of the stomach or duodenum, the first part of the small intestine. Ulcers occur more often in men than women and are found more often in the duodenum than the stomach.

The study involved 427 hospital patients, including 339 men and 88 women, according to the journal report. Of the 427, 101 had an ulcer or a history of an ulcer.

The patients were examined for three types of vascular formations visible to the naked eye and found inside the lips or under the tongue-- the microcherry or small red dot, the glomerulus, a convolution of blood vessels, and the venous lake, a dilated portion of vein, or blow-out.

In addition to a greater frequency of these formations among persons with ulcer or a history of ulcer, the researchers also found:

—An increasing frequency with age.

—Patients with ulcer appeared to develop the formations earlier in life and in greater number than those without ulcer.

—A greater frequency in men than in women.

—A direct relationship between the number of vascular formations and the incidence of ulcer.

This evidence tends to support the theory that abnormalities of the blood vessels--present in other parts of the body--in some manner lead to impairment of the circulation of the stomach and duodenum and render this area vulnerable to the corrosive action of the digestive juices, the researchers concluded.

This theory was advanced more than 100 years ago, they said, and has since been reaffirmed by many investigators. At present, however, ulcers are generally believed to be caused by an oversecretion of stomach juices as a result of nervous and hormonal factors, they said.

The report was authored by John A. Gius, M.D., Don E. Boyle, B.A., Donald D. Castle, B.A., and Ralph H. Congdon, B.A., department of surgery, University of Iowa College of Medicine and the University Hospital, Iowa City, Ia.

Stock Market Jolted By Sharp Weekly Loss

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was jolted this week by the sharpest weekly loss since last June.

"It was a rough week down here," said a Wall Street broker, "but we've had rougher ones."

The market declined each day except Tuesday, when it managed an irregular advance.

Although the slump reached substantial proportions in two sessions, brokers failed to get too excited. Most of them took the setback as something to be expeted — the setting in of a period of consolidation and correction that carried the market uphill from October to January.

There was nothing particularly discouraging or encouraging in the business news although the flow of dividend raises and stock split continued to be good.

The Asociated Press average of 60 stocks fell 6.8 this week to 251.1, the steepest decline since June 22, when it was off 11.6 in the after-throes of the May 28 collapse.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials plummeted 21.92 to 659.72, which also was the deepest fall for this average since last June.

Volume was 19,507,800, compared with 16,945,955 in the previous week, which was shortened to four days by the Washington's Birthday holiday. Brokers took heart from the fact that volume did not rise sharply on declines.

Buying interest was lacking as trading opened on Monday and investors took note of President Kennedy's statement that there would be a recession if taxes are not cut.

The irregular advance Tuesday was followed by a fairly sharp decline on Wednesday and Wall Streeters said the market gave indications of being tired from the long advance.

The market suffered its roughest mauling in 11 weeks on Thursday. Volume was not particularly heavy on the decline. On Friday, the market attempted to rally but the effort was weak and prices eroded to a moderate loss.

February lived up to its historical record as a usually poor month for stocks. This February recorded the first monthly loss since last September.

For the month the AP average showed a loss of 3.6 and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 19.91.

Some brokers felt that investors were sticking to the sidelines with their eyes on the future. They said there was anxiety about how the Kennedy tax cut program will fare in Congress, the international situation and what will come out of the report of the Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the securities industry.

The five most active stocks this week on The New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, off 3⅛ at 87⅞ on 307,000 shares; American Motors, off 1¾ at 20⅛; General Motors, off 2 at 60¼; Sunray, up ½ at 29, and U.S. Semtling, up 3 at 74⅛.

After getting out of the service, he attended Cameron College in Lawton.

Sanders is a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce here.

He and Mrs. Sanders have two sons and a daughter. The family lives at 3117 Poinsettia Dr.

El Paso County Retail Sales Up In Fourth Quarter

El Paso County retail sales in the fourth quarter of 1962 showed good gains over the corresponding period of 1961, the University of Colorado Bureau of Business Research reported last week.

Automotive sales were up 19.8 per cent, totaling $15,517,000, compared to $12,953,000 in the last quarter of 1961. Food sales totaled $14,195,000, compared to $14,036,000 a year earlier, a gain of 1.1 per cent, and general merchandise sales amounted to $9,655,000, a gain of 9.2 per cent over the 1961 quarter figure of $8,839,000.

The state's fourth quarter retail sales reached slightly more than $1 bilion — 2.1 per cent higher than the corresponding period in 1961.

Retail trade for September through November amounted to $1,029,769,000. This included automotive sales of $215,580,000, up 8.2 per cent; food sales of $191,347,000, up 2.6 per cent, and general merchandise sales of $123,296,000, down 8.4 per cent.

September - November sales were down 6.1 per cent from third quarter sales of $1,095,761,470, the CU bureau reported.

Denver's fourth quarter sales amounted to $424,766,000, 2.4 per cent below 1961's fourth quarter. Included in this were automotive sales of $75,144,000, up 1.6 per cent; food sales of $67,369,000, down 1.5 per cent, and general merchandise sales of $52,302,000, down 17.6 per cent.

Thirty - eight of the state's 63 counties reported sales gains during the fourth quarter, and 25 counties reported sales losses.

Rocky Mountain Employment Opens Office

Business Investment and Development Corp. has expanded operations and recently opened the Rocky Mountain Employment Service, 2332½ E. Platte Ave., as a subsidiary employment service.

The announcemet was made by H. D. Smith, president of Business Investment and Development Corp., who said the company will specialize in qualifying all applicants for positions open in the Pikes Peak Region. Aptitude tests will be available for applicants.

The Rocky Mountain Employment Service is on the Second floor of the building, which is opposite the Central Colorado Bank. The Telephone number is 634-1536.

Stock Market Jolted By Sharp Weekly Loss

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was jolted this week by the sharpest weekly loss since last June.

"It was a rough week down here," said a Wall Street broker, "but we've had rougher ones."

The market declined each day except Tuesday, when it managed an irregular advance.

Although the slump reached substantial proportions in two sessions, brokers failed to get too excited. Most of them took the setback as something to be expeted — the setting in of a period of consolidation and correction that carried the market uphill from October to January.

There was nothing particularly discouraging or encouraging in the business news although the flow of dividend raises and stock split continued to be good.

The Asociated Press average of 60 stocks fell 6.8 this week to 251.1, the steepest decline since June 22, when it was off 11.6 in the after-throes of the May 28 collapse.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials plummeted 21.92 to 659.72, which also was the deepest fall for this average since last June.

Volume was 19,507,800, compared with 16,945,955 in the previous week, which was shortened to four days by the Washington's Birthday holiday. Brokers took heart from the fact that volume did not rise sharply on declines.

Buying interest was lacking as trading opened on Monday and investors took note of President Kennedy's statement that there would be a recession if taxes are not cut.

The irregular advance Tuesday was followed by a fairly sharp decline on Wednesday and Wall Streeters said the market gave indications of being tired from the long advance.

The market suffered its roughest mauling in 11 weeks on Thursday. Volume was not particularly heavy on the decline. On Friday, the market attempted to rally but the effort was weak and prices eroded to a moderate loss.

February lived up to its historical record as a usually poor month for stocks. This February recorded the first monthly loss since last September.

For the month the AP average showed a loss of 3.6 and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 19.91.

Some brokers felt that investors were sticking to the sidelines with their eyes on the future. They said there was anxiety about how the Kennedy tax cut program will fare in Congress, the international situation and what will come out of the report of the Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the securities industry.

The five most active stocks this week on The New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, off 3⅛ at 87⅞ on 307,000 shares; American Motors, off 1¾ at 20⅜; General Motors, off 2 at 60¾; Sunray, up ½ at 29, and U.S. Semtling, up 3 at 74⅛.

El Paso County Retail Sales Up In Fourth Quarter

El Paso County retail sales in the fourth quarter of 1962 showed good gains over the corresponding period of 1961, the University of Colorado Bureau of Business Research reported last week.

Automotive sales were up 19.8 per cent, totaling $15,517,000, compared to $12,953,000 in the last quarter of 1961. Food sales totaled $14,195,000, compared to $14,036,000 a year earlier, a gain of 1.1 per cent, and general merchandise sales amounted to $9,655,000, a gain of 9.2 per cent over the 1961 quarter figure of $8,839,000.

The state's fourth quarter retail sales reached slightly more than $1 bilion — 2.1 per cent higher than the corresponding period in 1961.

Retail trade for September through November amounted to $1,029,769,000. This included automotive sales of $215,580,000, up 8.2 per cent; food sales of $191,347,000, up 2.6 per cent, and general merchandise sales of $123,286,000, down 8.4 per cent.

September - November sales were down 6.1 per cent from third quarter sales of $1,095,761,470, the CU bureau reported.

Denver's fourth quarter sales amounted to $424,766,000, 2.4 per cent below 1961's fourth quarter. Included in this were automotive sales of $75,144,000, up 1.6 per cent; food sales of $67,369,000, down 1.5 per cent, and general merchandise sales of $52,302,000, down 17.6 per cent.

Thirty - eight of the state's 63 counties reported sales gains during the fourth quarter, and 25 counties reported sales losses.

SERVICE CRAFTSMEN HONORED — Eleven servicemen from Johnson Pontiac Inc. were presented the Pontiac factory Service Craftsmen awards at a breakfast meeting Thursday attended by 35 members of the staff. Richard Middaugh, right, Pontiac zone Service and Parts manager, Denver, made the presentations merited by passing five tests covering technical features and methods of servicing at a special training course at the GM training center in Denver. Standing, from left, are Jack Williams, Jack Donlea, service manager; Ray Kauder Al Rankin, Roy McCorkle, Jack Pearcy and O'Dell Kellers. In front row are Lloyd Trent, Clint McConnaughy and Dave Wilcots. Kap Kaplinger is not in picture. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Federal Tax Tips

By ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

TELEPHONE AID: — Most of your feredal questions can be answered by phone. For quick and accurate information call 636-5171. You may call anytime between 8:00 a.m. and 4:45 p.m. Monday thru Friday. The office is closed during the noon hour Tuesday thru Friday.

WHERE TO GET ADDITIONAL FORMS: Do you need additional Federal tax forms for 1962? We have a special display rack outside Room 206, U. S. Post Office Building where you can obtain extra forms day or night any day of week up to 6 p.m. If is urged, however, that you use the form 1040 or 1040A that you received in the mail, addressed to you personally. Remember that tax returns for 1962 must be filed with the IRS District Director. For those filing using Colorado addresses, the address of the District Director is "Denver 2, Colorado". The deadline this year is April 15th. Attach a check or money order to your return for any taxes that may be due and made payable to "Internal Revenue Service". Also make sure that all W-2's are attached to the return.

REFUND DUE? LEAVE ADDRESS. The best way not to get a refund check from the Internal Revenue Service — if you are due one — is to move from your present residence shown on your 1962 return without leaving a forwarding address with your postmaster, and in addition, send your new and old address to the IRS District Director with whom you file your return.

CHECK YOUR BLOCKS: The IRS receives thousands of returns which are incomplete because the blocks are not properly checked. This is the cause of delay in the issuance of hundreds of refund checks. In designing the forms, the government inserted these blocks to facilitate the processing of your return. Many taxpayers seem to overlook them or consider them unimportant. Errors are most frequent in the blocks dealing with exemptions. Some taxpayers erroneously check the "over 65" blocks but are not entitled to this additional exemption. On the other hand, many 65-year-old taxpayers neglect to claim this additional $600 credit. Widows, widowers and heads of household also fail to claim special benefits allowed by law. Remember to check all blocks that apply to you. By doing this you will be filing an accurate return and you will get all the benefits to which you are entitled.

KEEP AN EXACT COPY OF COMPLETED RETURN FILED: Many questions are often asked of the taxpayer regarding information placed on his return, a retained copy of the return is important. A copy of 1040 and schedule C for Social Security is necessary if contemplating retirement. Submit this copy to your nearest social security district office when you apply for retirement benefits and you may get immediate credit for your 1962 earnings.

Federal Tax Tips

By ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

TELEPHONE AID: — Most of your feredal questions can be answered by phone. For quick and accurate information call 636-5171. You may call anytime between 8:00 a.m. and 4:45 p.m. Monday thru Friday. The office is closed during the noon hour Tuesday thru Friday.

WHERE TO GET ADDITIONAL FORMS: Do you need additional Federal tax forms for 1962? We have a special display rack outside Room 206, U. S. Post Office Building where you can obtain extra forms day or night any day of week up to 6 p.m. If is urged, however, that you use the form 1040 or 1040A that you received in the mail, addressed to you personally. Remember that tax returns for 1962 must be filed with the IRS District Director. For those filing using Colorado addresses, the address of the District Director is "Denver 2, Colorado". The deadline this year is April 15th. Attach a check or money order to your return for any taxes that may be due and made payable to "Internal Revenue Service". Also make sure that all W-2's are attached to the return.

REFUND DUE? LEAVE ADDRESS: The best way not to get a refund check from the Internal Revenue Service — if you are due one — is to move from your present residence shown on your 1962 return without leaving a forwarding address with your postmaster, and in addition, send your new and old address to the IRS District Director with whom you file your return.

CHECK YOUR BLOCKS: The IRS receives thousands of returns which are incomplete because the blocks are not properly checked. This is the cause of delay in the issuance of hundreds of refund checks. In designing the forms, the government inserted these blocks to facilitate the processing of your return. Many taxpayers seem to overlook them or consider them unimportant. Errors are most frequent in the blocks dealing with exemptions. Some taxpayers erroneously check the "over 65" blocks but are not entitled to this additional exemption. On the other hand, many 65-year-old taxpayers neglect to claim this additional $600 credit. Widows, widowers and heads of household also fail to claim special benefits allowed by law. Remember to check all blocks that apply to you. By doing this you will be filing an accurate return and you will get all the benefits to which you are entitled.

KEEP AN EXACT COPY OF COMPLETED RETURN FILED: Many questions are often asked of the taxpayer regarding information placed on his return, a retained copy of the return is important. A copy of 1040 and schedule C for Social Security is necessary if contemplating retirement. Submit this copy to your nearest social security district office when you apply for retirement benefits and you may get immediate credit for your 1962 earnings.

Fine Arts Center Is Scene Of Colorful Mask and Wig Ball

Outstanding social highlight of the mid-winter season was the Mask and Wig Ball held last Saturday night at the Fine Arts Center. The galleries were transformed for the occasion, with elegant period objects setting the scene for the occasion.

Guests danced to the music of Ray Kranz and his orchestra, until 1 a.m. when a gourmet breakfast was served. Champagne was served as generously as if it were going out of style! A liveried doorman admitted the guests, who were greeted in the foyer by Mrs. Marshall Sprague and Mrs. Paul Steahlin, both lovely in ultra-smart evening gowns.

The postiche worn by Mrs. Garnet Monck is made of hair switches ranging in shades of deep grey to light blonde, and placed atop her own natural black hair. She and Mr. Monck are admiring a portrait of Mrs. Francis MacVeagh at the age of 6, painted by her sister, Mrs. Ewer MacVeagh of New York City. Mrs. MacVeagh is pictured elsewhere on this page.

Ed Sindlinger, seated right, made caricatures of the guests at the ball. Here he is sketching Mrs. Bill Boddington, while Bill, wearing a JFK mask, expresses disappointment that there is no pool for the frolicking pleasure of the guests. So he suggests that everybody take a walk—with "vigge," of course. He declined to discuss "Cuber."

The gentleman wearing the handle bar mustache is really Dr. Vernon Bolton, with his pretty wife in Gay Nineties attire.

Personalines

By GLAD MORATH

Miss Barbara Lynn Eckhart, whose engagement to Roger Davis Knight III was announced in November, has set the date of their wedding for April 20. The ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. at Corpus Christi Church, with Msgr. Anthony Elzi officiating. Miss Eckhart is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Eckhart of 1334 Sunset Rd. Mr. Knight's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roger D. Knight of Denver.

Miss Eckhart has chosen for her attendants Mrs. Charles Worheide of Kansas City Kan. who will be matron of honor; and Miss Susan Knight, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Judith McCleary of Colorado Springs and Mrs. Lawrence Jones Jr. of Kansas City as bridesmaids.

Ralph Clock of Balboa, Calif. will be best man, and ushers will be Kent Sebern, John Lyon, Richard Carman and Roy Watts, all of Englewood; and James Counter III of Denver.

Roger Eckhart, brother of the bride, will be the ring bearer.

Col. and Mrs. Philip A. Bergman of Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Virginia, to Joseph Taylor Sprague II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Sprague of 1523 Wood Ave. Plans are for an early fall wedding.

Miss Bergman was graduated from Dreber High School, Columbia, S. C. and will be graduated in June from the University of Denver where she is a drama major.

Mr. Sprague was graduated from Lawrenceville Preparatory School in New Jersey, and from Princeton University where he was a member of the Ivy Club. He is currently employed as a reporter on the Longmont Times-Call.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Lundquist of 1003 Chambers Dr. have issued invitations to a cocktail party from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. Friday, March 8. Guests will be members of the committees who have worked on the Denver Designers' style show for the benefit of CARE.

Maj. and Mrs. Harris are living at 513 Crestridge, Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Annie Espinoza of 318 S. El Paso St. announces the engagement of her daughter, Maria, to A-2 C. Claude V. Glidden, son of Mrs. and Mrs. John A. Glidden of Tilton, N. H.

Mr. Glidden is with the U. S. Air Force stationed at Thule, Greenland. A fall wedding is planned.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Edwards and son Roger, 2670 Chelton Rd., was the scene of the recent annual dinner celebrating the birthdays of six relatives which all occur during the same week. They are Thomas D. Edwards, Frank B. Edwards, Edward H. Edwards, who are brothers, Mrs. Thomas (Carolyn) Edwards, Debra Edwards, and Bill Courtright.

The guests included Charles Edwards, 83, of Denver, father of the three Edwards brothers, great grandfather of Debra, and uncle of Bill Courtright. Also present was Mrs. Sylvia Harrison, 73, aunt of the Edwards brothers.

The buffet table was beautifully decorated in a pink and white theme and lighted by tall tapers in silver cendelabra. The cake was presented by Mrs. Bruce Miller, sister of the Edwards brothers. Frank Edwards pronounced the blessing preceding the 6 o' clock dinner.

Attending from Denver, in addition to members of the family living there were Mrs. Margaret Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Porter and daughters, Mrs. Alice Barry Mr. and Mrs. Deane Courtright and son, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Waddell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Haven and children, and Mr. and Mrs. James Pilkington.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lamb of 234 N. Tejon St. are spending a few days in Tokyo, Japan, en route to Naha, Okinawa where they will visit their son-in-law and daughter, Sgt. and Mrs. William F. Green and sons, David and Teddy.

The Lambs have been traveling aboard the Washington Bear, a Pacific Far East Liner. They will go aboard the ship again at Kobe and travel thru the inland sea to Puson, Korea, and then to Okinawa.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Sutton of 211 Elmwood Dr. were Dr. and Mrs. Ashton W. Emery of Pontiac, Mich., who are in Colorado to attend the wedding of their son Jack W. Emery to Miss Sandra Jean Ferguson of Denver.

The wedding took place Saturday, March 2 at the Park Hill Methodist Church in Denver.

Altrusans Will Entertain Class Of Foreign Born

Personalines

By GLAD MORATH

Miss Barbara Lynn Eckhart, whose engagement to Roger Davis Knight III was announced in November, has set the date of their wedding for April 20. The ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. at Corpus Christi Church, with Msgr. Anthony Elzi officiating. Miss Eckhart is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Eckhart of 1334 Sunset Rd. Mr. Knight's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roger D. Knight of Denver.

Miss Eckhart has chosen for her attendants Mrs. Charles Worheide of Kansas City Kan. who will be matron of honor; and Miss Susan Knight, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Judith McCleary of Colorado Springs and Mrs. Lawrence Jones Jr. of Kansas City as bridesmaids.

Ralph Clock of Balboa, Calif. will be best man, and ushers will be Kent Sebern, John Lyon, Richard Carman and Roy Watts, all of Englewood; and James Counter III of Denver.

Roger Eckhart, brother of the bride, will be the ring bearer.

Col. and Mrs. Philip A. Bergman of Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Virginia, to Joseph Taylor Sprague II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Sprague of 1523 Wood Ave. Plans are for an early fall wedding.

Miss Bergman was graduated from Dreber High School, Columbia, S. C. and will be graduated in June from the University of Denver where she is a drama major.

Mr. Sprague was graduated from Lawrenceville Preparatory School in New Jersey, and from Princeton University where he was a member of the Ivy Club. He is currently employed as a reporter on the Longmont Times-Call.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Lundquist of 1003 Chambers Dr. have issued invitations to a cocktail party from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. Friday, March 8. Guests will be members of the committees who have worked on the Denver Designers' style show for the benefit of CARE.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. McCauley are spending a two months vacation at the Texan Hotel in Pharr, Tex. Mrs. McCauley, who is president of the El Paso County Republican Women's Club, writes that she attended a breakfast at which Sen. Karl. E. Mundt addressed Republican women there. She also states that plans are being made for re-registration day, so that Democrats who wish may change to Republican registration. (And this in Texas!)

A Leprechaun party is being planned for members of the Colorado Springs Country Club on Saturday, March 16. Cocktails will be served from 6:30 until 8 p.m. followed by dinner and dancing until 1 a.m. Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Long are in charge of arrangements.

Maj. Gerald E. Harris of Ft. Carson and Dorothy M. Ryan of Colorado Springs, formerly of Tomah, Wis., were married at 5 p.m., Feb. 22 in Chapel 10, Ft. Carson.

Maj. and Mrs. Harris are living at 513 Crestridge, Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Annie Espinoza of 318 S. El Paso St. announces the engagement of her daughter, Maria, to A-2 C. Claude V. Glidden, son of Mrs. and Mrs. John A. Glidden of Tilton, N. H.

Mr. Glidden is with the U. S. Air Force stationed at Thule, Greenland. A fall wedding is planned.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Edwards and son Roger, 2670 Chelton Rd., was the scene of the recent annual dinner celebrating the birthdays of six relatives which all occur during the same week. They are Thomas D. Edwards, Frank B. Edwards, Edward H. Edwards, who are brothers, Mrs. Thomas (Carolyn) Edwards, Debra Edwards, and Bill Courtright.

The guests included Charles Edwards, 83, of Denver, father of the three Edwards brothers, great grandfather of Debra, and uncle of Bill Courtright. Also present was Mrs. Sylvia Harrison, 73, aunt of the Edwards brothers.

The buffet table was beautifully decorated in a pink and white theme and lighted by tall tapers in silver cendelabra. The cake was presented by Mrs. Bruce Miller, sister of the Edwards brothers. Frank Edwards pronounced the blessing preceding the 6 o' clock dinner.

Attending from Denver, in addition to members of the family living there were Mrs. Margaret Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Porter and daughters, Mrs. Alice Barry Mr. and Mrs. Deane Courtright and son, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Waddell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Haven and children, and Mr. and Mrs. James Pilkington.

Broadmoor Ski Club Will Stage Costume Derby

Invitations have been issued to Broadmoor Ski Club members for the annual "Sloppy Slalom" Costume Derby which will be held on Sunday, March 10. Festivities will get underway at Ski Broadmoor at 10:30 a.m. and the slalom races will be followed by a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Lake Terrace Pool of The Broadmoor.

Racers are to be costumed in attire representing another country and must choose a partner for the race. Husbands and wives will not be allowed to race together which will make it more difficult for practiced skiers to cross the finish line in record time.

Prizes will be awarded at the poolside luncheon for the most original man's costume and the most original lady's costume. Slalom race winners, as well as the runners-up, will be awarded prizes and a booby prize will go to the couple who chalk up the slowest time. The versatile party will include swimming in the pool after lunch, if the weather permits.

Club members who do not care to enter the race are urged to come and join the cheering section, and members are allowed to bring guests. Reservations for luncheon should be made with Caroline O'Brien, club secretary, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., at 634-7711, Ext. 356, by March 8.

Dear Abby--

Do Not Judge . . .

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man whose wife died two months ago and he is ready to marry another woman? The man is 45 and the woman he wants to marry is 30. His wife left five young children. Everyone knows they need a mother, but what is the hurry? The whole town is against this marriage. Even his own minister refused to perform the ceremony, saying it was disrespectful to the deceased wife for him to marry so soon. So the couple is going out of town to get married. What do you think of it? —SMALL TOWN

DEAR SMALL TOWN: Convention dictates a longer wait between mates than two months. But there is an old Indian adage: "Never judge a man until you have walked a month in his moccasins."

DEAR ABBY: The person who wanted to know if the use of wedding bells had been discontinued prompted me to write. My husband is a preacher and lately he has added a touch at the close of the wedding service that has delighted all who have witnessed it. It's not original, but here it is:

After the wedding ceremony, the bridal party and all the guests march to the bell rope. My husband then asks the newly-wed couple to place their hands on the bell rope, while he makes a few brief remarks, calling their attention to the necessity of pulling together now and all the rest of their lives. He also mentions that the tolling of the bells will announce to the world that they are man and wife, whereupon the couple rings the bell themselves. Sincerely, —MRS. D. H., LIGONIER, INDIANA

DEAR ABBY: I found a letter in my husband's pocket. It was from someone signed "Toni." When I asked my husabnd about it, he said "Toni" was a fellow he worked with. Now would a "man" write to another man telling him how much he liked his hair cut and saying he was looking forward to the next time they could have a beer together? And isn't "Toni" a woman's name, and "Tony" a man's name? I am confused and need help on this before I get really mad. —JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: "Toni" can be a man's name or a woman's, but don't assume the worst. Some men play the game only after they've been given the name.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALABAMA: Because many sin more than they suffer, some must suffer more than they sin.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to "Abby", Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

Orr-Bailey Vows Recited In Lehmberg Chapel

Lehmberg Chapel of The First Methodist Church, was the scene of the wedding of Miss Alma R. Bailey and Loren L. Orr, at 7 p.m. Feb. 14. The Rev. Donald Bleyele performed the double ring ceremony against a background of white mums and candelabra, with traditional selections played by the church organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Bailey of Richland, Mo. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. and Mrs. Ralph Orr of Princeton, Mo.

Loren M. Bean escorted the bride to the altar and gave her in marriage for her mother and father. She wore a waltz length gown of nylon net over pale blue bridal taffeta, with lace bodice and long, tapered sleeves. Her elbow length veil was attached to brocade roses. She wore pearl earrings and necklace which were a gift from the bridegroom, and her flowers were red roses tied with ribbon streamers and carried on a white Eastern Star Bible.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Clara Bailey who wore a street length dress of royal blue satin with matching hat and shoes, and white gloves. Her bouquet was of white mums.

Loy Van Horn was best man and the ushers were Leo E. Quinlan and Chuck Dodson.

The bridegroom's mother wore a royal blue street length dress, and her corsage was of white carnations. The bride's mother was unable to attend.

The reception was held in the church parlor, where the three tier wedding cake was cut by the WSCS members and served by Miss Ruth Chipman. Miss Jacklyn Taylor poured the punch and Miss LaVonne McDonnall was in charge of the guest book.

After a honeymoon in Denver, the newlyweds are living in Colorado Springs. The bride chose for traveling a tan suit with black accessories.

The bride is employed by Mutual of New York as Agency Cashier. She was graduated from Richland, Mo. High School, and attended Draughon's University in Springfield, Mo. The bridegroom was graduated from Princeton, Mo., High School and Molers Barber College in Kansas City, Mo. He is now managing the Pleasant Valley Barber Shop.

Lt. Juergen A. Heise Weds Miss Simine Amiri

The marriage of Miss Simine Amiri and Lt. Juergen A. Heise was recently solemnized at the Episcopal Chapel of St. Michael the Archangel, adjacent to the Air Force Academy.

Chaplain Maurice R. Holt performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Mohammed Afshar, presently of the Hauge, Holland. Mr Afshar is the Charge d' Affaires at the Iranian Embassy there. The bridegroom is the son of Mr and Mrs. Arthur P. Heise of Camillus, N. Y.

Maj. Walter E. Weese gave the bride away in the absence of her parents. She wore a floor length gown of silk organza styled with three-quarter sleeves and a scoop neckline, trimmed with re-embroidered appliques of Alencon lace. Her elbow length veil of silk illusion was attached to a satin pillbox hat. The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids and mums.

Miss Carolee Lash of Colorado Springs, as the maid of honor, wore a sheath of dusty apricot Chiffon. She carried a bouquet of apricot carnations and white mums.

Lt. Robert J. Postman of March Air Force Base, Calif., was the best man. Ushers were Capt. Theodore Heine, Capt. Thomas Bruton, 1st Lt. Eric Ronhovde, 1st Lt. Crosby Houston, 1st Lt. Richard Casey, and 1st Lt. George Myro, al lof the Air Force Academy.

The traditional arch of swords was formed to mark the exit of the couple from the Chapel.

Over 100 guests attended the reception at the U. S. Air Force Academy Officer's Club following the ceremony. Mrs. Donald J. Barrett presided at the guest book.

The former Miss Amiri is a graduate of Syracuse University, Class of 1962. She was a graduate student at the University of Oklahoma during the fall semester of 1962.

Lt. Heise graduated from Syracuse University in 1961. He also holds a masters degree from the School of Journalism at Syracuse. He is the Executive Officer at the United States Air Force Academy Library.

Following a wedding trip to Arizona, the couple will reside at Quarters 6602-H at the Air Force Academy.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I am a shoemaker.

I do not say that this will work for all types of shoes which are too tight and hurt women's toes! But I would like to give you a little hint which we have used in the custom shoe business.

I cannot guarantee this for all types of shoes for there are many types of leathers and synthetics today.

However . . . if one happens to have a pair of shoes that are too tight, I have told many of my customers (and have never had a complaint) to saturate the inside of the shoes with rubbing alcohol which has been poured on a piece of cotton (take the piece of cotton and rub the inside of the shoes). Then place your foot in it and wear it until the alcohol evaporates. This will stretch some types of leather.

Be sure to wear the shoes until the alcohol "completely" evaporates and they are dry.

Now many women buy shoes in the daytime when their feet are small. Are women aware that their feet expand at certain times?

Since I do not have to sign my name in this column I would like women to know that they should only buy shoes when their feet are swoolen or "at" "that time of day" when their feet are the biggest!

I am sure that women are not aware of this.

There are times of the day, seasons, months, and so forth, when women's feet swell. I recommend that when a woman spends her husband's hard-earned money on a pair of shoes, that she purchases them so they will fit properly. This end result allows her to get her money's worth. —"Custom Shoemaker"

Don't doubt it until you've tried it. I did!

I rubbed the inside of a pair of suede shoes with the alcohol and cotton and then put on a heavy pair of husband's wool sox and walked around.

The wool sox stretched them more than if I had just worn plain nylons. For the first time in two years, my suede pumps don't hurt.

I only wish that fellow had signed his name. I know that thousands of women would be sending him candy. I would. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

The secret of avoiding monotonous lunches can be found in having a lunch pail large enough to hold "two" thermos bottles, one, a wide-mouthed type, plus a supply of plastic holders or four-ounce food jars.

In the ordinary thermos put the drink. In the other wide-mouthed thermos pop a variety of foods such as spaghetti and meat sauce or hot dogs, Spanish rice, hot roast beef, chopped bits of ham added to plain rice which is well seasoned soup, chili, small canned potatoes, or Vienna sausages, and so forth.

Sometimes I place a vegetable in the bottom of my thermos and top it with bite-sizes of potatoes and any left over meat I happen to have.

As for the small size jars which we all have . . . they can be used for gelatin with either vegetables or fruit added, puddings, and all kinds of fruits.

I also buy pie-shaped plastic dishes at the dime store in which I freeze pie with whipped cream. I freeze everything possible so I do not need to worry about spoilage. By the time the lunch is ready to be eaten they are completely thawed.

One can also insert into the wide-mouthed thermos ingredients for a "Sloppy - Joe" sandwich along with a buttered bun to be put together at noon so it will be hot! —Polly Short

Dear Heloise:

To keep a comfort on the bed all one has to do is buy enough matching color of cotton material and attach to the bottom of a down comfort, and tuck it underneath the mattress!

Your troubles are over and the comfort cannot possibly slide off the bed. —Helen Ponian

Dear Heloise:

I use a plastic-type "pot scour" to hold my little colored pins that come with hair rollers!

These can be bought in many different colors to match any dressing table. As well as being useful they are very decorative. —Mrs. Marian E. Williams

YWCA Will Stage Tea In Newly-Decorated Lounge

The YWCA board members invite women of the community to attend a tea from 3 to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, in the completely re-decorated lounge on first floor of the YWCA building at 130 E. Kiowa St.

Mrs. Donald Kupfer has been chairman of the decorating committee. Assisting her were: Mrs. Hugh Metz, Mrs. H. C. Strang, Mrs. Kate Deitrich and Mrs. Guy Lynes. The committee secured the services of Ralph Giddings in the overall planning, and Mrs. Helen Beresford assisted with details.

Other rooms of the 50 year old building are also coming in for re-doing. New drapes have been hung in the green room on second floor, and the TV Room on 4th floor which is provided for the residence girls has been completely re-decorated. There are new drapes, and the furniture has been repainted and recovered.

There are many other furnishings in the building which the committee wishes to re-do, and proceeds from the rummage sale planned for March 8 and 9, will be used to further the project. Many tea guests, members and friends of the YWCA will be bringing their contributions for the sale when they attend the tea.

Mrs. E. M. Ferguson and Mrs. John R. Meyer are in charge of the tea table.

Tours of the building are being arranged during the afternoon.

Opening lead: Five of ♣

Failure to hold up by the defense today enabled declarer to sneak home with a vulnerable game.

South's opening bid of two no trump does not meet with our approval inasmuch as it is based on only 20 high card points, two under the textbook requirements. If partner is unable to respond voluntarily to a one diamond opening, it is very unlikely that a game will have been lost.

Against the three no trump contract West led the five of clubs and East's queen was taken by South's king. The king of diamonds followed by the ace brought home to declarer the sad news that East had four of the suit. Spades appeared now to be the only hope, and declarer offered up the king. West won the trick and, realizing the necessity for killing the dummy, returned the king of hearts. Had declarer taken this trick, his cause would have been lost, but he held up and West continued with the nine. This trick was taken in the closed hand and the spade suit cleared while the ace of hearts still remained in dummy. In this manner declarer scored 10 tricks.

West was guilty of a miscue. When the king of spades was led he should have refused it. His subsequent defense was a noble effort to correct his initial error, but it came too late. If declarer happens to have three spades there is nothing that West can do to defeat the contract, for the ace of hearts cannot be driven out of dummy in time to prevent the establishment of the spades. If West refuses the first spade South can continue the suit, but he will have only one entry in dummy. This will permit the establishment of the suit, but there will be no way to get in to cash it.

Family Shed Luxuries When Corps Tapped Dad

By LEO SOROKA
United Press International

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Handsome Ashby T. Harper, father of four, the eldest 10, is leaving the life of headmaster of a private school for the Peace Corps.

The Harpers, residents of suburban St. Louis for the past 10 years, occupy a 16-room house with seven bedrooms and seven baths.

In Guatemala, where the Harpers are going, "there'll be just a modest home," Mrs. Harper said in an interview.

"I guess we'll make ends meet, it was something we couldn't turn down because of our backgrounds," she said.

Both Harper and his wife, Madge, have been in educational work in Chile and Peru.

"We were doing Peace Corps work then when there wasn't such an organization," Mrs. Harper said. "The natives didn't think we were typical Americans. We spoke Spanish. They only thought we were different."

Harper said that one of the most important aims of the Peace Corps is to "show other people that not all Americans are imperialist warmongers or capitalists who care nothing for their neighbors in the world."

Harper said if communism ever succeeds in becoming "the world's greatest religion, the cause of democracy is lost." He said Peace Corps volunteers hope, through deeds, "to show the value of another religion: the religion of freedom and human dignity, the religion of being one's brother's keeper."

The Harpers lived for several years with an Ecuadorian family. The president of the school where Harper was headmaster was Galo Plaza, who also was president of Ecuador.

Harper recalled the time in 1950 when he talked with Galo Plaza.

"I was discouraged at the attitude of the official representatives of the American government in Ecuador," Harper said. "There was a down-the-nose attitude, and so little effort to get to know the people from a human relations standpoint."

Harper quoted Galo Plaza as saying at the time, "we need fewer of the striped-pants set and more of the county agent type of men who wear work clothes and go out and talk with the peasants."

Ever since the Peace Corps started less than two years ago, Harper had been anxious to be a part of it. Earlier, he turned down an offe rto go to Chile, because it was "too far down," and the Harpers thought they could do better in Guatemala, a smaller country.

In Guatemala, Harper will head a Peace Corps force of some 200.

Naturally, the Peace Corps assignment means a financial sacrifice for the Harpers. But they feel this is the work they want, although they regret pulling up roots after 10 years in St. Louis.

Harper was headmaster of St. Louis Country Day School which is highly rated by Harvard, Yale and Princeton as an educational institution.)

Townsfolk were stunned when they learned of Harper's plans. The school had progressed under his leadership.

"One of my particular concerns has been to see that students have an awareness of what is going on in the rest of the world," Harper said.

Harper, 46, won nine varsity letters at Princeton. He and his wife, the former Madge Palmer of Rochester, Pa., met at Middlebury College, Vt.

He was a fighter pilot in the Navy, and took part in the Okinawa campaign and in attacks on the Japanese mainland.

Harper formerly served as headmaster of American Schools in Quito, Ecuador, and at Lima, Peru, where both taught school.

Mrs. Harper understands well what she is leaving, "all the comforts of American living, with supermarkets and washing machines."

"When we were in Latin America before, I did the marketing on sidewalks, and a servant did the laundry on stone."

Family Shed Luxuries When Corps Tapped Dad

By LEO SOROKA
United Press International

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Handsome Ashby T. Harper, father of four, the eldest 10, is leaving the life of headmaster of a private school for the Peace Corps.

The Harpers, residents of suburban St. Louis for the past 10 years, occupy a 16-room house with seven bedrooms and seven baths.

In Guatemala, where the Harpers are going, "there'll be just a modest home," Mrs. Harper said in an interview.

"I guess we'll make ends meet, it was something we couldn't turn down because of our backgrounds," she said.

Both Harper and his wife, Madge, have been in educational work in Chile and Peru.

"We were doing Peace Corps work then when there wasn't such an organization," Mrs. Harper said. "The natives didn't think we were typical Americans. We spoke Spanish. They only thought we were different."

Harper said that one of the most important aims of the Peace Corps is to "show other people that not all Americans are imperialist warmongers or capitalists who care nothing for their neighbors in the world."

Harper said if communism ever succeeds in becoming "the world's greatest religion, the cause of democracy is lost." He said Peace Corps volunteers hope through deeds, "to show the value of another religion: the religion of freedom and human dignity, the religion of being one's brother's keeper."

The Harpers lived for several years with an Ecuadorian family. The president of the school where Harper was headmaster was Galo Plaza, who also was president of Ecuador.

Harper recalled the time in 1950 when he talked with Galo Plaza.

"I was discouraged at the attitude of the official representatives of the American government in Ecuador," Harper said. "There was a down-the-nose attitude, and so little effort to get to know the people from a human relations standpoint."

Harper quoted Galo Plaza as saying at the time, "we need fewer of the striped-pants set and more of the county agent type of men who wear work clothes and go out and talk with the peasants."

Ever since the Peace Corps started less than two years ago, Harper had been anxious to be a part of it. Earlier, he turned down an offe rto go to Chile, because it was "too far down," and the Harpers thought they could do better in Guatemala, a smaller country.

In Guatemala, Harper will head a Peace Corps force of some 200.

Naturally, the Peace Corps assignment means a financial sacrifice for the Harpers. But they feel this is the work they want, although they regret pulling up roots after 10 years in St. Louis.

Harper was headmaster of St. Louis Country Day School which is highly rated by Harvard, Yale and Princeton as an educational institution.

Townsfolk were stunned when they learned of Harper's plans. The school had progressed under his leadership.

"One of my particular concerns has been to see that students have an awareness of what is going on in the rest of the world," Harper said.

Harper, 46, won nine varsity letters at Princeton. He and his wife, the former Madge Palmer of Rochester, Pa., met at Middlebury College, Vt.

He was a fighter pilot in the Navy, and took part in the Okinawa campaign and in attacks on the Japanese mainland.

Harper formerly served as headmaster of American Schools in Quito, Ecuador, and at Lima, Peru, where both taught school.

Mrs. Harper understands well what she is leaving, "all the comforts of American living, with supermarkets an washing machines."

"When we were in Latin America before, I did the marketing on sidewalks, and a servant did the laundry on stone."

For Diminutive Sizes

With only three basic pattern pieces, a minimum of fabric and the easiest possible sewing, Sylvan Rich achieves simple, uncomplicated chic for the woman who's built small but thinks tall on fashion. Kimono sleeves, cut - in - one with the front bodice, are raglan in back. Crisp touches of grosgrain highlight the bodice and define the waistline. From a slightly rounded hipline the skirt tapers to a narrow finish. Lightweight wool, silk or wool jersey, rayon or silk crepe, shantung, linen or novelty cottons are all suitable fabrics. From these corresponding body measurements select the size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to that used for better ready - to - wear.

Size 16: bust, 38; waist, 29; hips, 39; length, 16¾ inches from nape of neck to waist.

Size 12 requires 1⅞ yds. of 54 inch fabric for dress. To order Pattern No. N-1143, state size, sped $1.00. Add 25 cents for first class mail and special handling. Pattern Books 20, 21 and 22 are available for 50 cents each. Martini Diminutive silk woven label is available for $1.00.

SPADEA DESIGNER PATTERN

N-1143

Martini Designed by Sylvan Rich

* * * * * *

For Diminutive Sizes

With only three basic pattern pieces, a minimum of fabric and the easiest possible sewing, Sylvan Rich achieves simple, uncomplicated chic for the woman who's built small but thinks tall on fashion. Kimono sleeves, cut - in - one with the front bodice, are raglan in back. Crisp touches of grosgrain highlight the bodice and define the waistline. From a slightly rounded hipline the skirt tapers to a narrow finish. Lightweight wool, silk or wool jersey, rayon or silk crepe, shantung, linen or novelty cottons are all suitable fabrics. From these corresponding body measurements select the size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to that used for better ready - to - wear.

Size 16: bust, 38; waist, 29; hips, 39; length, 16¾ inches from nape of neck to waist.

Size 12 requires 1⅞ yds. of 54 inch fabric for dress. To order Pattern No. N-1143, state size, send $1.00. Add 25 cents for first class mail and special handling. Pattern Books 20, 21 and 22 are available for 50 cents each. Martini Diminutive silk woven label is available for $1.00.

Address SPADEA, Box 535, G. P. O. Dept. C-14, New York 1, N. Y.

Professional Writers to Head CU Workshops

Six professional writers will head workshops July 21-Aug. 2 at the 30th University of Colorado Writers' Conference in the Rocky Mountains.

One of them, Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, will be returning for his second conference. He will conduct a course in magazine article writing, emphasizing book reviews, journals and personal essays.

Other conference leaders and their workshops will be A. S. Burack, editor of The Writer Magazine, nonfiction; James B. Hall of the University of Oregon, the novel; Donald Justice of the State University of Iowa, poetry; Jean Lee Latham of Miami, Fla., juvenile writing, and Robert Murphy, former senior editor of Saturday Evening Post, the short story.

Weeks participated in the 1961 conference and over the years has made several appearances on the campus. He has been Atlantic's editor since 1938. His latest book, published last year, is "Breaking Into Print: An Editor's Advice on Writing."

Burack has been editor of The Writer Magazine for more than 25 years. He is a lecturer at Radcliffe College. He has taught at Boston University and has participated in numerous summer writers' conferences in the East.

Hall has published four novels, the latest being "Racers To The Sun." He is chairman of creative writing at the University of Oregon's Summer Academy of Contemporary Art, which he helped found. His poetry and his short stories have appeared in many national magazines.

Justice is assistant director of the Writers Workshop at the State University of Iowa. His numerous poetry awards include the Lamont Poetry Selection for 1959, the Inez Boulton Prize for 1960 and the Iowa - Rockefeller Fellowship in Poetry in 1954.

Miss Latham has written 29 children's books. One of them, "Carry On, Mr. Bowditch," won the Newberry Award for 1956. She also has written stage and radio plays.

Murphy, a veteran of 20 years on the Saturday Evening Post, has published four books and more than 50 short stories. His latest book, "The Haunted Journey," is an account of Vitus Bering's discovery of Alaska.

Ronald F. Downey Serving at Okinawa

Marine Private First Class Ronald F. Downey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett F. Downey of 840 East High St., is serving with the Second Battalion, Ninth Marine Regiment, at Okinawa. It is presently engaged in Pacific Fleet amphibious operations.

Second Battalion, Ninth Regiment is the ground element of the Special Landing Force of the Seventh Fleet's amphibious ready group. It and supporting units participate in landing exercises and training operations in the Pacific.

'Black Flamingo' Staged By Wasson Juniors

Clashing swords, a thunderous night and a shrieking violin in the furor and excitement of the French Revolution mixed with the mystery of black magic are the ingredients found in the "Black Flamingo", the junior class play to be presented at the Wasson High School Auditorium, at 8:15 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

The conflict raging between the peasants or the revolutionists and the aristocrats of the French Revolution is flavored by the superstition prevalent during those uneducated times. The resentment of the common people against the foreign born Monarch, Marie Antionette, centers around the theft of the jeweled necklace from the queen's boudoir.

Violence surges thruout the play reflecting the fall of the Bastile in 1789. Mystery enshrouds both groups alike as unexpected sounds shrick from the hidden staircase of the dingy castle inn known as the Black Famingo.

A temporary resolution of the plot is achieved thru the artistry of the magician, Cagliostro. By his tricks, he subdues the terrifying anger of the revolutionary mob as they seek to destroy the members of the court to recover the hidden gems.

The setting is designed by Mrs. Bonnie Paris and its effects are executed by Liz Hull, head of scenery; Terry Skelton, head of sound; Jim Poch, head of lighting; Rita Ozburn, head of props; Roberta Henley and Elizabeth Watts, in charge of costumes.

Professional Writers to Head CU Workshops

Six professional writers will head workshops July 21-Aug. 2 at the 30th University of Colorado Writers' Conference in the Rocky Mountains.

One of them, Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, will be returning for his second conference. He will conduct a course in magazine article writing, emphasizing book reviews, journals and personal essays.

Other conference leaders and their workshops will be A. S. Burack, editor of The Writer Magazine, nonfiction; James B. Hall of the University of Oregon, the novel; Donald Justice of the State University of Iowa, poetry; Jean Lee Latham of Miami, Fla., juvenile writing, and Robert Murphy, former senior editor of Saturday Evening Post, the short story.

Weeks participated in the 1961 conference and over the years has made several appearances on the campus. He has been Atlantic's editor since 1938. His latest book, published last year, is "Breaking Into Print: An Editor's Advice on Writing."

Burack has been editor of The Writer Magazine for more than 25 years. He is a lecturer at Radcliffe College. He has taught at Boston University and has participated in numerous summer writers' conferences in the East.

Hall has published four novels, the latest being "Racers To The Sun." He is chairman of creative writing at the University of Oregon's Summer Academy of Contemporary Art, which he helped found. His poetry and his short stories have appeared in many national magazines.

Justice is assistant director of the Writers Workshop at the State University of Iowa. His numerous poetry awards include the Lamont Poetry Selection for 1959, the Inez Boulton Prize for 1960 and the Iowa - Rockefeller Fellowship in Poetry in 1954.

Miss Latham has written 29 children's books. One of them, "Carry On, Mr. Bowditch," won the Newberry Award for 1956. She also has written stage and radio plays.

Murphy, a veteran of 20 years on the Saturday Evening Post, has published four books and more than 50 short stories. His latest book, "The Haunted Journey," is an account of Vitus Bering's discovery of Alaska.

Red China Fetes Pakistani Delegates

TOKYO (AP)—A Pakistani delegation led by Foreign Minister Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto was honored at a banquet in Peking Friday night, the New China news agency reported Saturday.

Bhutto arrived in Peking earlier to sign a border treaty with the Chinese government.

The conflict raging between the Watts, in charge of costumes. peasants or the revolutionists and the aristocrats of the French Revolution is flavored by the superstition prevalent during those uneducated times. The resentment of the common people against the foreign born Monarch, Marie Antionette, centers around the theft of the jeweled necklace from the queen's boudoir.

Violence surges thruout the play reflecting the fall of the Bastile in 1789. Mystery enshrouds both groups alike as unexpected sounds shrick from the hidden staircase of the dingy castle inn known as the Black Famingo.

A temporary resolution of the plot is achieved thru the artistry of the magician, Cagliostro. By his tricks, he subdues the terrifying anger of the revolutionary mob as they seek to destroy the members of the court to recover the hidden gems.

Timber Sales Harvest Up From Previous Year

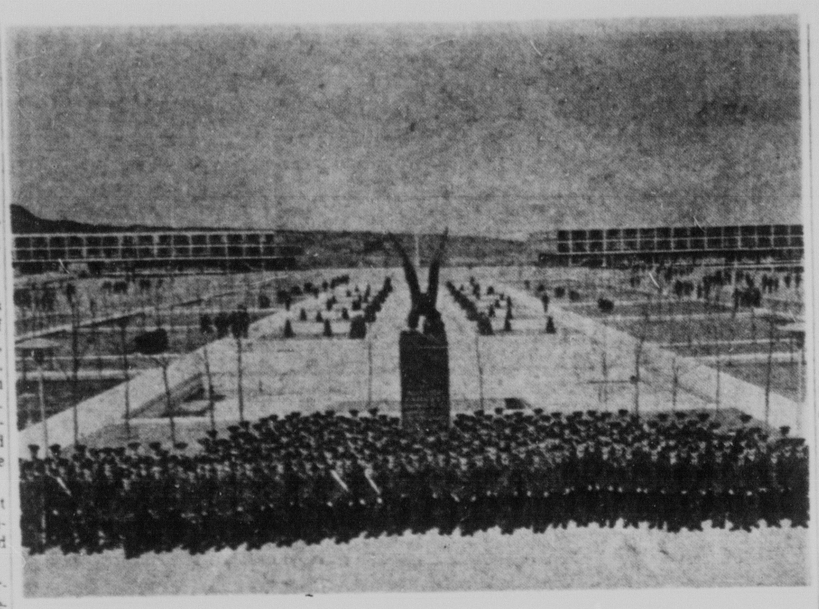
Timber sale and harvest figures for the 16 national forests of Colorado, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming for the first half of fiscal year 1963 show increases over those for the same period last year, Regional Forester D. S. Nordwall announced.

The increase in activity was most noticeable in the volume of timber cut on the national forests, according to Ernest J. Grambo, assistant regional forester, in charge of timber management. Slightly improved market conditions during the past year enabled the lumber industry to accelerate their rate of timber harvest.

At the fiscal year's mid-point almost 70 per cent of the cut anticipated for the entire year had been accomplished.

The volume of timber sold during the same period was somewhat less than that planned but still was ahead of last year's sales. Grambo believes that timber sales activity will increase during the last half of the period to approach the goal of 709,000,000 board feet set for the Rocky Mountain Region for the fiscal year which ends on June 30.

This is more than double the amount of timber which industry will harvest from national forest lands during the same period.



EAGLES BY THE DOZEN — Ex-Eagle Scouts at the Air Force Academy have plenty of company. Although holding the top Scout rank certainly isn't a prerequisite for Academy entrance, it almost seems that way. Beliefs Land Unitarians in Supreme Court

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "We can be justly proud of two of the fundamentals that have made America great—our concept of religious freedom and our separation of church and state."

That conviction has landed Edward Lewis Schempp, 54, a modest, thoughtful, electronics engineer, and his family in a Supreme Court drama and in national headlines.

At issue is a Pennsylvania law requiring the reading of 10 Bible passages as part of daily school opening programs. A court of three federal judges in Philadelphia, acting on a complaint by the Schempps, ruled the law unconstitutional.

The Schempps took their firm stand because they are Unitarians, and, they say, "Unitarians do not believe in a literal, infallible Bible as the word of God." And they did not want their two children in high school — Donna, 17, and Roger, 19—to have anything less than absolute classroom freedom from enforced exercises of a religious nature.

The Pennsylvania Bible-reading case was argued before the Supreme Court this week, and Mr. and Mrs. Schempp, Donna, Roger, and the elder son, Ellory, 22, a graduate student at Brown University, were in Washington to hear their lawyer, Henry Sawyer III, argue the case.

"We are not against Bible reading, or even Bible study, in the public schools," Schempp says, "but, the reading of 10 verses, from one version out of 16 versions of the Bible, selected at random or with the bias of the selector, read out of context, with no explanation, but with special attention that suggests that this is the word of God, state approved final and infallible—this, we say, is un-American and bad for our children, and for all children.

"The Bible is read often in our own home. We believe more Bible reading might be good for Americans. Our objection is to a law which says the 10 verses must be read in school without comment. Reading passages from the Bible out of context and without comment might help plant the seeds of bigotry, hate and intolerance.

"We have seen men over the centuries burning and persecuting one another under the authority of their Bibles.

"We believe the Bible has words to help us become more like God. But we do not believe the words of the Bible are actually God's."

AF Academy Author's Article Recognized

An article co - authored by an Air Force Academy faculty member is receiving both national and international recognition.

Capt. D. R. Smith, department of physics, is co - author of an article "Analysis of the Hypertrition in Terms of Hard - core Potentials" which will appear in the March 15 issue of The Physical Review.

Material for the article was assembled by Capt. Smith for his PhD., thesis in theoretical physics.

The material will also be presented as a contributed paper at a conference on hypernuclear physics to be held this month at St. Cergue, Switzerland, by Prof. B. W. Downs of the University of Colorado physics department.

Garlic Brings False Reports

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—As a safety measure, the municipal gas works introduced the scent of garlic into its main recently.

Emergency calls flooded the company from people fearing they were about to be gassed. Inspection squads worked around the clock, found most of the complaints baseless.

Announcing no more garlic in the mains, a company official said Friday, "Quite a few times our crews found no leak at all. They just found the housewife next door was cooking with garlic."

World Affairs Conference Set For CU in April

The 16th annual world affairs conference at the University of Colorado will be April 7, thru April 12, according to announcement by Prof. Howard Higman, chairman. All sessions will be free and public.

Among topics for special emphasis this year will be Latin American affairs, Higman said.

Dr. Marston Bates, social biologist at the University of Michigan, will give a plenary address under joint auspices of the conference and the university chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, arts and sciences honorary society.

Dr. Roger Revelle, former head of Scripps Oceanographic Institute who now is science adviser to the secretary of the interior, also will be a featured speaker. He will discuss the rehabilitation of land for agricultural use in Pakistan.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

KIM NOVAK WORKS HARD ON FAMED 'BONDAGE' ROLE

Hollywood,—Kim Novak sent me a postcard of Westminster Abbey but she has no time to lap up English culture, being confined to her suite at the Dorchester in London. All those fellows going in and out her door are not gentlemen callers; they're coaching her for "Of Human Bondage," in which she'll co-star with Larry Harvey. Kim insisted that director Henry Hathaway hold a week of rehearsals before turning a camera. When she tackles the role Bette Davis made immortal, she aims to be prepared.

Meanwhile the old pro herself, and I do mean Bette Davis, stops by Johnny Carson's Tonight show to pick up Photoplay's gold medal for the most popular actress of the year and I'll be there to hand it to her. I'll also give one to Dick Chamberlain for most popular actor; Suzanne Pleshette and Gary Clarke, most promising, and "The Miracle Worker" best picture. These awards were voted by you movie fans.

Zsa Zsa Gabor was so excited she actually stuttered when she phoned to tell me that her husband Herbert Hutner, bought her the most beautiful home in Bel Air. It has a huge ballroom which she says would make a marvelous night club, and three safes in three different bedrooms. Now she's got to begin collecting jewels to fill them. They're returning to New York and will be back within a month to move in and make Bel Air their residence.

Deborah Kerr, who hasn't been in Hollywood since she married Peter Viertel, returns this summer to do "Night of the Iguana," which Margaret Leighton played on stage. You may recall Debbie also did "Separate Tables" which Maggie played on Broadway.

Greer Garson is in New York to play Mrs. Disraeli for Hallmark, and Trevor Howard flies the Atlantic to play the prime minister. Greer will be back by March 25, the anniversary of her mother's birthday. Each year she gives a luncheon for her mother's friends; they tell me they'll be missing Ceasar Romero's mom at this one. She talked with Clifton Webb, who proudly told her that after his operation, he now has a piece of nylon inside him. "Nobdy can ever call you a drip," she said. "You're now officially a drip-dry."

I was flabbergasted to discover that Arthur Godfrey, the greatest salesman since Noah, has never made a picture. Now Freddie Brisson tells me another TV great, Imogene Coca, has never been on the silver screen. These two oversights are soon to be corrected. Imogene makes her debut in Brisson's "Under the Yum Yum Tree," playing Jack London's housekeeper; and Arthur left here after lunching with Jack Warner with the script of "Distant Trumpet" under his arm.

Despite the newspaper blackout in New York, Maurice Chevalier grossed $52,000 his closing week at the Ziegfeld theater with his one-man show. Next stop, Copenhagen, Saturday. A week later he opens for three weeks at the Saville in London; then Israel, followed by a South American tour. After that Maurice returns here for one of three movies he's been offered. He keeps fit by walking two miles a day whatever the weather.

Irene Dunne couldn't understand why she never got a single phone call the day after the premiere of "How the West Was Won." She didn't learn until the next day that her phone was out of order.

When I heard that Peter Sellers plays four different roles in "Dr. Strangelove," I asked, "Does he get four different salaries?"

Eric L. Kleinstiver Assigned to Pueblo

Marine reserve Pvt. Eric L. Kleinstiver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Kleinstiver of 2204 Rov in Dr., has been assigned to six months of active duty for training by his unit, the 6th 155 Gun Battery, self-propelled, headquartered in Pueblo.

Pvt. Kleinstiver will undergo three months of recruit training at San Diego; then a month of individual combat instruction at combat instruction at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

He will then receive two months of on-the-job instruction in an artillery specialty before being released from active duty.

Boost in Wire Rates Opposed By U.S. Groups

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three petitioners have asked the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to reconsider and stay a proposed May 1 increase in private and leased wire rates.

They are United Press International, the American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (AT&T).

Attorneys for the UPI and AT&T filed affidavits for reconsideration of a recent FCC decision which would boost by $4,012,000 a year the rates charged the press and other users of leased telegraphic services of the AT&T and Western Union.

The UPI petition was supported by affidavits from Roderick W. Beaton, general business manager; Frank Tremaine, vice president and general manager of the newspicture division, and Harry R. Flory, general manager of communications.

The petition said the decision was regarded by the press as potentially damaging and a crippling threat that must inevitably result in substantial impairment in the widespread dissemination of news to newspapers and broadcasters.

The petition—the only objection filed by a news service—said the proposed rates bear no resemblance to what was proposed by the AT&T and, in fact, that there never has been any hearing with respect to the prescribed rates.

The affidavits stated that the proposed rates would mean a net increase to UPI of 18 per cent in the cost of private line services.

The ANPA petition, which included statements from 19 individual newspapers and groups of newspapers, said the commission's proposed rates would "impair significantly the widespread dissemination of news information."

It said the proposal would increase rates by an average of 19 per cent for the press and 2.1 per cent for commercial customers, but would decrease costs to government users by 7.8 per cent.

The AT&T asked a stay and for reconsideration of six specific points. Included was the order to AT&T to refund to customers the difference between equipment rental rates authorized by the FCC in December, 1958, which the commission's final decision rule were too high.

Juila A. Shaw Dies Wednesday

Mrs. Julia A. Shaw, 729 E. Colorado Ave., a resident of Colorado Springs for 32 years, died Wednesday at 78 at a local hospital, after an illness of three months.

She was a member of Trinity Baptist Church and had been a cook at the Colorado Springs High School, a seamstress for the WPA, was one of the first civilian cooks at Camp Carson soon after its construction and for years was cook at Cossett Hall, Colorado College.

Mrs. Shaw was born Oct. 5, 1884, in Cattahoula Parish, La. She is survived by a son, Rashio Shaw, of Chicago, Ill.; a daughter, Mrs. Angel Butcher, Wisner, La.; a granddaughter, Gloria A. Zenon, Colorado Springs; a granddaughter Mrs. Stazzie Harris, Clovis, N. M. and 16 other grandchildren, 61 great - grandchildren and six great - great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at Trinity Baptist Church. The Rev. Louis Harvey will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery. The Hunter Mortuary has charge of arrangements.

Timber Sales Harvest Up From Previous Year

Timber sale and harvest figures for the 16 national forests of Colorado, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming for the first half of fiscal year 1963 show increases over those for the same period last year, Regional Forester D. S. Nordwall announced.

The increase in activity was most noticeable in the volume of timber cut on the national forests, according to Ernest J. Grambo, assistant regional forester, in charge of timber management. Slightly improved market conditions during the past year enabled the lumber industry to accelerate their rate of timber harvest.

At the fiscal year's mid-point almost 70 per cent of the cut anticipated for the entire year had been accomplished.

The volume of timber sold during the same period was somewhat less than that planned but still was ahead of last year's sales. Grambo believes that timber sales activity will increase during the last half of the period to approach the goal of 709,000,000 board feet set for the Rocky Mountain Region for the fiscal year which ends on June 30.

This is more than double the amount of timber which industry will harvest from national forest lands during the same period.

EAGLES BY THE DOZEN — Ex-Eagle Scouts at the Air Force Academy have plenty of company. Although holding the top Scout rank certainly isn't a prerequisite for Academy entrance, it almost seems that way. Of the 2,500-man Cadet Wing, an even 10 per cent, or 250, earned Eagle rank during their scouting days. All 250 assembled for this photo in front of the Academy's famed Eagle statue. (USAF Photo)

Beliefs Land Unitarians in Supreme Court

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "We can be justly proud of two of the fundamentals that have made America great—our concept of religious freedom and our separation of church and state."

That conviction has landed Edward Lewis Schempp, 54, a modest, thoughtful, electronics engineer, and his family in a Supreme Court drama and in national headlines.

At issue is a Pennsylvania law requiring the reading of 10 Bible passages as part of daily school opening programs. A court of three federal judges in Philadelphia, acting on a complaint by the Schempps, ruled the law unconstitutional.

The Schempps took their firm stand because they are Unitarians, and, they say, "Unitarians do not believe in a literal, infallible Bible as the word of God." And they did not want their two children in high school — Donna, 17, and Roger, 19—to have anything less than absolute classroom freedom from enforced exercises of a religious nature.

The Pennsylvania Bible-reading case was argued before the Supreme Court this week, and Mr. and Mrs. Schempp, Donna, Roger, and the elder son, Ellory, 22, a graduate student at Brown University, were in Washington to hear their lawyer, Henry Sawyer III, argue the case.

"We are not against Bible reading, or even Bible study, in the public schools," Schempp says, "but, the reading of 10 verses, from one version out of 16 versions of the Bible, selected at random or with the bias of the selector, read out of context, with no explanation, but with special attention that suggests that this is the word of God, state approved and, they say, "Unitarians do not believe in a literal, infallible Bible—this, we say, is un-American and bad for our children, and for all children.

"The Bible is read often in our own home. We believe more Bible reading might be good for Americans. Our objection is to a law which says the 10 verses must be read in school without comment. Reading passages from the Bible out of context and without comment might help plant the seeds of bigotry, hate and intolerance.

"We have seen men over the centuries burning and persecuting one another under the authority of their Bibles.

"We believe the Bible has words to help us become more like God. But we do not believe the words of the Bible are actually God's."

AF Academy Author's Article Recognized

An article co - authored by an Air Force Academy faculty member is receiving both national and international recognition.

Capt. D. R. Smith, department of physics, is co - author of an article "Analysis of the Hypertrition in Terms of Hard - core Potentials" which will appear in the March 15 issue of The Physical Review.

Material for the article was assembled by Capt. Smith for his PhD., thesis in theoretical physics.

The material will also be presented as a contributed paper at a conference on hypernuclear physics to be held this month at St. Cergue, Switzerland, by Prof. B. W. Downs of the University of Colorado physics department.

Garlic Brings False Reports

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—As a safety measure, the municipal gas works introduced the scent of garlic into its main recently.

Emergency calls flooded the company from people fearing they were about to be gassed. Inspection squads worked around the clock, found most of the complaints baseless.

Announcing no more garlic in the mains, a company official said Friday, "Quite a few times our crews found no leak at all. They just found the housewife next door was cooking with garlic."

World Affairs Conference Set For CU in April

The 16th annual world affairs conference at the University of Colorado will be April 7, thru April 12, according to announcement by Prof. Howard Higman, chairman. All sessions will be free and public.

Among topics for special emphasis this year will be Latin American affairs, Higman said.

Dr. Marston Bates, social biologist at the University of Michigan, will give a plenary address under joint auspices of the conference and the university chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, arts and sciences honorary society.

Dr. Roger Revelle, former head of Scripps Oceanographic Institute who now is science adviser to the secretary of the interior, also will be a featured speaker. He will discuss the rehabilitation of land for agricultural use in Pakistan.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER
(© 1963, By the Chicago Tribune)

KIM NOVAK WORKS HARD ON FAMED 'BONDAGE' ROLE

Hollywood.—Kim Novak sent me a postcard of Westminster Abbey but she has no time to lap up English culture, being confined to her suite at the Dorchester in London. All those fellows going in and out her door are not gentlemen callers; they're coaching her for "Of Human Bondage," in which she'll co-star with Larry Harvey. Kim insisted that director Henry Hathaway hold a week of rehearsals before turning a camera. When she tackles the role Bette Davis made immortal, she aims to be prepared.

Meanwhile the old pro herself, and I do mean Bette Davis, stops by Johnny Carson's Tonight show to pick up Photoplay's gold medal for the most popular actress of the year and I'll be there to hand it to her. I'll also give one to Dick Chamberlain for most popular actor; Suzanne Pleshette and Gary Clarke, most promising, and "The Miracle Worker" best picture. These awards were voted by you movie fans.

Zsa Zsa Gabor was so excited she actually stuttered when she phoned to tell me that her husband Herbert Hutner, bought her the most beautiful home in Bel Air. It has a huge ballroom which she says would make a marvelous night club, and three safes in three different bedrooms. Now she's got to begin collecting jewels to fill them. They're returning to New York and will be back within a month to move in and make Bel Air their residence.

Deborah Kerr, who hasn't been in Hollywood since she married Peter Viertel, returns this summer to do "Night of the Iguana," which Margaret Leighton played on stage. You may recall Debbie also did "Separate Tables" which Maggie played on Broadway.

Greer Garson is in New York to play Mrs. Disraeli for Hallmark, and Trevor Howard flies the Atlantic to play the prime minister. Greer will be back by March 25, the anniversary of her mother's birthday. Each year she gives a luncheon for her mother's friends; they tell me they'll be missing Ceasar Romero's mom at this one. She talked with Clifton Webb, who proudly told her that after his operation, he now has a piece of nylon inside him. "Nobdy can ever call you a drip," she said. "You're now officially a drip-dry."

I was flabbergasted to discover that Arthur Godfrey, the greatest salesman since Noah, has never made a picture. Now Freddie Brisson tells me another TV great, Imogene Coca, has never been on the silver screen. These two oversights are soon to be corrected. Imogene makes her debut in Brisson's "Under the Yum Yum Tree," playing Jack London's housekeeper, and Arthur left here after lunching with Jack Warner with the script of "Distant Trumpet" under his arm.

Despite the newspaper blackout in New York, Maurice Chevalier grossed $52,000 his closing week at the Ziegfeld theater with his one-man show. Next stop, Copenhagen, Saturday. A week later he opens for three weeks at the Saville in London; then Israel, followed by a South American tour. After that Maurice returns here for one of three movies he's been offered. He keeps fit by walking two miles a day whatever the weather.

Irene Dunne couldn't understand why she never got a single phone call the day after the premiere of "How the West Was Won." She didn't learn until the next day that her phone was out of order.

When I heard that Peter Sellers plays four different roles in "Dr. Strangelove," I asked, "Does he get four different salaries?"

Eric L. Kleinstiver Assigned to Pueblo

Marine reserve Pvt. Eric L. Kleinstiver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Kleinstiver of 2204 Rovin Dr., has been assigned to six months of active duty for training by his unit, the 6th 155 Gun Battery, self-propelled, headquartered in Pueblo.

Pvt. Kleinstiver will undergo three months of recruit training at San Diego, then a month of individual combat instruction at combat instruction at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

He will then receive two months of on-the-job instruction in an artillery specialty before being released from active duty.

Boost in Wire Rates Opposed By U.S. Groups

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three petitioners have asked the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to reconsider and stay a proposed May 1 increase in private and leased wire rates.

They are United Press International, the American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (AT&T).

Attorneys for the UPI and AT&T filed affidavits for reconsideration of a recent FCC decision which would boost by $4,012,000 a year the rates charged the press and other users of leased telegraphic services of the AT&T and Western Union.

The UPI petition was supported by affidavits from Roderick W. Beaton, general business manager; Frank Tremaine, vice president and general manager of the newspicture division, and Harry R. Flory, general manager of communications.

The petition said the decision was regarded by the press as potentially damaging and a crippling threat that must inevitably result in substantial impairment in the widespread dissemination of news to newspapers and broadcasters.

The petition—the only objection filed by a news service—said the proposed rates bear no resemblance to what was proposed by the AT&T and, in fact, that there never has been any hearing with respect to the prescribed rates.

The affidavits stated that the proposed rates would mean a net increase to UPI of 18 per cent in the cost of private line services.

The ANPA petition, which included statements from 19 individual newspapers and groups of newspapers, said the commission's proposed rates would "impair significantly the widespread dissemination of news information."

It said the proposal would increase rates by an average of 19 per cent for the press and 2.1 per cent for commercial customers, but would decrease costs to government users by 7.8 per cent.

The AT&T asked a stay and for reconsideration of six specific points. Included was the order to AT&T to refund to customers the difference between equipment rental rates authorized by the FCC in December, 1958, which the commission's final decision rule were too high.

Juila A. Shaw Dies Wednesday

Mrs. Julia A. Shaw, 729 E. Colorado Ave., a resident of Colorado Springs for 32 years, died Wednesday at 78 at a local hospital, after an illness of three months.

She was a member of Trinity Baptist Church and had been a cook at the Colorado Springs High School, a seamstress for the WPA, was one of the first civilian cooks at Camp Carson soon after its construction and for years was cook at Cossett Hall, Colorado College.

Mrs. Shaw was born Oct. 5, 1884, in Cattahoula Parish, La. She is survived by a son, Rashio Shaw, of Chicago, Ill.; a daughter, Mrs. Angel Butcher, Wisner, La.; a granddaughter, Gloria A. Zenon, Colorado Springs; a granddaughter Mrs. Stazzie Harris, Clovis, N. M. and 16 other grandchildren, 61 great - grandchildren and six great - great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at Trinity Baptist Church. The Rev. Louis Harvey will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery. The Hunter Mortuary has charge of arrangements.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Agriculture estimates weekly food costs for couples 20 to 34 years of age at $21.60, and for couples 55 through 74 at $19.40 a week.

SEMINARY PLANNED

SOTTO IL MONTE, Italy (AP) — A seminary to train priests for Roman Catholic foreign missions will be built on grounds adjoining the house where Pope John XXIII was born.

Bouquets and Brickbats Greet Farm Issue Series

NEW YORK (NEA) — "A most constructive contribution" . . . "completely ignores fundamental circumstances" . . . "every American will benefit from reading it" . . . "a study in contradiction."

Those are some of the conflicting opinions of farm organizations and farm authorities on John Strohm's controversial series, "Our Crazy Food and Farm Problem." The five-part report, written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn., is appearing in hundreds of U.S. newspapers the week of Feb. 11.

Comments on Strohm's reporting and analysis of this major domestic question follow.

W. Harold Brenton, Iowa farmer and banker, trustee of the nonpartisan Committee for Economic Development and chairman of the subcommittee which prepared the CED policy statement on agriculture:

"John Strohm's series was a most constructive contribution and you are to be congratulated for publishing his thoughtful articles. Of greatest importance, it seems to me, was his stressing of the human factors involved. As Strohm says, the real farm problem is a social problem—a million farmers who no longer are needed to produce food and fiber, because agriculture has the mechanical muscles and know-how to produce three times as efficiently as it did 20 years ago.

"It was an understanding of this fact that led the Committee for Economic Development, in its policy statement, 'An Adaptive Program for Agriculture,' to seek for ways that would help people on the farm adjust to the dramatic changes caused mainly by science and technology. The storm aroused by the CED statement shows it is not easy to confront these facts. But it is urgently important to reduce the waste of our resources, especially our human resources, in agriculture. The costs of the present situation, to farmers, as well as consumers, are to high. That is why anyone truly interested in the farmer and his personal welfare must search for better ways of adapting to reality.

"Strohm has made it clear that this is a job not only for farmers and the federal government, but for all of us."

National Farmers Union:

"A study in contradiction. He commends farmers for their productivity genius. But he says that continuation or expansion of the farm program would hamstring farmers into mediocrity. In light of his views, therefore, it is interesting to note that farmers have made the greatest advances in efficiency through technology in the last 20 years. This is about the same time that the present farm program has been in effect.

"The farm program has helped immensely in bringing about the economic conditions in agriculture that allow farmers to earn a better income, and income or capital is the chief factor in providing labor-saving devices which contribute to efficiency.

"So while Strohm urges withdrawal of the very same legislative devices which have helped to bring about the greater efficiency, this greater efficiency has resulted in greater productivity.

"On wheat, he misses a basic point in urging return to free market. If all production controls were removed, farmers would be competing in a production free-for-all, and the result would be wholesale price cutting and economic disaster.

"If production control programs were removed from wheat, the output would jump 300 million bushels the first year and price would drop to half of what it is now. So Strohm doesn't answer the question of what we'd do with overproduction.

"The only thing he advocates is using these surpluses as a shot in the arm to help less developed nations get on their feet.

"We shipped through the food for peace program 600 million bushels last year out of production of 1.1 billion. The problem is to get more shipments of wheat and get sufficient appropriations for the program and at same time 'not disrupt normal channels of trade.'"

Charles Shuman, president, American Farm Bureau Federation:

"Every American will benefit from reading the John Strohm series."

Herschel D. Newson, Master, The National Grange:

"In this series John Strohm has, as usual, made an excellent presentation of several important facts pertaining to American agriculture. However he completely ignores fundamental circumstances responsible for maladjustments in the agricultural economy of the nation.

"He fails to recognize that the so-called 'farm problem' is—to a great extent—a result of a comprehensive and evasive structure of government programs designed to protect the income of those in nonagricultural segments of our economy.

"Our first government interference with 'full free competition' came with the Tariff Act of 1789—the first piece of legislation passed by the first Congress of the United States. Since that time, through wage and hour laws, tax concessions and other protective devices, including direct tax-payers' subsidies, government income protection has been extended to every major non-agricultural segment of the U.S. economy. This protective structure has become the very foundation of our entire economic system. The elimination of the total structure is unthinkable. No one has even suggested such action; to do so would be tantamount to inviting economic disaster.

"Somehow we must therefore make well-meaning citizens such as John Strohm understand that wages and prices established under this protective system automatically become the farmer's production cost—and that here in lies the primary cause of our farm income problem. Programs to correct these inequities must be designed . . . commodity by commodity . . . to provide America's agricultural producers an opportunity to earn and receive an equitable income primarily from the domestic market just as other government programs are designed to provide that opportunity to those engaged in nonagricultural sectors of the nation's economy."

Don Paarlberg, economist, Purdue University:

"I share Strohm's low appraisal of the present agricultural policies of the executive branch of the United States government, commonly referred to as the New Frontier.

"The administration scorns the ability of the farmer to make wise decisions as to resource use, and has unwarranted high regard for the ability of government to make these decisions. The weight of evidence is to the contrary. We are in best adjustment for livestock, fruits and vegetables, concerning which farmers make their own decisions. We are in poorest adjustment for wheat and feed grains, concerning which the government sets the price and production pattern. Government-dominated crops bring in about one-fourth of the farm income, account for about three-fourths of the farm program costs, and are responsible for about 90 per cent of the controversy.

"Only a person with a deep distrust of individual decision-making would wish to extend to those parts of agriculture now free and in relatively good adjustment the techniques that have worked so poorly for the controlled crops."

FPC Official Is Accused of Attacking FPC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Power Commission accused Commissioner Howard Morgan here of seeking the "easy applause" of the public by attacking the FPC's work.

In an emotional appearance before a House Commerce subcommittee, Joseph C. Swidler defended the FPC against charges Morgan made in a letter to President Kennedy and in testimony before the subcommittee the past two days.

In the letter, made public Jan. 25, Morgan asked Kennedy not to reappoint him when his term expires in June and pictured the regulatory agencies as being run by "ordinary men" who timedly yield to industry pressures.

"That was not an honest letter," Swidler said. "It was not intended to help, but to embarrass the President and Mr. Morgan's fellow commissioners."

Both in the letter and in two days of testimony on it Morgan insisted he was talking in general terms, with no individuals in mind. But Swidler said everyone took it for granted Morgan was attacking him.

The FPC chairman, frequently rising from his seat in agitation as he spoke, pictured Morgan as a publicity-seeker who he said resorted to "easy challenges" to capture headlines.

"The letter," he said, "illustrates Mr. Morgan's belief that striking an attitude will do a job; that administrative details are not important."

As for himself, Swidler added, "I have not looked for easy applause or the approval of claques but have tried to decide each case on its merits. As far as I know I have never reached a wrong decision for reasons of timidity."

A NEW TWIST

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A Memphis mother was a bit unnerved by her 10-year-old son's reaction as he tried on a pair of new shoes.

"Heck," he complained. "I don't want these. I can't cross my toes in 'em."

Academy Scouts Wing Coveted Dean Award

Cub Scout Pack 81 at the Air Force Academy has become the first Cub Pack in the United States to earn the coveted Dean Award. The award is presented only to scout groups in which every member advances at least one rank during the charter year.

Cubmaster T. Sgt. William A. Stokes received the award from Ray Ryerson, Pikes Peak Council Scout Executive.

The Academy Cubs also received two other national awards. Mr. Ryerson presented the National Award of Merit signifying accomplishment of all goals set for the charter year. Capt. James Bank, neighborhood scout commissioner, presented the On Time Registration Award, indicating Pack 81 completed the yearly registration, and all the record keeping that goes with it, in the period of 30 days prior to expiration of the current charter.

Cubmaster Stokes also received a plaque recognizing his outstanding service. Service plaques went to M. Sgt. Leavitt C. Simmons, M. Sgt. Ralph A. Bragg, and Lt. Col. John Calhoun.

Members of the Pack Committee, Maj. John A. Chrisinger, Capt. Reed M. Larsen, Capt. Fred Bartleson, Capt. Well P. Rollins, Capt. Richard R. Erbschloe, and Maj. Phillip Cooper, received Certificates of Merit and bronz paperweights.

AF Judoist, Coach Winners In Open Tourney

An Air Force Academy judoist and his coach were among winners of the recent open tourney of the Rocky Mountain Association of the AAU held at the Denver School of Judo.

Judo coach Maj. Philip Porter, competing unattached, grabbed first place in the 150 pounds and under class.

A third member of the cadet squad, William Wecker, placed fourth in the 176 pounds and under category.

Teams taking part in the tourney included Colorado State University, the University of Colorado, Colorado Springs, Ent AFB, Francis E. Warren AFB, Lowry AFB, and the Denver School of Judo.

Bomb Threat Call Empties Courtroom

PARIS (AP) — An anonymous phone call that a bomb had been placed in the courtroom here interrupted the trial of 15 persons accused of machine-gunning the car of President Charles de Gaulle last August.

In the afternoon session, an excited court clerk asked gendarmes to clear the room.

Apparently nothing unusual was found. In about 10 minutes gendarmes led everyone back inside.

Bouquets and Brickbats Greet Farm Issue Series

NEW YORK (NEA) — "A most constructive contribution" . . . "completely ignores fundamental circumstances" . . . "every American will benefit from reading it" . . . "a study in contradiction."

Those are some of the conflicting opinions of farm organizations and farm authorities on John Strohm's controversial series, "Our Crazy Food and Farm Problem." The five-part report, written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn., is appearing in hundreds of U.S. newspapers the week of Feb. 11.

Comments on Strohm's reporting and analysis of this major domestic question follow.

W. Harold Brenton, Iowa farmer and banker, trustee of the nonpartisan Committee for Economic Development and chairman of the subcommittee which prepared the CED policy statement on agriculture:

"John Strohm's series was a most constructive contribution and you are to be congratulated for publishing his thoughtful articles. Of greatest importance, it seems to me, was his stressing of the human factors involved. As Strohm says, the real farm problem is a social problem—a million farmers who no longer are needed to produce food and fiber, because agriculture has the mechanical muscles and know-how to produce three times as efficiently as it did 20 years ago.

"It was an understanding of this fact that led the Committee for Economic Development, in its policy statement, 'An Adaptive Program for Agriculture,' to seek for ways that would help people on the farm adjust to the dramatic changes caused mainly by science and technology. The storm aroused by the CED statement shows it is not easy to confront these facts. But it is urgently important to reduce the waste of our resources, especially our human resources, in agriculture. The costs of the present situation, to farmers, as well as consumers, are to high. That is why anyone truly interested in the farmer and his personal welfare must search for better ways of adapting to reality.

"Strohm has made it clear that this is a job not only for farmers and the federal government, but for all of us."

National Farmers Union:

"A study in contradiction. He commends farmers for their productivity genius. But he says that continuation or expansion of the farm program would hamstring farmers into mediocrity. In light of his views, therefore, it is interesting to note that farmers have made the greatest advances in efficiency through technology in the last 20 years. This is about the same time that the present farm program has been in effect.

"The farm program has helped immensely in bringing about the economic conditions in agriculture that allow farmers to earn a better income, and income or capital is the chief factor in providing labor-saving devices which contribute to efficiency.

"So while Strohm urges withdrawal of the very same legislative devices which have helped to bring about the greater efficiency, this greater efficiency has resulted in greater productivity.

"On wheat, he misses a basic point in urging return to free market. If all production controls were removed, farmers would be competing in a production free-for-all, and the result would be wholesale price cutting and economic disaster.

"If production control programs were removed from wheat, the output would jump 300 million bushels the first year and price would drop to half of what it is now. So Strohm doesn't answer the question of what we'd do with overproduction.

"The only thing he advocates is using these surpluses as a shot in the arm to help less developed nations get on their feet.

"We shipped through the food for peace program 600 million bushels last year out of production of 1.1 billion. The problem is to get more shipments of wheat and get sufficient appropriations for the program and at same time 'not disrupt normal channels of trade.'"

Charles Shuman, president, American Farm Bureau Federation:

"Every American will benefit from reading the John Strohm series."

Herschel D. Newson, Master, The National Grange:

"In this series John Strohm has, as usual, made an excellent presentation of several important facts pertaining to American agriculture. However he completely ignores fundamental circumstances responsible for maladjustments in the agricultural economy of the nation.

"He fails to recognize that the so-called 'farm problem' is—to a great extent—a result of a comprehensive and evasive structure of government programs designed to protect the income of those in nonagricultural segments of our economy.

"Our first government interference with 'full free competition' came with the Tariff Act of 1789—the first piece of legislation passed by the first Congress of the United States. Since that time, through wage and hour laws, tax concessions and other protective devices, including direct tax-payers' subsidies, government income protection has been extended to every major non-agricultural segment of the U.S. economy. This protective structure has become the very foundation of our entire economic system. The elimination of the total structure is unthinkable. No one has even suggested such action; to do so would be tantamount to inviting economic disaster.

"Somehow we must therefore make well-meaning citizens such as John Strohm understand that wages and prices established under this protective system automatically become the farmer's production cost—and that here in lies the primary cause of our farm income problem. COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, MARCH 3, 1963 SECTION E

HANDICAPPER OF THE MONTH — Members of the local handicap club, Stalwarts and Pals, have selected their secretary Miss Edith Helgendorf, 405 W. Cheyenne Rd., as their "handicapper of the month". Miss Helgendorf, a native of Fountain, had polio in 1941 which resulted in leg paralysis. Currently employed as secretary in the Commissary Division of Quartermaster at Ft. Carson, Miss Helgendorf has also worked with Douglas Jardine Plumbing and Maytag Rocky Mountain Company. One of her hobbies is playing the piano which she says is really just "tinkering". Pueblo Man, Wife Die in Auto Crash

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Pueblo man and wife were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of their car alongside Colorado 96 about five miles west of the Steel City.

The State Patrol identified the victims as Gilbert J. Pino, 36, and his wife, Lillian. Both died of internal injuries.

Their deaths, together with that of Wilburn Nelon, 26, of Arvada, early Saturday, boosted Colorado's 1963 traffic fatality toll to 55, compared with 50 during the corresponding period last year.

Patrolman Kenneth Childress said Pino's car careened off the highway at a curve for about 400 feet sometime Friday, knocking down a fence and two trees before overturning in a creek bed. The wreckage was not visible from the highway and went undiscovered until 11 a.m. Saturday.

Nelon was fatally injured when a car driven by his wife, Shirley, 26, left a road west of Denver, hit a gas main cover and a pole supporting mail boxes. Nelon and Mrs. Nelon's son, James Hatcher, 1, were thrown from the vehicle. The boy suffered lacerations and possible internal injuries. Mrs. Nelson was not hurt.

British Exclusion May Help Reds in Africa

By CARL HARTMAN

BRUSSELS, Beglium (AP) — It may sound far-fetched, but Britain's exclusion from the European Common Market could help the Communists in Africa.

In reprisal against President Charles de Gaulle's veto on British entry, Britain's friends forced a delay in a far-reaching agreement linking Western Europe with 18 African states. Sixteen of them are former French colonies.

The action did not come from pique alone. The other members of the Common Market—particularly Italy and the Netherlands—want to make sure that the English - speaking African countries can also get in on the aid-and-trade plan if they like.

The postponement was a shock to the 18 states, where the governments tend to be neutral, but cool toward communism.

The Reds have long delighted in baiting them as the willing pawns of "neo-colonialism." Now there is sure to be a Red chorus of "I told you so."

"It would be a victory for communism," Belgian Foreign Minister Paul—Henry Spaak told other cabinet ministers from the Common Market nations, "if we give these African countries the impression that they are nothing but the playthings of their former colonizers."

This apparently was just the impression being given. The Accra Evening News, a militant anti-colonial newspaper founded by Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, drew a bead on the Common Market nations.

"Mutual cooperation by all means," it commented, "but never the horse and rider relationship which some of our unfortunate African brothers are gleefully maintaining with their neo-colonialist masters in Nigeria and elsewhere. . . ."

West German leaders, who play a major role in the Common Market, were warning that there could be a quick sign of Communist gains: a decision by some African states to recognize the Communist satellite regime in East Germany. East German agents are active in Africa with offers of aid.

One of their main objects is to get diplomatic recognition from a non - Communist government, something they have so far failed to achieve.

Ludwig Erhard, West Germany's vice chancellor, came to Brussels during the talks on delaying the treaty. He lobbied hard for a quick signature, urging the danger from the East German regime.

He lost his point. Most people connected with the Common Market thought his fears exaggerated.

Some people minimize the immediate danger to Africa from the Communists, but they are worried about what might happen in the long run.

Howbert School Cub Scouts Hold Dinner Wednesday

Cub Scout Pack No. 6 of the Howbert School held its Blue and Gold banquet at the First Methodist Church recently. There was an attendance of 150.

By JOE RIGERT

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A Washington State senator has viewed to improve the public image of his great-great-great-great uncle, father of the country and namesake of the state.

Sen. Nat Washington, who says impressions of the first president as cold and formal are all wrong, got the State Senate to vote for a warm and friendly mural of George Washington.

If the House agrees, a painting showing President Washington as a comparatively jovial fellow may go on the statehouse walls.

Uncle George has gone down in history as stiff, cold and unfriendly, nephew Nat told the Senate, but actually he was a warm human being.

"All of the well-known existing portraits of George Washington," said the senator "show him in his formal white wig or powdered hair, posed in the stiff and formal portrait pose as a cold, haughty, stony-faced superhuman being."

The real Washington, the nephew said, wasn't that way at all.

The state senate was debating a resolution to set up a committee to consider murals for the statehouse walls.

At Sen. Washington's urging, the senators voted 26-20 to consider hiring an artist to paint a mural that would faithfully reproduce the features of Uncle George.

Elloine Havens Dies Wednesday

Miss Elloine L. Havens, 1309 E. Columbia St., who taught in Colorado Springs School District No. 11 for many years, died Wednesday at a local hospital. She was 77 and had resided in Colorado Springs since 1903. She was a member of the Congregational Church.

Miss Havens was born in Green Island, N.Y. July 13, 1885. She is survived by a nephew, Allan K. Havens, Vero Beach, Fla., and four nieces, Mrs. Elizabeth Grassmuck, Tampa, Fla., Mrs. Martha Ligon, Ashton, Md.; Mrs. Phyllis Wright and Mrs. Margaret Driscoll, both of Kensington, Md.

Graveside funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in Evergreen Cemetery. The Rev. Joseph W. Carroll will officiate. The Swan Funeral Home has charge of arrangements.

COLORADO SPRINGS

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, MARCH 3, 1963 SECTION E

HANDICAPPER OF THE MONTH — Members of the local handicap club, Stalwarts and Pals, have selected their secretary Miss Edith Helgendorf, 405 W. Cheyenne Rd., as their "handicapper of the month". Miss Helgendorf, a native of Fountain, had polio in 1941 which resulted in leg paralysis. Currently employed as secretary in the Commissary Division of Quartermaster at Ft. Carson, Miss Helgendorf has also worked with Douglas Jardine Plumbing and Maytag Rocky Mountain Company. One of her hobbies is playing the piano which she says is really just "tinkering".

Pueblo Man, Wife Die in Auto Crash

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Pueblo man and wife were found dead Saturday in the wreckage of their car alongside Colorado 96 about five miles west of the Steel City.

The State Patrol identified the victims as Gilbert J. Pino, 36, and his wife, Lillian. Both died of internal injuries.

Their deaths, together with that of Wilburn Nelon, 26, of Arvada, early Saturday, boosted Colorado's 1963 traffic fatality toll to 55, compared with 50 during the corresponding period last year.

Patrolman Kenneth Childress said Pino's car careened off the highway at a curve for about 400 feet sometime Friday, knocking down a fence and two trees before overturning in a creek bed. The wreckage was not visible from the highway and went undiscovered until 11 a.m. Saturday.

Nelon was fatally injured when a car driven by his wife, Shirley, 26, left a road west of Denver, hit a gas main cover and a pole supporting mail boxes. Nelon and Mrs. Nelon's son, James Hatcher, 1, were thrown from the vehicle. The boy suffered lacerations and possible internal injuries. Mrs. Nelson was not hurt.

British Exclusion May Help Reds in Africa

By CARL HARTMAN

BRUSSELS, Beglium (AP) — It may sound far-fetched, but Britain's exclusion from the European Common Market could help the Communists in Africa.

In reprisal against President Charles de Gaulle's veto on British entry, Britain's friends forced a delay in a far-reaching agreement linking Western Europe with 18 African states. Sixteen of them are former French colonies.

The action did not come from pique alone. The other members of the Common Market—particularly Italy and the Netherlands—want to make sure that the English - speaking African countries can also get in on the aid-and-trade plan if they like.

The postponement was a shock to the 18 states, where the governments tend to be neutral, but cool toward communism.

The Reds have long delighted in baiting them as the willing pawns of "neo-colonialism." Now there is sure to be a Red chorus of "I told you so."

"It would be a victory for communism," Belgian Foreign Minister Paul—Henry Spaak told other cabinet ministers from the Common Market nations, "if we give these African countries the impression that they are nothing but the playthings of their former colonizers."

This apparently was just the impression being given. The Accra Evening News, a militant anti-colonial newspaper founded by Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, drew a bead on the Common Market nations.

"Mutual cooperation by all means," it commented, "but never the horse and rider relationship which some of our unfortunate African brothers are gleefully maintaining with their neo-colonialist masters in Nigeria and elsewhere. . . ."

West German leaders, who play a major role in the Common Market, were warning that there could be a quick sign of Communist gains: a decision by some African states to recognize the Communist satellite regime in East Germany. East German agents are active in Africa with offers of aid.

One of their main objects is to get diplomatic recognition from a non - Communist government, something they have so far failed to achieve.

Ludwig Erhard, West Germany's vice chancellor, came to Brussels during the talks on delaying the treaty. He lobbied hard for a quick signature, urging the danger from the East German regime.

He lost his point. Most people connected with the Common Market thought his fears exaggerated.

Some people minimize the immediate danger to Africa from the Communists, but they are worried about what might happen in the long run.

Howbert School Cub Scouts Hold Dinner Wednesday

Cub Scout Pack No. 6 of the Howbert School held its Blue and Gold banquet at the First Methodist Church recently. There was an attendance of 150.

The Webelos Den conducted the opening ceremony, followed by the invocation by Earle Scott. Air Force Academy Cadet Third Class Gary Close spoke briefly on his experiences in Scouting. Two films were shown, "Supersonic Thunderbirds" and "Where Am I?". Miss Eunice Phillips, principal of the Howbert School, was a special guest. The Pack is sponsored by the Howbert PTA.

Jovial Portrait Of Washington Is Proposed

By JOE RIGERT

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A Washington State senator has viewed to improve the public image of his great-great-great-great uncle, father of the country and namesake of the state.

Sen. Nat Washington, who says impressions of the first president as cold and formal are all wrong, got the State Senate to vote for a warm and friendly mural of George Washington.

If the House agrees, a painting showing President Washington as a comparatively jovial fellow may go on the statehouse walls.

Uncle George has gone down in history as stiff, cold and unfriendly, nephew Nat told the Senate, but actually he was a warm human being.

"All of the well-known existing portraits of George Washington," said the senator "show him in his formal white wig or powdered hair, posed in the stiff and formal portrait pose as a cold, haughty, stony-faced superhuman being."

The real Washington, the nephew said, wasn't that way at all.

The state senate was debating a resolution to set up a committee to consider murals for the statehouse walls.

At Sen. Washington's urging, the senators voted 26-20 to consider hiring an artist to paint a mural that would faithfully reproduce the features of Uncle George.

Eiloine Havens Dies Wednesday

Miss Elloine L. Havens, 1309 E. Columbia St., who taught in Colorado Springs School District No. 11 for many years, died Wednesday at a local hospital. She was 77 and had resided in Colorado Springs since 1903. She was a member of the Congregational Church.

Miss Havens was born in Green Island, N.Y. July 13, 1885. She is survived by a nephew, Allan K. Havens, Vero Beach, Fla., and four nieces, Mrs. Elizabeth Grassmuck, Tampa, Fla., Mrs. Martha Ligon, Ashton, Md.; Mrs. Phyllis Wright and Mrs. Margaret Driscoll, both of Kensington, Md.

Graveside funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in Evergreen Cemetery. The Rev. Joseph W. Carroll will officiate. The Swan Funeral Home has charge of arrangements.

Colts Ramble Past Tribe

Tech Drops Tigers in Finale, 6-4

HOUGHTON, Mich. — A pair of goals by Mike Draper of Michigan Tech broke open a knotted game in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association here Saturday as the Huskies defeated Colorado College, 6-4, in the season's finale for the Tigers of Colorado Springs.

The triumph, a second straight over CC after Friday's 6-3 win, jumped Tech into third place in the standings. This means they will be playing next weekend at the home of the second place team, in the WCHA playoffs which lead to the national championships in Boston later this month.

Tech jumped to a quick 3-1 lead at the end of the first period and boosted it to 4-1 in the second frame before Colorado College defenseman Bill Dixon scored a pair of goals late in the middle stanza. This cut the deficit to 4-3. The Tigers tied up the game in the last period, but Draper scored the winning goal at the 12:35 mark and added another one on an empty net with just four seconds remaining. CC Coach Tony Frasca had pulled goalie Art Warwick to add a sixth forward.

Tech goalie Gary Bauman made 23 saves while Warwick finished the game by kicking out 35 shots, including 18 in the final period.

The victory gave Tech an 11-7-2 league record. Minnesota was left in fourth place after a 5-1 upset by Michigan State Saturday night. The Gophers have a final 10-7-3 record.

Terrors Down Danes, 2-1 To Cop City Ice Crown

The Terrors of Palmer High School won the City Hockey League title Saturday night at the Broadmoor World Arena on the strength of a 2-1 victory over Fountain Valley — and the controversial ruling of the league commission.

John Boddington broke open a 1-1 deadlock with 10:55 remaining in the third and final period for the victory. Casey Jones had scored first for the Danes, and Doug Swayne tied the score for Palmer in two second period tallies.

Lloyd Smith made 25 stops in goal for Fountain Valley and Tom Lancaster halted but seven shots for the Terrors.

Actually, the Terrors ended the second round of play in a tie with Cheyenne Mountain High, both with 4-2 records. And the league rules call for winners of the two rounds to meet for the title. Palmer won the first round with a 5-1 record, losing only to Cheyenne.

But the league junked the rule and decided the Terrors would be champions, averting the playoff of the second round tie. They based this on a better overall record for the season — the criteria to be used next year after a recent change in rules.

The All - League team was also picked Saturday night. These selections follow:

All-City Hockey Team

FIRST TEAM

Center — Chuck Reinking, Palmer
Wing — Don Nelson, Cheyenne Wing — Jim Berthrong, Wasson
Defense — John Pope, Palmer
Defense — Ray Cool, Palmer
Goalie — Jim Parsons, Cheyenne

SECOND TEAM

Center — Jack Hayes, Cheyenne, and Bill Mitchell, Wasson
Wing — John Boddington, Palmer
Wing — Doug Swayne, Palmer
Defense — Glen Richter, Wasson
Defense — Tim Carnegie, Fountain Valley
Goalie — Lloyd Smith, Fountain Valley

Most Valuable Player — John Pope, Palmer. Runnerup — Jim Parsons, Cheyenne.

South Ties for Second; T-Birds Last Hopes Fly

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO—Pueblo South has become the South Central League's top basketball school by winning the games it has to—plus the ones it should.

Bill Brown's perpetual motion machine refused to deviate from that formula here Saturday night, fighting off Palmer's battling Terrors, 61-48, to move a step closer to it's fourth state tournament trip in as many years.

For the Terrors, the loss was disappointing, but not overly costly. Gerry Schroeder's young club clung to its fifth place spot in the SCL standings and can clinch a finish at the top of the second division by downing Pueblo East in the season finale at home next Friday.

In the case of South, the victory was important. It moved the Colts back into a second place tie with rival Central and kept the team's title hopes alive. South and Central meet in Pueblo this week with the winner assured of a berth in the playoffs and also a tie for the crown should Trinidad be upset by Centennial. Equally important to the Pueblo schools, it snuffed out the final chances of Wasson's pre-season favorites for gaining a second place tie.

South is not an overly-impressive club this season but the Colts employ one characteristic of Brown-coached quintets that has done the job for them. They are never motionless. That fact alone chopped up Palmer's bid Saturday night as the taller Terrors were left staring at a 50-33 deficit in rebounding which seems a little ridiculous on the surface. Position and that little extra hustle accomplished it for the winners.

Early in the battle, Palmer gave the Colts, all they wanted. With the poise that has been increasingly evident in recent games, the Tribe deliberately kept the pace slowed and did it so effectively that even tho South's offense was smoking, there was no fire.

After over a minute-and-a-half of play, Dave Steward gave the Springs' team the lead with a jump shot from the side but South bounced back on Ray Gottula's free toss and a bucket by Ron Schwab to take the advantage, 3-2. The Colts then remained either ahead or tied until Jim Lindsey sneaked behind the South defense to send Palmer on top at 9-7 with 2:37 left in the quarter. The Terrors still led at 11-10 until Jerry Jackson hit a go-ahead goal for South with 17 seconds remaining.

Palmer had its biggest lead at 17-14 three minutes deep into the second period but the Colts, obviously chagrined over events up to that point, suddenly began to pick up the pace a bit and hit three straight goals in the next minute-and-a-half. Palmer trailed only 20-19 when South went on its next spurt, one that carried the Colts into a 26-19 lead and began to break the contest open. By halftime the home club had a 32-23 margin.

Perhaps in a quick summary it could be said that the Terrors lost the contest in the first three minutes of the third quarter. At a time when the Tribe had to be catching up if there was still to be a battle, South was running off nine straight points before the Springs' club could get on the scoreboard. By that time South had a 41-23 lead and Brown began resting his regulars.

The scrappy Terrors refused to admit they were whipped, tho, and behind some sparkling outcourt shooting by Walt Hylton they ran off 12 points while South was added only two during the remainder of the period. That made it 43-35 going into the final eight minutes and Palmer moved within seven at one point but could get no closer.

Bears Gobble Up Tigers In Year's Finale, 108-79

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

It may be cheating on springtime, but there was one Bear of the Rocky Mountains that climbed out of hibernation Saturday night. He left his den to roam the campus of Colorado College and all but ate up everything in sight.

This particular Bear, who makes his home among the buildings of Colorado State College in Greeley, had a ravenous appetite for points by the bushel and before the banquet was over it spoiled the season's finale for CC. In fact until the very end of the feast, the Tigers could only nibble at the fare.

The victory for the Bears gave C-State a even - stephen Rocky Mountain Conference record of 8-8 and finished off their entire season with a 10-15 mark. CC, mired in the basement of the RMC standings, claimed only three victories in 16 league affairs and the same number of wins in 25 games over the season.

Actually, the Tigers never had a chance in this one, which ended a frustrated season for the team and Coach Red Eastlack. With only little over three minutes gone in the contest the Greeley five was already 10 points in the lead after hitting their first four shots without a miss.

The Bears kept right with this pace, hitting their first 10 of 12 attempts and the shell - shocked Bengals were too far behind right off the bat to hope for much of a rally. CSC led by as much as 27 points in the first half and bloated that to a 38-point margin in the second half.

CC was able to keep pace in the second half, with each team scoring 52 points, but any thought of catching up could have only been dreams.

Colorado State didn't shoot as masterfully as the final tally would indicate, however. It was merely the fact that they could get off no less than 104 attempts (no mean feat) and canned 43.2 per cent of them. Colorado College actually was more accurate, with a 44.3 percentage, but could not match the Bruins in their bombardment.

The Greeley quintet had seven players in double figures, pacing by the 19 points of reserve guard Roger Arthur. Another sub, Dennis Diehl, had 16 points, while Wellington Webb, Jim Gilbert, Don Mulvaney, Ben Graefe and Charlie Williams all were over 10.

Freshman Phil Hart's 24 markers topped both teams as the CC forward played a fine game, hitting from all angles and bringing down a dozen rebounds. Bob Baker had 17 points for the Tigers cause, while senior Gregg Smith finished out his career with 11 and Pete Susemihl had 10. The only senior besides Smith on Eastlack's team this year was John Reid, a local product and son of Dean of Men Juan Reid, who started the game and scored two points.

CC came out in their usual zone defense to start the game, but it made little difference to the visitors who couldn't miss with their pot - shots from out court. And it didn't seem to make much difference which players Coach John Bunn (in his farewell appearance as CSC coach) put into the game. All were hot as bank robbers on this night.

"We had seen them like that before," Eastlack said after the game. "I was afraid that might happen. They just had too much depth for us ... players that were all of about equal ability. When they get hot like that there's not much you can do about it."

After their blistering start, CSC cooled slightly behind the shield of their protective lead, but they still ended the first half with 54 per cent of their 50 attempts. Meanwhile the Tigers were connecting on a respectful amount (11 of 23) but they just weren't getting the ball airbourne enough times.

Hart got 19 of his 24 points in the final 10 minutes of the ball game, but it was a rally that come all too late.

Nebraska Wins Big Eight Indoor Track Meet; Miller Cops Third

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The University of Nebraska pounded hard Saturday night for the championship of the Big Eight Conference indoor track meet. Defending champ Kansas ate dust.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers won three first places in the opening seven events. No records were broken in the early parts of the meet.

Fred Wilke of Nebraska was unseated at 60-yard low hurdles king by a teammate, but won the high hurdles for the same distance. Ray Knaub edged him in the low's. Nebraska's Mike Fleming won the mile run.

Missouri looked strong, nabbing a first in two events, Ricky Beldner in the 60-yard dash and Greg Pelster in the 600-yard run.

Kansas showed strength in the shot put when Yul Yost heaved the heavy ball 56 feet 11 inches.

Tech Drops Tigers in Finale, 6-4

HOUGHTON, Mich. — A pair of goals by Mike Draper of Michigan Tech broke open a knotted game in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association here Saturday as the Huskies defeated Colorado College, 6-4, in the season's finale for the Tigers of Colorado Springs.

The triumph, a second straight over CC after Friday's 6-3 win, jumped Tech into third place in the standings. This means they will be playing next weekend at the home of the second place team, in the WCHA playoffs which lead to the national championships in Boston later this month.

Tech jumped to a quick 3-1 lead at the end of the first period and boosted it to 4-1 in the second frame before Colorado College defenseman Bill Dixon scored a pair of goals late in the middle stanza. This cut the deficit to 4-3.

The Tigers tied up the game in the last period, but Draper scored the winning goal at the 12:35 mark and added another one on an empty net with just four seconds remaining. CC Coach Tony Frasca had pulled goalie Art Warwick to add a sixth forward.

Tech goalie Gary Bauman made 23 saves while Warwick finished the game by kicking out 35 shots, including 18 in the final period.

The victory gave Tech an 11-7-2 league record. Minnesota was left in fourth place after a 5-1 upset by Michigan State Saturday night. The Gophers have a final 10-7-3 record.

Colorado College tied with Michigan State in the final WCHA standings with 5-11 records.

South Ties for Second; T-Birds Last Hopes Fly

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO—Pueblo South has become the South Central Leaguue's top basketball school by winning the games it has to—plus the ones it should.

Bill Brown's perpetual motion machine refused to deviate from that formula here Saturday night, fighting off Palmer's battling Terrors, 61-48, to move a step closer to it's fourth state tournament trip in as many years.

For the Terrors, the loss was disappointing, but not overly costly. Gerry Schroeder's young club clung to its fifth place spot in the SCL standings and can clinch a finish at the top of the second division by downing Pueblo East in the season finale at home next Friday.

In the case of South, the victory was important. It moved the Colts back into a second place tie with rival Central and kept the team's title hopes alive. South and Central meet in Pueblo this week with the winner assured of a berth in the playoffs and also a tie for the crown should Trinidad be upset by Centennial. Equally important to the Pueblo schools, it snuffed out the final chances of Wasson's pre-season favorites for gaining a second place tie.

South is not an overly-impressive club this season but the Colts employ one characteristic of Brown-coached quintets that has done the job for them. They are never motionless. That fact alone chopped up Palmer's bid Saturday night as the taller Terrors were left staring at a 50-33 deficit in rebounding which seems a little ridiculous on the surface. Position and that little extra hustle accomplished it for the winners.

Early in the battle, Palmer gave the Colts all they wanted. With the poise that has been increasingly evident in recent games, the Tribe deliberately kept the pace slowed and did it so effectively that even tho South's offense was smoking, there was no fire.

After over a minute-and-a-half of play, Dave Steward gave the Springs' team the lead with a jump shot from the side but South bounced back on Ray Gottula's free toss and a bucket by Ron Schwab to take the advantage, 3-2. The Colts then remained either ahead or tied until Jim Lindsey sneaked behind the South defense to send Palmer on top at 9-7 with 2:37 left in the quarter. The Terrors still led at 11-10 until Jerry Jackson hit a go-ahead goal for South with 17 seconds remaining.

Palmer had its biggest lead at 17-14 three minutes deep into the second period but the Colts, obviously chagrined over events up to that point, suddenly began to pick up the pace a bit and hit three straight goals in the next minute-and-a-half. Palmer trailed only 20-19 when South went on its next spurt, one that carried the Colts into a 26-19 lead and began to break the contest open. By halftime the home club had a 32-23 margin.

Perhaps in a quick summary it could be said that the Terrors lost the contest in the first three minutes of the third quarter. At a time when the Tribe had to be catching up if there was still to be a battle, South was running off nine straight points before the Springs' club could get on the scoreboard. By that time South had a 41-23 lead and Brown began resting his regulars.

The scrappy Terrors refused to admit they were whipped, tho, and behind some sparkling outcourt shooting by Walt Hylton they ran off 12 points while South was added only two during the remainder of the period. That made it 43-35 going into the final eight minutes and Palmer moved within seven at one point but could get no closer.

Terrors Down Danes, 2-1 To Cop City Ice Crown

The Terrors of Palmer High School won the City Hockey League title Saturday night at the Broadmoor World Arena on the strength of a 2-1 victory over Fountain Valley — and the controversial ruling of the league commission.

John Boddington broke open a 1-1 deadlock with 10:55 remaining in the third and final period for the victory. Casey Jones had scored first for the Danes, and Doug Swayne tied the score for Palmer in two second period tallies.

Lloyd Smith made 25 stops in goal for Fountain Valley and Tom Lancaster halted but seven shots for the Terrors.

Actually, the Terrors ended the second round of play in a tie with Cheyenne Mountain High, both with 4-2 records. And the league rules call for winners of the two rounds to meet for the title. Palmer won the first round with a 5-1 record, losing only to Cheyenne.

But the league junked the rule and decided the Terrors would be champions, averting the playoff of the second round tie. They based this on a better overall record for the season — the criteria to be used next year after a recent change in rules.

The All - League team was also picked Saturday night. These selections follow:

All-City Hockey Team

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

It may be cheating on springtime, but there was one Bear of the Rocky Mountains that climbed out of hibernation Saturday night. He left his den to roam the campus of Colorado College and all but ate up everything in sight.

This particular Bear, who makes his home among the buildings of Colorado State College in Greeley, had a ravenous appetite for points by the bushel and before the banquet was over it spoiled the season's finale for CC. In fact until the very end of the feast, the Tigers could only nibble at the fare.

The victory for the Bears gave C-State a even - stephen Rocky Mountain Conference record of 8-8 and finished off their entire season with a 10-15 mark. CC, mired in the basement of the RMC standings, claimed only three victories in 16 league affairs and the same number of wins in 25 games over the season.

Actually, the Tigers never had a chance in this one, which ended a frustrated season for the team and Coach Red Eastlack. With only little over three minutes gone in the contest the Greeley five was already 10 points in the lead after hitting their first four shots without a miss.

The Bears kept right with this pace, hitting their first 10 of 12 attempts and the shell - shocked Bengals were too far behind right off the bat to hope for much of a rally. CSC led by as much as 27 points in the first half and bloated that to a 38-point margin in the second half.

CC was able to keep pace in the second half, with each team scoring 52 points, but any thought of catching up could have only been dreams.

Colorado State didn't shoot as masterfully as the final tally would indicate, however. It was merely the fact that they could get off no less than 104 attempts (no mean feat) and canned 43.2 per cent of them. Colorado College actually was more accurate, with a 44.3 percentage, but could not match the Bruins in their bombardment.

The Greeley quintet had seven players in double figures, pacing by the 19 points of reserve guard Roger Arthur. Another sub, Dennis Diehl, had 16 points, while Wellington Webb, Jim Gilbert, Don Mulvaney, Ben Graefe and Charlie Williams all were over 10.

Freshman Phil Hart's 24 markers topped both teams as the CC forward played a fine game, hitting from all angles and bringing down a dozen rebounds. Bob Baker had 17 points for the Tigers cause, while senior Gregg Smith finished out his career with 11 and Pete Susemihl had 10. The only senior besides Smith on Eastlack's team this year was John Reid, a local product and son of Dean of Men Juan Reid, who started the game and scored two points.

CC came out in their usual zone defense to start the game, but it made little difference to the visitors who couldn't miss with their pot - shots from out court. And it didn't seem to make much difference which players Coach John Bunn (in his farewell appearance as CSC coach) put into the game. All were hot as bank robbers on this night.

"We had seen them like that before," Eastlack said after the game. "I was afraid that might happen. They just had too much depth for us ... players that were all of about equal ability. When they get hot like that there's not much you can do about it."

After their blistering start, CSC cooled slightly behind the shield of their protective lead, but they still ended the first half with 54 per cent of their 50 attempts. Meanwhile the Tigers were connecting on a respectful amount (11 of 23) but they just weren't getting the ball airbourne enough times.

Hart got 19 of his 24 points in the final 10 minutes of the ball game, but it was a rally that come all too late.

Texas Western Thrashes Air Force Academy, 62-45

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Western College closed out its regular season with a 62-45 victory over Air Force Academy Saturday night, for their 19th victory in 25 games.

The Miners will play the University of Texas at Lubbock next Saturday in the Southwestern Regional NCAA playoffs.

The Miners jumped off to a 15-8 lead in the first seven minutes and were never pressed. They were in front 33-20 at halftime and held a 20 - point margin through most of the second half.

Playmaker Bobbie Lesley led Texas Western scoring with 22. Jim Barnes, the Miner scoring star, scored 13 in three-quarters of the game and picked off 18 rebounds.

Parke Hinman led scoring for the Air Force with 10 points, Air Force connecting on 16 of 43 from the floor for 37.2 percentage. The Miners countered 24 of 53 for 45.3.

Nebraska Wins Big Eight Indoor Track Meet; Miller Cops Third

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The University of Nebraska pounded hard Saturday night for the championship of the Big Eight Conference indoor track meet. Defending champ Kansas ate dust.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers won three first places in the opening seven events. No records were broken in the early parts of the meet.

Fred Wilke of Nebraska was unseated at 60-yard low hurdles king by a teammate, but won the high hurdles for the same distance. Ray Knaub edged him in the low's. Nebraska's Mike Fleming won the mile run.

Missouri looked strong, nabbing a first in two events, Ricky Beldner in the 60-yard dash and Greg Pelster in the 600-yard run.

Kansas showed strength in the shot put when Yul Yost heaved the heavy ball 56 feet 11 inches.

St. Mary's Winds Up DPL Slate Today

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

St. Mary's proud Pirates take time out from polishing up their gleaming new Denver Parochial League crown today to wind up conference action in a 2:30 p.m. contest at the St. Mary's Gymnasium with Cathedral furnishing the opposition.

Nothing that happens today can in anyway change the outcome of this winter's race. The Pirates put the first league basketball championship in 50 years of trying on deposit Friday night and are now hoping to add the state crown as interest.

For Coach Ed Murphy, Friday's title-clinching win over old-nemisis Regis had to be one of the most satisfying of his career. Too many times in Murphy's brilliant four-year coaching span at St. Mary's it has been the Raiders who have pulled the carpet from under Pirate dreams.

Not so this time. Earlier in the campaign the Bucs pulled out a one-point win over Regis in Denver when reserve Mike Shea sank a sensational shot in the final seconds. Friday, in the more friendly surroundings of the St. Mary's Gymnasium, the Bucs efficiently ground out a 54-48 triumph that served as the title-clincher.

Going into the state tournament which will start at Regis Field House in Denver next Friday, Murphy has a spectacular record as a coach at the local school. After a so-so first year, "Easy Ed" guided the Bucs to second place in the DPL in 1960-61 and then to an upset victory in the state tournament which gave St. Mary's its first state championship of any kind.

Last winter the Pirates again were forced aside by Regis in league play and finally yielded to the Raiders in the finals of the state tourney as well. Now this winter, Murphy has added the school's first league championship and will be gunning for a second state title starting Friday.

First, however, the Bucs would like to add a little more glitter to a season's record that already reads 22-2. Cathedral presently reads 5-12 in the standings and about the only chance the Bluejays have for an upset today hinges on the possibility that the Pirates might be below par after the release of the season - long pressure.

Murphy will have his usual starting five of John O'Connell, who pumped in 29 points in the Friday victory, Jim Gillespie, Steve Rome, Mickey Elliott, and Richie Jewett ready for what may be a final home appearance. All five are seniors.

Other windup action today has St. Francis at Annunciation, and Machebeuf at Mt. Carmel.

Doug Jones Frowns at Clay's Talk

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doug Jones frowned at a high-powered publicity program that has been worked out for talkative Cassius Clay in preparation for their March 13 heavyweight contenders' bout and grumbled, "When he gets to New York he might have some trouble keeping up with the Joneses."

Jones, a sturdy 190-pounder from New York, and Clay, the unbeaten rhyming prophet from Louisville, Ky., have a 10-round date with fists instead of words in Madison Square Garden 10 days from now.

But, in the meantime, Jones has been busy parrying verbal blows hurled by Clay whom he calls, "the big wind in Miami Beach."

"I understand people in Miami think the hurricane season came early this year," says Jones. "They'll sure be glad to get rid of the big wind."

The "big wind" is planning to hit New York like a full-fledged hurricane. Mapped out for him is a program that would scare anybody except a 21-year-old fellow with the guts to look Sonny Liston in the eye and say, "You're almost too ugly to be a fighter."

Clay, who fights almost as well as he talks, is scheduled to trade quips with no less an artist than Bob Hope. This TV spectacular will take place on March 8—on a network show—and will be followed by the start of Clay's "victory party."

That's right, Clay is beginning his "victory party" five days before the bout — and adds that it will continue for five days after it.

"It's gonna be a good one," he says. "Only thing is I won't be able to stick around for the finish. I'll already be in training for Liston."

The advance buildup for Clay in New York also includes a visit to Greenwich Village where Cassius "will read poetry" with several noted rhymers in a well-know meeting place of the "artists."

The usually conservative Garden Publicity Department is going in good humor with the talkathon. A sign has been placed in the Garden lobby stating "Cassius Clay is here to stay — if you want to see him you gotta pay."

To which Clay adds: "No passes for Cassius — for Clay you gotta pay."

Despite all the admitted tomfoolery, the Clay-Jones bout is building up to a Garden sellout — The first the Garden has had for boxing in some years. And there's little doubt about the ability of either man — only a haunting question whether either is really big and tough enough to stand up for long against the colossal Liston.

Clay has had 17 pro fights and won 'em all, including 13 by knockouts, while Jones, a plain man who may have a glittering future, has won 21 fights, lost three and had one draw. He has had 13 kayoes.

Wichita Pulls Upset Over Loyola of Chicago, 73-72

CHICAGO (AP)—Wichita's NIT-bound Wheatshockers, down by eight points late in the second half, rallied Saturday night behind Dave Stallworth to upset third-ranked Loyola of Chicago 73-72.

The defeat was the second in 26 games for Loyola which enters first-round play of the Mideast regional of the NCAA tournament March 11 at Northwestern.

The victory, the 19th in 26 games for the Missouri Valley runners-up, gave the Shockers the distinction of defeating both top-ranked Cincinnati and third-raked Loyola.

Stallworth, who finished with 28 points, gave Wichita the lead of 69-68 with 1:31 remaining.

Loyola trailed 30-28 at halftime but raced to a 49-41 advantage with nine minutes to play behind the torrid outside shooting of Ron Miller and John Egan.

When Wichita regular Nate Bowman fouled out with 8:40 left, Stallworth took over and scored his team's next 12 points. Loyola, however, got in serious trouble when two regulars — Les Hunter and Vic Rouse—fouled out within seconds of each with more than six minutes left. Wichita again lost the lead as Egan hit two straight jump shots but Stallworth came back with a basket and a free throw to put Wichita ahead to stay.

Oklahoma Defeats Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Little Eddie Evans sparked Oklahoma in a late drive and the Sooners came from behind for a 77-75 victory over Nebraska in the Big Eight Conference Saturday night.

The Sooners, trailing by 11 points with 6 minutes 34 seconds to play, hit 10 straight points within three minutes, and took the lead at 1:44 when Harvey Chaffin stole the ball and went the length of the court for a layup.

The Sooners were behind 43-35 at the half and trailed by 13 twice after the intermission.

The 5-9 Evans poured in 16 of his game-leading 25 points in the second half as the Sooners slashed the Husker margin.

Nebraska's fast - break game shot the home team out in front early in a bid for victory in the last home game appearance for Coach Jerry Bush, who has resigned effective at the end of the school year.

Evans dropped in three baskets during the 10-point Oklahoma surge in the dying minutes.

Evans and James Gatewood each scored two free throws after Oklahoma took the lead to offset a basket and free throw by Nebraska's Daryl Petsch.

It was Oklahoma's seventh league win against six losses. Nebraska is 1-11 in the conference.

Bo Wininger Leads Golf Tournament

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Conquering the treacherous bunkers, defending champion Bo Wininger moved into the lead at the midway point of golf's $40,000 Greater New Orleans Open Saturday with a 2-under-par 70.

With a 68-70—138 for 36 holes, he stood two strokes in front of Billy Casper Jr., who carded a 70 for a total 140.

The 40-year-old Wininger, who won the New Orleans Open last year when he played only intermittently on the tour, used his putter as a "Texas wedge" on his second shots when he missed seven greens on approach shots.

He was able to push his shots to within a few feet of the pin, hitting them with the putter on the fringe.

The gray-haired swinger from Oklahoma Cityback on the pro circuit fulltime — didn't let the bunkers on the 7,000-yard Lakewood Country Club course phase him.

They gave him so much trouble in Wednesday's pro-am he failed to turn in a score card after getting 41 on the front nine.

"I'm just going ahead and hitting the ball and not worrying about the bunkers," he said after his round.

Then he went to the driving range for nearly an hour, explaining:

"I'm trying to slow down my back swing and twist my body in order to get more speed and get over those bunkers."

He was still kidding about the attention given to golf's big three—Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jackie Nicklaus.

"I'm only kidding," said Bo, laughing as a youngster asked for an autograph. "Can't you get through the crowds to Palmer?" he quipped.

The big three found the going rough again for the second time.

Palmer, complaining of "terrible putting," had a 73 for a 147 total.

"I've only missed two greens in two days," he moaned. "and I'm three over par."

Nicklaus also shot a 73 for a 147 while Player's 72 gave him a 144.

Bob Rosburg, who set a course record Friday with a 68 and led the first round, ballooned to a 74. It gave him a 141, good enough for a third place tie with young Tony Lema, who fired a 3-under-par 69.

Dallas Coach Slated for Honors in KC

DALLAS (UPI)— Hank Stram, coach of the American Football League champion Dallas Texans, will be honored Monday at the 32nd annual Rockne Club of America testimony dinner in Kansas City.

Stram will receive the club's professional coach of the year award. He is the first American Football League mentor to be selected for the honor.

Lamar Hunt, president of the Texans, and team general manager Jack Steadman will attend.

Hunt currently has a deal working with Kansas City to move the Texans there next season if the Missouri city sells 35,000 season tickets.

District Tournament Slated for March 7-9

The mighty Spartans of Salida, who won their third consecutive Pikes Peak League crown Friday night by whacking Widefield, 63-42, opens the District Tournament Thursday afternoon against the winner of the Fountain - Leadville contest Monday night at the Trojan Gymnasium.

Don Schmidli's Spartans meet the winner of that contest at 4:30 p.m. at the Colorado Springs Auditorium, the site of the 1963 District Tournament slated to run thru Saturday night.

In other PPL games Friday night: Cheyenne Mountain romped over Harrison, 56-38, to knock the Panthers from a playoff game against Salida; Academy High slipped past Florence, 51-50; and Fountain downed Manitou Springs, 52-51.

PIKES PEAK LEAGUE
Final Standings

	W	L	Pct.	Pts.	Opp
Salida	6	2	.750	478	376
Widefield	5	3	.625	470	400
Academy High	5	3	.625	435	382
Harrison	5	3	.625	389	394
Cheyenne Mt.	4	4	.500	413	371
Florence	4	4	.500	404	413
Manitou Springs	3	5	.375	455	470
Fountain	3	5	.375	390	470
Leadville	1	7	.125	341	444

Three teams —Widefield, Academy High, and Harrison — ended the season in deadlock for the second place in the PPL final standings with 5-3 records. Cheyenne and Florence share the third slot with 4-4 records, while Manitou and Fountain are nestled in the next to last spot with 3-5 records.

Because of the tournament restricting only eight teams to enter competition, the last place squad is slated to play the eighth place team. Since Manitou and Fountain share that next to last post-tion schools officials flipped a coin and Manitou drew a bye, thus Fountain is faced with playing the Leadville crew Monday night on its home court. The winner of that encounter will get the eighth place position in tournament competition.

Four games are on tap for Thursday with the winners of those games slated to clash Friday night at 7 and 8:30 p.m. The losers of Friday's contest will play each other Saturday night at 7 p.m. for third place honors. The winners of Friday's games will clash Saturday night at 8:30 to decide who wears the District Tournament crown. All games are scheduled at the City Auditorium.

In case the league champion wins the tourney, the runner-up will automatically get the second spot in the Class AA State Tournament slated for next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in Denver. Two teams are allotted to compete in the state tourney from each league.

Kansas State Wins Over Oklahoma State, 56-54

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — The Kansas State Wildcats strengthened their hold on first place in the Big Eight Conference basketball race with a 56-54 victory over Oklahoma State here Saturday night.

The Wildcats, who now have a 10-2 league record had to come from behind to grab the victory.

Johnson led all scorers with 15 points and teammates Don Linsenmeyer and Larry Hawk each scored 12 points.

Kansas State's scoring was well balanced with three players, Willie Murrell, Roger Suttner and Al Peithman, scoring 11 points each. Gary Marriott got 10 points and Simons 8.

The best 18 hole score on the 1962 PGA tour was turned in by Ruddy Sullivan when he shot a 61 in the first round of the Tucson Open.

Lane Wins Bout Over Derado

NEW YORK (AP) — Kenny Lane, the top-ranking lightweight contender, had to call on all his boxing skill and experience Saturday night to gain a narrow, unanimous decision over unranked but strong Vicente Derado of Argentina at Madison Square Garden.

Lane, the 2-1 favorite from Muskegon, Mich., rallied strongly in the second half of the television 10-rounder to earn the verdict from all three officials.

The officials had Lane winner by the following round scores: referee Johnny LoBianco 6-3-1; judge Tony Castellano 5-4-1, and judge Johnny Dran, 6-4. The AP card had Lane in front, 6-4.

Lane weighed 136½ pounds, Derado 134½.

The Great Football Player

DEDICATED TO COLORADO COLLEGE
— a book in the making —

"Dutch is going blind . . ."

By John A. Getts

(Earl Harry (Dutch) Clark, as I know him.)

Skill, intelligence and unselfishness made Dutch Clark!

"Standing before 80,000 spectators in the last minutes of play, 'The Old Master,' Captain Earl Dutch Clark of the Detroit Lions, champions of the professional football world, elected to . . ."

"Chicago—Sept., 2, 1936—(AP) In a furious last minute drive the Detroit Lions came from behind to battle one of the greatest groups of all-stars ever assembled to a 7-7 tie on flood-lighted Soldier field tonight.

"The spectacular bruising battle was witnessed by 80,000 with gate receipts at $137,144.

"The Lions offering nothing spectacular in the way of offense—excepting Captain Earl Dutch Clark's gallop of 32 yards in the first period—Dutch looked like the star of last year's championship Lions when he raced back the kickoff from the goal line to the 40-yard line and a few minutes later he ran 30-yards through the all-star line and placed the ball in scoring position."

NEXT DAY

"The great performance of Earl Dutch Clark, Colorado College gridiron star, last night in the 7-7 game between the Champion Detroit Lions and the College All-Stars won the praise of virtually every sports writer who witnessed the thrilling contest.

"Dutch also contributed heart-throbbing drama when his eye—his great handicap, which seemed never to lesson his ability to star, suffered under the floodlights about half-time and required attention from physicians for considerable time and also had his teammates worried."

W. W. EDGAR In 'SECOND GUESS' DETROIT NEWS

"While final results were unsatisfactory to all parties concerned—there emerged from the bitter battle waged on the chalk-lined turf of Soldiers Field, A LONE FIGURE TO STAND AS THE HERO OF HEROS—who will be remembered long after the 7-7 deadlock is forgotten.

"That lone figure is Earl Dutch Clark, the scholarly looking chap, who captain's the Lions and serves as the field general of their offense, and the show of courage he put on in those fading minutes of a dramatics ball game over-shadowed anything else that was done by either team.

'THE OLD MASTER'

"Ever since Dutch has become affiliated with the Lions he has been referred to as 'The Old Master.' He certainly lived up to that name when forced to match wits with the collegians while his team was on the brink of disaster.

"Consider for a moment just what the youthful looking master did in the pinch—when the going was tough and defeat stared him and his mates in the face.

"To the world at large and more particularly to the Lions professional football was put on the spot the moment the teams lined up for the opening kick-off. Dutch and his mates knew that the burden of upholding the prestige of the proleague rested squarely on their shoulders. It was a trying situation made all the more difficult when the Collegians rushed over a touchdown and converted in the second period to take a 7-0 lead.

NO TRAINING

"Dutch had played only the first quarter, he lacked the superb condition of the other players because he had been unable to train with the Lions during their conditioning program.

"He lacked the stamina to play 60-minutes of hard football against the youthful college boys and was resting on the bench when the All-Stars shoved over their touchdown — THE FIRST SCORED SINCE THE INCEPTION OF THE SERIES THREE YEARS AGO.

KLEIG LIGHTS

"More than that, the lights glaring down on the chalk lined battle field, had partially blinded him and it was necessary to administer to him between the half. As the Lions, battered and bruised, sauntered into the dressing room at intermission, low in spirit because of their failure to hold the onrush of the Stars, they were greeted with the words: "DUTCH IS GOING BLIND!"

"Sure enough the lights had collected their toll. Physicians worked over him, applying all sorts of packs and balms to ease the strain. The fact that the All-Stars had scored was a bad enough blow—but the loss of Dutch was even worse. The Lions hope seemed nil.

SCORELESS THIRD

"Shortly the battle was resumed and throughout the third period the rivals struggled without further scoring and the contest moved into the closing stages. Still the Lions could make no headway.

NO. "7"

"With each tick of the clock moving closer to defeat in the fourth period it was a terrible blow to the prestige of professional football — it was inevitable!

"Then up from the bench jumped a chap in a blue jersey —A BIG "7" GLITTERING ON HIS BACK. It was 'The Old Master' Dutch Clark himself. He was coming back into the game for a last ditch stand. If his team was going down he wanted to be with it.

"But, the team didn't go down, instead the sight of their leader, inspired. They forced a break when Leeman fumbled—and Tom Hupke jumped into the breach and recovered.

"It was all 'The Old Master' needed. He had his team in scoring position. There wasn't much time. So Dutch, his stamina gone but his brain functioning as well as ever, set up one play —he sent the backs smashing into the line to concentrate the All-Stars' defense on a plunging attack.

MASTERS STROKE

"Then he made a masters stroke —out of the bag came the old reverse play—a fake line buck and before the Collegians realized what was happening, Ernie Caddell raced around end—untouched — for a touchdown. The Collegians were after Dutch, who didn't even have the ball.

"It was a trying moment. 'The Old Master had outsmarted' the young fellows, but the most important task remained to be completed—the extra point had to be kicked if the Lions were to stave off defeat.

"Here Dutch made his greatest play. Disregarding the glare of the lights, the pain he was suffering, he elected to make a personal issue of it by attempting a drop kick.

DRAMA

"Imagine the setting —80,000 persons jammed into Soldier Field; the prestige of professional football in the balance, and the Lions trailing by a point with a few minutes remaining to play.

"Yes, it was tense drama. 'The Old Master' strode onto the center of the stage. Coming out of a huddle, Clark dropped back, took the pass from center, and calmly booted the ball squarely between the uprights, and you could hear 80,000 people breath again.

"It was much more than an ordinary drop kick; it saved the Lions from humiliating defeat; it saved the prestige of professional football, and continued the ancient argument — "can a good college team beat a good pro team."

"But, more than that, it stamped Dutch Clark, the lad from Colorado, as the real old master of football. He put himself on the spot to save the reputation of his team and his league —yes, and me through. That's why Dutch Clark will be remembered long after the final score, 7-7, has been forgotten."

BACHMAN

Charles Bachman, former Notre Dame star; former Coach of Kansas State, and later head mentor at Michigan State, said:

"Dutch Clark looked like the star of last years ('35) Championship Lions when he raced back the kickoff from the goal line to the 40-yard line. A few minutes later he went 30-yards through the All-Star line and placed the ball in position for scoring.

"Dutch proved why he is one of the greatest money players—when he dropkicked perfectly betwen the uprights to tie the score."

NOTE:

The effect of the floodlight upon Dutch's eye at Soldier Field explains why Clark did not sign in organized baseball— the night games under the lights. Dutch was an outstanding baseball player, too. In fact he was All-Rocky Mountain Conference outfielder when attending CC. Dutch tried out one spring season with the organized Pueblo Western League club and the management wanted Dutch the worst way, but because of the effect of the lights in night games he, of course, could not sign up. Therefore we'll never know how far Dutch Clark may have gone on the baseball diamond — but, in spite of impaired vision in one eye, we'll never forget that he could not have gone any further on the gridiron.

The National Football League Hall of Fame.

In 1928 the year that Dutch Clark made All-American he completed a total of 44 passes.

This picture of Dutch Clark is a favorite in many Colorado Springs homes. It was taken in 1927 during the basketball season.

St. Mary's Winds Up DPL Slate Today

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

St. Mary's proud Pirates take time out from polishing up their gleaming new Denver Parochial League crown today to wind up conference action in a 2:30 p.m. contest at the St. Mary's Gymnasium with Cathedral furnishing the opposition.

Nothing that happens today can in anyway change the outcome of this winter's race. The Pirates put the first league basketball championship in 50 years of trying on deposit Friday night and are now hoping to add the state crown as interest.

For Coach Ed Murphy, Friday's title-clinching win over old-nemisis Regis had to be one of the most satisfying of his career. Too many times in Murphy's brilliant four-year coaching span at St. Mary's it has been the Raiders who have pulled the carpet from under Pirate dreams.

Not so this time. Earlier in the campaign the Bucs pulled out a one-point win over Regis in Denver when reserve Mike Shea sank a sensational shot in the final seconds. Friday, in the more friendly surroundings of the St. Mary's Gymnasium, the Bucs efficiently ground out a 54-48 triumph that served as the title-clincher.

Going into the state tournament which will start at Regis Field House in Denver next Friday, Murphy has a spectacular record as a coach at the local school. After a so-so first year, "Easy Ed" guided the Bucs to second place in the DPL in 1960-61 and then to an upset victory in the state tournament which gave St. Mary's its first state championship of any kind.

Last winter the Pirates again were forced aside by Regis in league play and finally yielded to the Raiders in the finals of the state tourney as well. Now this winter, Murphy has added the school's first league championship and will be gunning for a second state title starting Friday.

First, however, the Bucs would like to add a little more glitter to a season's record that already reads 22-2. Cathedral presently reads 5-12 in the standings and about the only chance the Bluejays have for an upset today hinges on the possibility that the Pirates might be below par after the release of the season - long pressure.

Murphy will have his usual starting five of John O'Connell, who pumped in 29 points in the Friday victory, Jim Gillespie, Steve Rome, Mickey Elliott, and Richie Jewett ready for what may be a final home appearance. All five are seniors.

Other windup action today has St. Francis at Annunciation, and Machebeuf at Mt. Carmel.

Doug Jones Frowns at Clay's Talk

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doug Jones frowned at a high-powered publicity program that has been worked out for talkative Cassius Clay in preparation for their March 13 heavyweight contenders' bout and grumbled, "When he gets to New York he might have some trouble keeping up with the Joneses."

Jones, a sturdy 190-pounder from New York, and Clay, the unbeaten rhyming prophet from Louisville, Ky., have a 10-round date with fists instead of words in Madison Square Garden 10 days from now.

But, in the meantime, Jones has been busy parrying verbal blows hurled by Clay whom he calls, "the big wind in Miami Beach."

"I understand people in Miami think the hurricane season came early this year," says Jones. "They'll sure be glad to get rid of the big wind."

The "big wind" is planning to hit New York like a full-fledged hurricane. Mapped out for him is a program that would scare anybody except a 21-year-old fellow with the guts to look Sonny Liston in the eye and say, "You're almost too ugly to be a fighter."

Clay, who fights almost as well as he talks, is scheduled to trade quips with no less an artist than Bob Hope. This TV spectacular will take place on March 8—on a network show—and will be followed by the start of Clay's "victory party."

That's right, Clay is beginning his "victory party" five days before the bout — and adds that it will continue for five days after it.

"It's gonna be a good one," he says. "Only thing is I won't be able to stick around for the finish. I'll already be in training for Liston."

The advance buildup for Clay in New York also includes a visit to Greenwich Village where Cassius "will read poetry" with several noted rhymers in a well-know meeting place of the "artists."

The usually conservative Garden Publicity Department is going in good humor with the talkathon. A sign has been placed in the Garden lobby stating: "Cassius Clay is here to stay — if you want to see him you gotta pay."

To which Clay adds: "No passes for Cassius — for Clay you gotta pay."

Despite all the admitted tomfoolery, the Clay-Jones bout is building up to a Garden sellout — The first the Garden has had for boxing in some years. And there's little doubt about the ability of either man — only a haunting question whether either is really big and tough enough to stand up for long against the colossal Liston.

Clay has had 17 pro fights and won 'em all, including 13 by knockouts, while Jones, a plain man who may have a glittering future, has won 21 fights, lost three and had one draw. He has had 13 kayoes.

Wichita Pulls Upset Over Loyola of Chicago, 73-72

CHICAGO (AP)—Wichita's NIT-bound Wheatshockers, down by eight points late in the second half, rallied Saturday night behind Dave Stallworth to upset third-ranked Loyola of Chicago 73-72.

The defeat was the second in 26 games for Loyola which enters first-round play of the Mideast regional of the NCAA tournament March 11 at Northwestern.

The victory, the 19th in 26 games for the Missouri Valley runners-up, gave the Shockers the distinction of defeating both top-ranked Cincinnati and third-raked Loyola.

Stallworth, who finished with 28 points, gave Wichita the lead of 69-68 with 1:31 remaining.

Loyola trailed 30-28 at halftime but raced to a 49-41 advantage with nine minutes to play behind the torrid outside shooting of Ron Miller and John Egan.

When Wichita regular Nate Bowman fouled out with 8:40 left, Stallworth took over and scored his team's next 12 points. Loyola, however, got in serious trouble when two regulars — Les Hunter and Vic Rouse—fouled out within seconds of each with more than six minutes left. Wichita again lost the lead as Egan hit two straight jump shots but Stallworth came back with a basket and a free throw to put Wichita ahead to stay.

Oklahoma Defeats Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Little Eddie Evans sparked Oklahoma in a late drive and the Sooners came from behind for a 77-75 victory over Nebraska in the Big Eight Conference Saturday night.

The Sooners, trailing by 11 points with 6 minutes 34 seconds to play, hit 10 straight points within three minutes, and took the lead at 1:44 when Harvey Chaffin stole the ball and went the length of the court for a layup.

The Sooners were behind 43-35 at the half and trailed by 13 twice after the intermission.

The 5-9 Evans poured in 16 of his game-leading 25 points in the second half as the Sooners slashed the Husker margin.

Nebraska's fast - break game shot the home team out in front early in a bid for victory in the last home game appearance for Coach Jerry Bush, who has resigned effective at the end of the school year.

Evans dropped in three baskets during the 10-point Oklahoma surge in the dying minutes.

Evans and James Gatewood each scored two free throws after Oklahoma took the lead to offset a basket and free throw by Nebraska's Daryl Petsch.

It was Oklahoma's seventh league win against six losses. Nebraska is 1-11 in the conference.

Bo Wininger Leads Golf Tournament

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Conquering the treacherous bunkers, defending champion Bo Wininger moved into the lead at the midway point of golf's $40,000 Greater New Orleans Open Saturday with a 2-under-par 70.

With a 68-70—138 for 36 holes, he stood two strokes in front of Billy Casper Jr., who carded a 70 for a total 140.

The 40-year-old Wininger, who won the New Orleans Open last year when he played only intermittently on the tour, used his putter as a "Texas wedge" on his second shots when he missed seven greens on approach shots.

He was able to push his shots to within a few feet of the pin, hitting them with the putter on the fringe.

The gray-haired swinger from Oklahoma Cityback on the pro circuit fulltime — didn't let the bunkers on the 7,000-yard Lakewood Country Club course phase him.

They gave him so much trouble in Wednesday's pro-am he failed to turn in a score card after getting 41 on the front nine.

"I'm just going ahead and hitting the ball and not worrying about the bunkers," he said after his round.

Then he went to the driving range for nearly an hour, explaining:

"I'm trying to slow down my back swing and twist my body in order to get more speed and get over those bunkers."

He was still kidding about the attention given to golf's big three—Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jackie Nicklaus.

"I'm only kidding," said Bo, laughing as a youngster asked for an autograph. "Can't you get through the crowds to Palmer?" he quipped.

The big three found the going rough again for the second time.

Palmer, complaining of "terrible putting," had a 73 for a 147 total.

"I've only missed two greens in two days," he moaned "and I'm three over par."

Nicklaus also shot a 73 for a 147 while Player's 72 gave him a 144.

Bob Rosburg, who set a course record Friday with a 68 and led the first round, ballooned to a 74. It gave him a 141, good enough for a third place tie with young Tony Lema, who fired a 3-under-par 69.

District Tournament Slated for March 7-9

The mighty Spartans of Salida, who won their third consecutive Pikes Peak League crown Friday night by whacking Widefield, 63-42, opens the District Tournament Thursday afternoon against the winner of the Fountain - Leadville contest Monday night at the Trojan Gymnasium.

Don Schmidli's Spartans meet the winner of that contest at 4:30 p.m. at the Colorado Springs Auditorium, the site of the 1963 District Tournament slated to run thru Saturday night.

In other PPL games Friday night: Cheyenne Mountain romped over Harrison, 56-38, to knock the Panthers from a playoff game against Salida; Academy High slipped past Florence, 51-50; and Fountain downed Manitou Springs, 52-51.

PIKES PEAK LEAGUE
Final Standings

	W	L	Pct.	Pts.	Opp
Salida	6	2	.750	478	378
Widefield	5	3	.625	420	400
Academy High	5	3	.625	435	383
Harrison	5	3	.625	389	394
Cheyenne Mt.	4	4	.500	413	371
Florence	4	4	.500	406	413
Manitou Springs	3	5	.375	455	470
Fountain	3	5	.375	399	470
Leadville	1	7	.125	341	444

Three teams —Widefield, Academy High, and Harrison — ended the season in deadlock for the second place in the PPL final standings with 5-3 records. Cheyenne and Florence share the third slot with 4-4 records, while Manitou and Fountain are nestled in the next to last spot with 3-5 records.

Because of the tournament restricting only eight teams to enter competition, the last place squad is slated to play the eighth place team. Since Manitou and Fountain share that spot in last position schools officials flipped a coin and Manitou drew a bye, thus Fountain is faced with playing the Leadville crew Monday night on its home court. The winner of that encounter will get the eighth place position in tournament competition.

Four games are on tap for Thursday with the winners of those games slated to clash Friday night at 7 and 8:30 p.m. The losers of Friday's contest will play each other Saturday night at 7 p.m. for third place honors. The winners of Friday's games will clash Saturday night at 8:30 to decide who wears the District Tournament crown. All games are scheduled at the City Auditorium.

In case the league champion wins the tourney, the runner-up will automatically get the second spot in the Class AA State Tournament slated for next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in Denver. Two teams are allotted to compete in the state tourney from each league.

DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

Friday
Winners of first two games on Thursday
Winners of last two games on Thursday game time: 8:30 p.m.
Saturday
Losers of Friday's games game time: 7:00 p.m.
Winners of Friday's games game time: 8:30 p.m.

Kansas State Wins Over Oklahoma State, 56-54

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — The Kansas State Wildcats strengthened their hold on first place in the Big Eight Conference basketball race with a 56-54 victory over Oklahoma State here Saturday night.

The Wildcats, who now have a 10-2 league record had to come from behind to grab the victory.

Johnson led all scorers with 15 points and teammates Don Linsenmeyer and Larry Hawk each scored 12 points.

Kansas State's scoring was well balanced with three players, Willie Murrell, Roger Sottiner and Al Peithman, scoring 11 points each. Gary Marriott got 10 points and Simons 8.

The best 18 hole score on the 1962 PGA tour was turned in by Buddy Sullivan when he shot a 61 in the first round of the Tucson Open.

Dallas Coach Slated for Honors in KC

DALLAS (UPI)— Hank Stram, coach of the American Football League champion Dallas Texans, will be honored Monday at the 32nd annual Rockne Club of America testimony dinner in Kansas City.

Stram will receive the club's professional coach of the year award. He is the first American Football League mentor to be selected for the honor.

Hunt currently has a deal working with Kansas City to move the Texans there next season if the Missouri city sells 35,000 season tickets.

Lane Wins Bout Over Derado

NEW YORK (AP) — Kenny Lane, the top-ranking lightweight contender, had to call on all his boxing skill and experience Saturday night to gain a narrow, unanimous decision over unranked but strong Vicente Derado of Argentina at Madison Square Garden.

Lane, the 2-1 favorite from Muskegon, Mich., rallied strongly in the second half of the television 10-rounder to earn the verdict from all three officials.

The officials had Lane winner by the following round scores: referee Johnny LoBianco 6-3-1; judge Tony Castellano 5-4-1, and judge Johnny Dras, 6-4. The AP card had Lane in front, 6-4.

Lane weighed 136½ pounds, Derado 134½.

The Great Football Player

DEDICATED TO COLORADO COLLEGE
— a book in the making —

"Dutch is going blind . . ."

By John A. Getts

(Earl Harry (Dutch) Clark, as I know him.)

Skill, intelligence and unselfishness made Dutch Clark!

"Standing before 80,000 spectators in the last minutes of play, 'The Old Master,' Captain Earl Dutch Clark of the Detroit Lions, champions of the professional football world, elected to . . ."

"Chicago—Sept., 2, 1936—(AP) In a furious last minute drive the Detroit Lions came from behind to battle one of the greatest groups of all-stars ever assembled to a 7-7 tie on flood-lighted Soldier field tonight.

"The spectacular bruising battle was witnessed by 80,000 with gate receipts at $137,144.

"The Lions offering nothing spectacular in the way of offense—excepting Captain Earl Dutch Clark's gallop of 32 yards in the first period—Dutch looked like the star of last year's championship Lions when he raced back the kickoff from the goal line to the 40-yard line and a few minutes later he ran 30-yards through the all-star line and placed the ball in scoring position."

NEXT DAY

"The great performance of Earl Dutch Clark, Colorado College gridiron star, last night in the 7-7 game between the Champion Detroit Lions and the College All-Stars won the praise of virtually every sports writer who witnessed the thrilling contest.

"Dutch also contributed heart-throbbing drama when his eye—his great handicap, which seemed never to lesson his ability to star, suffered under the floodlights about half-time and required attention from physicians for considerable time and also had his teammates worried."

W. W. EDGAR In 'SECOND GUESS' DETROIT NEWS

"While final results were unsatisfactory to all parties concerned—there emerged from the bitter battle waged on the chalk-lined turf of Soldiers Field, A LONE FIGURE TO STAND AS THE HERO OF HEROS—who will be remembered long after the 7-7 deadlock is forgotten.

"That lone figure is Earl Dutch Clark, the scholarly looking chap, who captain's the Lions and serves as the field general of their offense, and the show of courage he put on in those fading minutes of a dramatics ball game over-shadowed anything else that was done by either team.

'THE OLD MASTER'

"Ever since Dutch has become affiliated with the Lions he has been referred to as 'The Old Master.' He certainly lived up to that name when forced to match wits with the collegians while his team was on the brink of disaster.

"Consider for a moment just what the youthful looking master did in the pinch—when the going was tough and defeat stared him and his mates in the face.

"To the world at large and more particularly to the Lions professional football was put on the spot the moment the teams lined up for the opening kick-off. Dutch and his mates knew that the burden of upholding the prestige of the proleague rested squarely on their shoulders. It was a trying situation made all the more difficult when the Collegians rushed over a touchdown and converted in the second period to take a 7-0 lead.

NO TRAINING

"Dutch had played only the first quarter, he lacked the superb condition of the other players because he had been unable to train with the Lions during their conditioning program.

"He lacked the stamina to play 60-minutes of hard football against the youthful college boys and was resting on the bench when the All-Stars shoved over their touchdown — THE FIRST SCORED SINCE THE INCEPTION OF THE SERIES THREE YEARS AGO.

KLEIG LIGHTS

"More than that, the lights glaring down on the chalk lined battle field, had partially blinded him and it was necessary to administer to him between the half. As the Lions, battered and bruised, sauntered into the dressing room at intermission, low in spirit because of their failure to hold the onrush of the Stars, they were greeted with the words: 'DUTCH IS GOING BLIND!'"

"Sure enough the lights had collected their toll. Physicians worked over him, applying all sorts of packs and balms to ease the strain. The fact that the All-Stars had scored was a bad enough blow—but the loss of Dutch was even worse. The Lions hope seemed nil.

SCORELESS THIRD

"Shortly the battle was resumed and throughout the third period the rivals struggled without further scoring and the contest moved into the closing stages. Still the Lions could make no headway.

NO. "7"

"With each tick of the clock moving closer to defeat in the fourth period it was a terrible blow to the prestige of professional football — it was inevitable!

"Then up from the bench jumped a chap in a blue jersey —A BIG "7" GLITTERING ON HIS BACK. It was 'The Old Master' Dutch Clark himself. He was coming back into the game for a last ditch stand. If his team was going down he wanted to be with it.

"But, the team didn't go down, instead the sight of their leader, inspired. They forced a break when Leeman fumbled—and Tom Hupke jumped into the breach and recovered.

"It was all 'The Old Master' needed. He had his team in scoring position. There wasn't much time. So Dutch, his stamina gone but his brain functioning as well as ever, set up one play —he sent the backs smashing into the line to concentrate the All-Stars' defense on a plunging attack.

MASTERS STROKE

"Then he made a masters stroke —out of the bag came the old reverse play—a fake line buck and before the Collegians realized what was happening, Ernie Caddell raced around end—untouched — for a touchdown. The Collegians were after Dutch, who didn't even have the ball.

"It was a trying moment. 'The Old Master had outsmarted' the young fellows, but the most important task remained to be completed—the extra point had to be kicked if the Lions were to stave off defeat.

"Here Dutch made his greatest play. Disregarding the glare of the lights, the pain he was suffering, he elected to make a personal issue of it by attempting a drop kick.

DRAMA

"Imagine the setting —80,000 persons jammed into Soldier Field; the prestige of professional football in the balance, and the Lions trailing by a point with a few minutes remaining to play.

"Yes, it was tense drama. 'The Old Master' strode onto the center of the stage. Coming out of a huddle, Clark dropped back, took the pass from center, and calmly booted the ball squarely between the uprights, and you could hear 80,000 people breath again.

"It was much more than an ordinary drop kick; it saved the Lions from humiliating defeat; it saved the prestige of professional football, and continued the ancient argument — "can a good college team beat a good pro team."

"But, more than that, it stamped Dutch Clark, the lad from Colorado, as the real old master of football. He put himself on the spot to save the reputation of his team and his league —yes, and me through. That's why Dutch Clark will be remembered long after the final score, 7-7, has been forgotten."

BACHMAN

Charles Bachman, former Notre Dame star; former Coach of Kansas State, and later head mentor at Michigan State, said:

"Dutch Clark looked like the star of last years ('35) Championship Lions when he raced back the kickoff from the goal line to the 40-yard line. A few minutes later he went 30-yards through the All-Star line and placed the ball in position for scoring.

"Dutch proved why he is one of the greatest money players—when he dropkicked perfectly betwen the uprights to tie the score."

NOTE:

The effect of the floodlight upon Dutch's eye at Soldier Field explains why Clark did not sign in organized baseball— the night games under the lights. Dutch was an outstanding baseball player, too. In fact he was All-Rocky Mountain Conference outfielder when attending CC. Dutch tried out one spring season with the organized Pueblo Western League club and the management wanted Dutch the worst, way, but because of the effect of the lights in night games he, of course, could not sign up. Therefore we'll never know how far Dutch Clark may have gone on the baseball diamond — but, in spite of impaired vision in one eye, we'll never forget that he could not have gone any further on the gridiron —The National Football League Hall of Fame.

In 1928 the year that Dutch Clark made All - American he completed a total of 44 passes.

Rough Riders Sign Clemson Gridiron Star

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Rough Riders of Canada's Eastern Football Conference have signed Oscar Thorsland of Clemson College. Thorsland, who is 6-4 and weighs 220 pounds, is a New York City native.

European Icers Favorite In World Hockey Meet

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—The world ice hockey championships to be staged here March 7-17 should be strictly a European affair.

World champion Sweden, Czechoslovakia, and Russia are the favorites for the 1963 crown.

The Canadians, long saluted as kingpins of both amateur and professional hockey, are reckoned outsiders — and the Americans, reigning Olympic champions, don't get a mention anywhere.

The Yanks' pre-championship European tour has been a trail of disaster and woe. Everybody beat them. Harassed coach Harry Cleverly had to rush a frantic s-o-s back home for reinforcements. He wanted four—and got only one, Jack Kirane. "The others are all out of action," he was told.

The Americans play in group "A" with Sweden, Canada, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, East and West Germany. They'll be lucky to win two games, according to the experts.

The Canadians are just a little better off, and coach Bobby Kromm isn't exactly optimistic. "We were hit badly by injuries on our pre-championship tour," he said, "and we're going to have to fight all the way." Kromm figures the Czechs as the big threat.

"They're great this year," he said. "They're much better than in 1961 in Switzerland when they were runners-up to Canada."

But Kromm admitted he was worried most of all by European referees.

"I'm not satisfied with them," he said, "not with those I saw in Czechoslovakia, and not with those I remember from earlier years."

Kromm's complaint was that the European referees don't go much for the rough-and-tumble acknowledged back home as routine hockey. Body contact is frowned on most of the time and it sometimes takes 2-½ hours to complete a hockey game involving Canadians or Americans over here. Players are banned for "high sticks" almost every time they glare at each other.

Russian coach Anatoly Tarasov, one of the men who introduced the game to the Soviet Union only 17 years ago, said "it'll be a good tournament all right, but I think we're a cinch to win. Anyway, there's only Russia, Canada, Sweden and Czechoslovakia with a chance—and I place the Canadians second."

A total of 21 nations will compete in the championship—Sweden, Canada, U.S., Russia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, East and West Germany, Norway, Switzerland, Britain, Poland, Romania, Yugoslavia, France, Denmark, Holland, Bulgaria, Austria, Hungary and Belgium.

Iowa State Grapplers May Give O-State Tough Time

NORMAN (UPI) — Iowa State is expected to give Oklahoma State a run for its money in the two-day Big Eight Conference wrestling tournament beginning here next Friday night.

Oklahoma State's 1962 NCAA champions are still a big favorite to repeat as champs of the Big Eight, strongest wrestling conference in the country. But Iowa State's once-beaten Cyclones have a well-balanced squad that will be hard to hold.

Host team Oklahoma, which lost to Iowa State, 19-16, Thursday night, will challenge as usual. But the Sooners, who finished in second place to Oklahoma State in both the Big Eight and the NCAA last year, do not appear to be as evenly balanced as the Cowboys and Iowa State.

Oklahoma also may be without the services of national collegiate 137-pound champion Bill Carter, who hurt his neck in a recent road trip.

Four Big Eight champions are back, two each from Oklahoma and Oklahoma State. They are 115-pound Mark McCracken and 157-pound Phil Kinyon from Oklahoma State and 130-pound Mickey Martin and 191-pound Wayne Baughman of Oklahoma.

Six of the Big Eight schools are expected to take part. Others include Kansas State, Nebraska and Colorado.

Iowa State's Virgil Carr at 157 and heavyweight Keith Johnstone were runnersup at last year's Big Eight meet and both are back to try for the championship in their respective weights.

Other second place finishers returning include Dean Lahr, Colorado's tremendous 177-pounder; unbeaten 123-pound Mike Nissen of Nebraska; Wally Curtis (115) of Oklahoma, and Wayne Simons (130) of Oklahoma State.

Oklahoma State won the 1962 tournament by scoring 98 points to 70 for Oklahoma. Iowa State had 50 points.

Preliminaries get under way at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Semifinals are on tap for 2 p. m. Saturday, with consolations at 7 p. m. Championship matches start at 8 p. m.

FOR MEN ONLY

By Jack Waymire

Young men, and men with youthful builds, have taken so enthusiastically to the slimmer lines in men's wear that they are having a widespread influence. You'll see it in many of the lines of new summer slacks designed for casual wear.

Many of these "slim slacks" are beltless, having built in "hold up" provision of one kind or another. Some omit cuffs to increase the slim leg line, and legs taper down to narrow widths.

The fact is that the lean line of these slacks isn't so very far from the famous cowhand styles which have been popular in the West for a century and more. Often new trends in clothes are just contemporary adaptations of good ideas that have been around for quite a while.

Whether you like the slimmest of casual slacks or something more conservative, with cuffs and the popular single pleat, you'll find the selection you want, including wash 'n' wears by Haggar at Waymire's. For weekend relaxing or vacationing, our selection is complete.

AFA Mat Team Tops Nebraska

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Air Force Academy downed Nebraska 20-11 in the final dual wrestling meet of the season for both teams Saturday.

Mike Nissen of Nebraska preserved his record of three seasons without a defeat when he pinned Jim Woods of the Air Force Academy in the 130-pound division.

Wrestling Results

123 pounds—Steve Waienz, Neb. dec. John Haluska, 7-1.
130—Mike Nissen, Neb. pinned Jim Woods, 5:19.
137—Thad Wolfe, AFA, dec. Bill Rosenthal, 14-0.
147—Lee Hollingsworth, AFA, dec. Larry LeBrusak, 7-4.
157—Devere Henderson, AFA, pinned Bob Loth, :30.
167—Terry Isaacson, AFA, dec. Bruce O'Callaghan, 4-1.
177—George Bruns, AFA, dec. Ken Fox, 4-0.
Heavyweight—Bob Zartner, Neb. dec. Al Piehl, 4-1.

Other AFA Sports

The Air Force Academy fencing team completed the season with their 38th consecutive victory as they downed Norte Dame, 19-8. The Cadet swimming team defeated the U.S. Coast Guard Academy team, 67-28, while the pistol team won over CU, 1116 to 1087, in the Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Pistol Championship at the Academy Saturday.

In the tri-meet against Notre Dame and Buffalo, the latter team didn't show up until the match was concluded. Cadets Scro and Prendz led in the sabre with three wins while Elbert copped three victories in the foil and Patterson won two events in the epee.

The swim team established four pool records and tied one in their victory that brought their record up to 5-6.

Pavel and Eva Roman Win Title In World Ice Dancing Category

By GERALD MILLER

CORTINA, Italy (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Pavel Roman and his sister, Eva, won their second straight world ice dancing title, turning back the challenge of Britain's Linda Shearman and Michael Phillips Saturday night in the world figure skating championships.

Earlier in the day, blonde Skoukje Dijkstra of Holland all but clinched the women's title for the second straight year.

Officials announced the Czech brother and sister team had won the ice dance title, but did not release point scores immediately.

The Britons were so close that unofficial totals gave them more points than the Czech defending champions, 322.7 to 321.6. The decisive factor in figure skating, however, is the vote of the nine judges rather than point totals.

North American champions Paulette Doan and Kenneth Ormsby of Canada were third.

Miss Dijkstar goes into Sunday's free skating phase with what is regarded as an unbeatable lead, built up in compulsory school figures Saturday.

She completed the school figures with 1,272.8 points and nine ordinals as the unanimous choice for first place of all nine judges. Her closest rival is Regina Heitzer of Austria, who would have to do virtually the impossible in free skating to overcome the Dutch star.

Performing brilliantly in the cold and crisp weather at Cortina's Olympic Ice Stadium, Miss Dijkstra took the lead on the first figure and increased her margin as the phase progressed.

Miss Heitzer totaled 1,213.5 points and 22 ordinals. She was followed by Nicole Hassler of France, 1,155 and 38; Wendy Griner, the North American champion from Canada, 1,163.9 and 34; Diana Clifton-Peach of Britain, 1,142.5 and 47, Petra Burka of Canada, 1,137.3 and 54, and Lorraine Hanlon, the U.S. champion from Boston, 1,119.5 and 69.

The judges ranked Miss Hassler ahead of Miss Griner, even though the Canadian girl had a higher score.

Karen Howland of Seattle was in 11th place and Christine Haigler of Colorado Springs in 15th.

Canada's 17-year-old Donald McPherson won the men's championship Friday night with a spectacular display of free-skating after doing no better than fourth in school figures.

Alain Calmat of France was runner-up, followed by Manfred Schnelldorfer of West Germany, Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia and 14-year-old Scott Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J. The other U.S. entrant, Monty Hoyt of Denver, placed 11th.

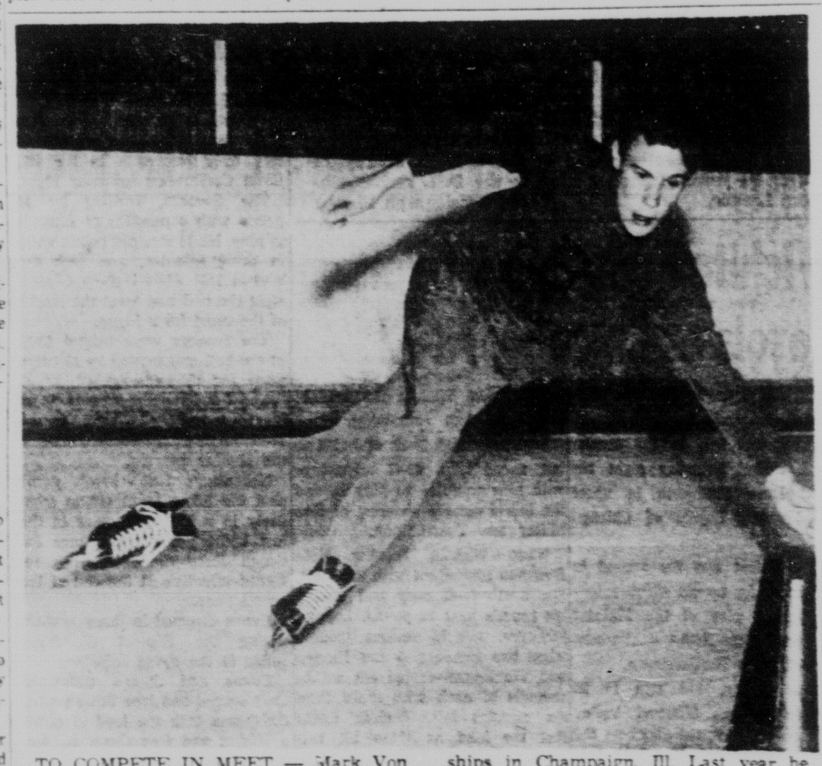
Five Top Golfers Sign for Tourney At Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — Five top golfers, headed by Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, are the first to sign for a one-day $7,500 Pro-Am tournament here April 8, it was announced Saturday.

H. C. Allen chairman of the international Ryder Cup matches to be held at East Lake Country Club in October, made the announcement.

Palmer, three times Master champ, and Player will be joined by Doug Ford, former Masters and PGA champ, Tony Lema sixth money winner of 1962, Jay Herbert former PGA titleholder, and George Bayer, longest hitter in golf.

Thirty-two professional golfers will be signed and are expected to include most of the top names of the pro tour.



TO COMPETE IN MEET — Mark Von Engeln, representing the Broadmoor Speed Skating Club, will compete in the St. Louis Silver Skates Championships in St. Louis today. Next weekend Von Engeln will skate in the the United States Indoor Speed Skating Championships in Champaign, Ill. Last year he won the Colorado State Midget Division Speed Skating title. This year he is competing in the Juvenile Division and leads the skaters in that division at the Broadmoor Club. (Photo by Bob McIntyre)

Big Bob Hays Bucks Winds to Tie Record

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Big Robert Hayes bucked eight-mile-an-hour wind gusts, eased up 30 yards from home when he thought he had crossed the finish line, and still made a fantastic, world record-tying run Saturday in the 220-yard dash.

All three official watches clocked the husky Negro sprinter from Florida A&M University at 20.5 seconds, equaling the curved course mark held by Stone Johnson, Ray Norton and Paul Drayton.

Two finish lines had been set up on the straightaway, one for the 100-yard dash and the other for the 220. When he crossed the 100-yard finish line, Hayes said he thought the race was over and started to slow down.

Then, realizing his mistake, he put on a final burst in the last 30 yards to beat his nearest pursuer, teammate Robert Harris, by nine-tenths of a second.

Everything was against a record run by the 5-11, 195-pound football player who now has unofficially tied three world sprint records and beaten one American record during the past year.

Earlier in the day, he had failed in an assault on Frank Budd's 100-yard dash mark of 9.2 seconds. Running into the wind, on a track that he claimed was sticky, Hayes was clocked at 9.5.

Cage Player Pulls Down Net

PLAINVIEW, Minn. (AP) — Plainview High School's Dennis Lee literally broke up the basketball game Friday night.

He leaped to guard a shot by a Lake City High player and down came the hoop and chunks of the glass backboard. Lee's hand had become tangled in the net.

Several players got minor cuts and Lake City got the field goal when the referee charged Lee with goal tending.

The play-halting incident occurred with just over 2 minutes left in the third period and Lake City leading 42-34. The game will be finished tonight—at Lake City

Four Seeded Teams Draw Bye in NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Wichita, Providence, Marquette and Canisius, the four seeded teams, drew byes as the pairings for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament at Madison Square Garden, March 14-23, were announced Saturday. Twelve teams are entered.

The opening rounds and quarterfinal pairings follow (times EST)

Thursday night, March 14—7:30 p.m., Villanova vs. DePaul; 9:15, Fordham vs. Memphis State.

Saturday afternoon, March 16—1:45 p.m., LaSalle vs St. Louis (NBC national television); 3:30, St. Francis, N.Y., vs. Miami, Fla.

Saturday night, March 16—Canisius vs Fordham-Memphis State winner; Wichita vs. Villanova-DePaul winner.

Tuesday night, March 19—Providence vs. St. Francis-Miami winner; Marquette vs. LaSalle-St. Louis winner.

Semifinals are scheduled for Thursday night, March 21, and the final, Saturday afternoon, March 23. The championship game, starting at 4 p.m., will be televised by NBC via delayed tape.

Fordham Downs Top-Ranked New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Fordham held on for a 71-68 basketball upset over nationally-ranked New York University Saturday in a stirring game between the two tournament-bound intracity rivals.

The victory at the Fordham Gym was the first for the Rams over the Violets since the 1954-55 season and snapped NYU's winning streak at 12 games. Fordham is headed for the National Invitation Tourney and NYU, ranked ninth in the country, is a NCAA at-large entry.

Fordham, sparked by Bill Sheridan, got off to a fast start and never trailed. The Rams pushed ahead by nine points in the first half, led 36-32 at intermission, and had a 12-point advantage at one stage of the second half.

However, All-America Barry Kramer's consistent scoring paced an NYU comeback and the game was a thriller down to the wire as the Violets closed the gap repeatedly.

Sheridan was high for Fordham with 20 points while Kramer netted 35 for NYU. The Rams now are 16-7 and the Violets 16-3.

European Icers Favorite In World Hockey Meet

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—The world ice hockey championships to be staged here March 7-17 should be strictly a European affair.

World champion Sweden, Czechoslovakia, and Russia are the favorites for the 1963 crown.

The Canadians, long saluted as kingpins of both amateur and professional hockey, are reckoned outsiders — and the Americans, reigning Olympic champions, don't get a mention anywhere.

The Yanks' pre-championship European tour has been a trail of disaster and woe. Everybody beat them. Harassed coach Harry Cleverly had to rush a frantic s-o-s back home for reinforcements. He wanted four—and got only one, Jack Kirane. "The others are all out of action," he was told.

The Americans play in group "A" with Sweden, Canada, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, East and West Germany. They'll be lucky to win two games, according to the experts.

The Canadians are just a little better off, and coach Bobby Kromm isn't exactly optimistic. "We were hit badly by injuries on our pre-championship tour," he said, "and we're going to have to fight all the way." Kromm figures the Czechs as the big threat.

"They're great this year," he said. "They're much better than in 1961 in Switzerland when they were runners-up to Canada."

But Kromm admitted he was worried most of all by European referees.

"I'm not satisfied with them," he said, "not with those I saw in Czechoslovakia, and not with those I remember from earlier years."

Kromm's complaint was that the European referees don't go much for the rough-and-tumble acknowledged back home as routine hockey. Body contact is frowned on most of the time and it sometimes takes 2-½ hours to complete a hockey game involving Canadians or Americans over here. Players are banned for "high sticks" almost every time they glare at each other.

Russian coach Anatoly Tarasov, one of the men who introduced the game to the Soviet Union only 17 years ago, said "it'll be a good tournament all right, but I think we're a cinch to win. Anyway, there's only Russia, Canada, Sweden and Czechoslovakia with a chance—and I place the Canadians second."

A total of 21 nations will compete in the championship—Sweden, Canada, U.S., Russia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, East and West Germany, Norway, Switzerland, Britain, Poland, Romania, Yugoslavia, France, Denmark, Holland, Bulgaria, Austria, Hungary and Belgium.

Pavel and Eva Roman Win Title In World Ice Dancing Category

By GERALD MILLER

CORTINA, Italy (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Pavel Roman and his sister, Eva, won their second straight world ice dancing title, turning back the challenge of Britain's Linda Shearman and Michael Phillips Saturday night in the world figure skating championships.

Earlier in the day, blonde Skoukje Dijkstra of Holland all but clinched the women's title for the second straight year.

Officials announced the Czech brother and sister team had won the ice dance title, but did not release point scores immediately.

The Britons were so close that unofficial totals gave them more points than the Czech defending champions, 322.7 to 321.6. The decisive factor in figure skating, however, is the vote of the nine judges rather than point totals.

North American champions Paulette Doan and Kenneth Ormsby of Canada were third.

Miss Dijkstar goes into Sunday's free skating phase with what is regarded as an unbeatable lead, built up in compulsory school figures Saturday.

She completed the school figures with 1,272.8 points and nine ordinals as the unanimous choice for first place of all nine judges. Her closest rival is Regina Heitzer of Austria, who would have to do virtually the impossible in free skating to overcome the Dutch star.

Performing brilliantly in the cold and crisp weather at Cortina's Olympic Ice Stadium, Miss Dijkstra took the lead on the first figure and increased her margin as the phase progressed.

Miss Heitzer totaled 1,213.5 points and 22 ordinals. She was followed by Nicole Hassler of France, 1,155 and 38; Wendy Griner, the North American champion from Canada, 1,163.9 and 34; Diana Clifton-Peach of Britain, 1,142.5 and 47; Petra Burka of Canada, 1,137.3 and 54, and Lorraine Hanlon, the U.S. champion from Boston, 1,119.5 and 69.

The judges ranked Miss Hassler ahead of Miss Griner, even though the Canadian girl had a higher score.

Karen Howland of Seattle was in 11th place and Christine Haigler of Colorado Springs in 15th.

Canada's 17-year-old Donald McPherson won the men's championship Friday night with a spectacular display of free-skating after doing no better than fourth in school figures.

Alain Calmat of France was runner-up, followed by Manfred Schnelldorfer of West Germany, Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia and 14-year-old Scott Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J. The other U.S. entrant, Monty Hoyt of Denver, placed 11th.

TO COMPETE IN MEET — Mark Von Engeln, representing the Broadmoor Speed Skating Club, will compete in the St. Louis Silver Skates Championships in St. Louis today. Next weekend Von Engeln will skate in the the United States Indoor Speed Skating Championships in Champaign, Ill. Last year he won the Colorado State Midget Division Speed Skating title. This year he is competing in the Juvenile Division and leads the skaters in that division at the Broadmoor Club. (Photo by Bob McIntyre)

Big Bob Hays Bucks Winds to Tie Record

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Big Robert Hayes bucked eight-mile-an-hour wind gusts, eased up 30 yards from home when he thought he had crossed the finish line, and still made a fantastic, world record-tying run Saturday in the 220-yard dash.

All three official watches clocked the husky Negro sprinter from Florida A&M University at 20.5 seconds, equaling the curved course mark held by Stone Johnson, Ray Norton and Paul Drayton.

Two finish lines had been set up on the straightaway, one for the 100-yard dash and the other for the 220. When he crossed the 100-yard finish line, Hayes said he thought the race was over and started to slow down.

Then, realizing his mistake, he put on a final burst in the last 30 yards to beat his nearest pursuer, teammate Robert Harris, by nine-tenths of a second.

Everything was against a record run by the 5-11, 195-pound football player who now has unofficially tied three world sprint records and beaten one American record during the past year.

Earlier in the day, he had failed in an assault on Frank Budd's 100-yard dash mark of 9.2 seconds. Running into the wind, on a track that he claimed was sticky, Hayes was clocked at 9.5.

Four Seeded Teams Draw Bye in NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Wichita, Providence, Marquette and Canisius, the four seeded teams, drew byes as the pairings for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament at Madison Square Garden, March 14-23, were announced Saturday. Twelve teams are entered.

The opening rounds and quarterfinal pairings follow (times EST)

Thursday night, March 14—7:30 p.m., Villanova vs. DePaul; 9:15, Fordham vs. Memphis State.

Saturday afternoon, March 16—1:45 p.m., LaSalle vs St. Louis (NBC national television); 2:30, St. Francis, N.Y., vs. Miami, Fla.

Saturday night, March 16—Canisius vs Fordham-Memphis State winner; Wichita vs. Villanova-DePaul winner.

Tuesday night, March 19—Providence vs. St. Francis-Miami winner; Marquette vs. LaSalle-St. Louis winner.

Semifinals are scheduled for Thursday night, March 21, and the final, Saturday afternoon, March 23. The championship game, starting at 4 p.m., will be televised by NBC via delayed tape.

Fordham, Memphis State, Canisius, Villanova, DePaul and Wichita are in the upper half of the draw. St. Francis, Miami, Providence, LaSalle, St. Louis and Marquette are in the lower half.

Four former NIT winners are in the field—Providence, 1961; LaSalle, 1952; St. Louis, 1948, and DePaul, 1945.

Iowa State Grapplers May Give O-State Tough Time

NORMAN (UPI) — Iowa State is expected to give Oklahoma State a run for its money in the two-day Big Eight Conference wrestling tournament beginning here next Friday night.

Oklahoma State's 1962 NCAA champions are still a big favorite to repeat as champs of the Big Eight, strongest wrestling conference in the country. But Iowa State's once-beaten Cyclones have a well-balanced squad that will be hard to hold.

Host team Oklahoma, which lost to Iowa State, 19-16, Thursday night, will challenge as usual. But the Sooners, who finished in second place to Oklahoma State in both the Big Eight and the NCAA last year, do not appear to be as evenly balanced as the Cowboys and Iowa State.

Oklahoma also may be without the services of national collegiate 137-pound champion Bill Carter, who hurt his neck in a recent road trip.

Four Big Eight champions are back, two each from Oklahoma and Oklahoma State. They are 115-pound Mark McCracken and 157-pound Phil Kinyon from Oklahoma State and 130-pound Mickey Martin and 191-pound Wayne Baughman of Oklahoma.

Six of the Big Eight schools are expected to take part. Others include Kansas State, Nebraska and Colorado.

Iowa State's Virgil Carr at 157 and heavyweight Keith Johnstone were runnersup at last year's Big Eight meet and both are back to try for the championship in their respective weights.

Other second place finishers returning include Dean Lahr, Colorado's tremendous 177-pounder, unbeaten 123-pound Mike Nissen of Nebraska; Wally Curtis (115) of Oklahoma, and Wayne Simons (130) of Oklahoma State.

Oklahoma State won the 1962 tournament by scoring 98 points to 70 for Oklahoma. Iowa State had 50 points.

Preliminaries get under way at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Semifinals are on tap for 2 p. m. Saturday, with consolations at 7 p. m. Championship matches start at 8 p. m.

AFA Mat Team Tops Nebraska

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Air Force Academy downed Nebraska 20-11 in the final dual wrestling meet of the season for both teams Saturday.

Mike Nissen of Nebraska preserved his record of three seasons without a defeat when he pinned Jim Woods of the Air Force Academy in the 130-pound division.

Terry Isaacson, Air Force Academy junior, also preserved an undefeated college career with a decision over Bruce O'Callaghan in the 167-pound class.

Other AFA Sports

The Air Force Academy fencing team completed the season with their 38th consecutive victory as they downed Norte Dame, 19-8. The Cadet swimming team defeated the U.S. Coast Guard Academy team, 67-28, while the pistol team won over CU, 1116 to 1087, in the Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Pistol Championship at the Academy Saturday.

In the tri-meet against Notre Dame and Buffalo, the latter team didn't show up until the match was concluded. Cadets Scro and Prendz led in the sabre with three wins while Elbert copped three victories in the foil and Patterson won two events in the epee.

The swim team established four pool records and tied one in their victory that brought their record up to 5-6.

Wrestling Results

123 pounds—Steve Waiens, Neb. dec. John Haluska, 7-1.
130—Mike Nissen, Neb. pinned Jim Woods, 8:19.
137—Thad Wolfe, AFA, dec. Bill Rosenthal, 14-0.
147—Lee Hollingsworth, AFA, dec. Larry LeBrusak, 7-4.
157—Devere Henderson, AFA, pinned Bob Loft, :30.
167—Terry Isaacson, AFA, dec. Bruce O'Callaghan, 4-1.
177—George Bruns, AFA, dec. Ken Fox, 4-0.
Heavyweight—Bob Zartner, Neb. dec. Al Fiehs, 4-1.

Five Top Golfers Sign for Tourney At Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — Five top golfers, headed by Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, are the first to sign for a one-day $7,500 Pro-Am tournament here April 8, it was announced Saturday.

H. C. Allen chairman of the international Ryder Cup matches to be held at East Lake Country Club in October, made the announcement.

Palmer, three times Master champ, and Player will be joined by Doug Ford, former Masters and PGA champ, Tony Lema sixth money winner of 1962, Jay Herbert former PGA titleholder, and George Bayer, longest hitter in golf.

Thirty-two professional golfers will be signed and are expected to include most of the top names of the pro tour.

Cage Player Pulls Down Net

PLAINVIEW, Minn. (AP) — Plainview High School's Dennis Lee literally broke up the basketball game Friday night.

He leaped to guard a shot by a Lake City High player and down came the hoop and chunks of the glass backboard. Lee's hand had become tangled in the net.

Several players got minor cuts and Lake City got the field goal when the referee charged Lee with goal tending.

The play-halting incident occurred with just over 2 minutes left in the third period and Lake City leading 42-34. The game will be finished tonight—at Lake City

FOR MEN ONLY

By Jack Waymire

Young men, and men with youthful builds, have taken so enthusiastically to the slimmer lines in men's wear that they are having a widespread influence. You'll see it in many of the lines of new summer slacks designed for casual wear.

Many of these "slim slacks" are beltless, having built in "hold up" provision of one kind or another. Some omit cuffs to increase the slim leg line, and legs taper down to narrow widths.

The fact is that the lean line of these slacks isn't so very far from the famous cowhand styles which have been popular in the West for a century and more. Often new trends in clothes are just contemporary adaptations of good ideas that have been around for quite a while.

Whether you like the slimmest of casual slacks or something more conservative, with cuffs and the popular single pleat, you'll find the selection you want, including wash 'n' wears by Haggar at Waymire's. For weekend relaxing or vacationing, our selection is complete.

Auto Theft Made Easy For Criminals, Hoover Says

A criminal is not easily deterred by inconvenience; nor is he likely to become discouraged by temporary setbacks. If the commission of a crime is his goal, he usually achieves it. If the crime is auto theft, it may be accomplished with little or no effort, J. Edgar Hoover; recently told law enforcement agencies.

American automobile owners operate what amounts to a "red carpet" service for car thieves. Perhaps in no other violation does negligence by the victim contribute more to the criminal act than it does in larceny, including auto theft. Much of the time, the thief merely enters the unlocked car, starts the motor with the key found in the ignition, and drives away. It is not surprising, therefore, that the total number of auto thefts in 1962 was 9 per cent greater than the 1961 figure, he said.

In 1962, an all - time high record of some 350,000 automobiles, valued at $290 million, were stolen. An alarming percentage of these cars were left with keys in the ignition. For example, two 13-year-old youths recently went on an interstate car - stealing spree, stealing eight motor vehicles in two days. In each instance, the keys had been left in the ignition.

Last year, persons under 25 years of age made up about 86 per cent of all arrest for auto thefts. Significantly, approximately 54 per cent of all persons charged with auto theft were referred to juvenile courts. Who is to say where the major fault lies for these shameful figures involving American youth? One indisputable fact stands clear. Careless and lazy drivers who fail to properly secure their automobiles are inviting young people to break the law, Hoover said.

Joy rides and neighborhood jaunts by young people in stolen cars are not prankish capers of restless youth. They are crimes—costly, dangerous and senseless violations. To the law enforcement officer, they represent even more. From experience, he recognizes the problem as a prelude to more violent crimes and the launching of criminal careers.

The ease with which automobiles are stolen is astonishing. To boodlums and professional gangs who rely heavily on "hot" cars for their nefarious activities, appropriating a suitable vehicle is considered a very minor phase of otherwise eleborate and complicated criminal schemes, Hoover said.

Most veteran bank robbers use stolen cars to aid their escape from crime scenes. Thrill thieves and juvenile gangs which steal cars for stripping and resale of parts are increasing. Car theft rings continue to flourish.

The motoring public must come to know that thru indifference it not only contributes to but also condones the problem.

A new awareness of the vast scope of auto thefts in the overall crime picture is needed.

Car thieves, adult and juvenile, must be dealt with realistically. Their role in the continuing rise of crime cannot be dismissed lightly.

With a little diligence, American automobile owners can strike a great blow for crime prevention. By the simple acts or removing ignition keys and locking unattended cars, an amazing reduction in auto thefts could be realized.

The first step in the solution of and problem is the recognition of its existence. Where auto thefts are concerned, it is a step long overdue, Hoover concluded.

Kenneth Turner Delay Marine Enlistee

Kenneth K. Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Turner of 3100 Wood Ave., has enlisted in the delay enlistment program of the U. S. Marines.

Turner, a senior at Wasson High School, elected June 21 as his date to report to active duty. He will be flown on that date to San Diego, Calif. where he will receive 11 weeks of basic training. After this he will report to nearby Camp Pendleton for a month of intensive individual combat instruction. Turner will then be granted a 20-day leave before being further assigned.

Region Residents Win Patrol Commendations

Two Colorado Springs residents and a resident of Security have won commendations from the State Highway Patrol for safe driving and will compete for the February Highway Safety Award to be presented by the Denver Post and Denver U. S. National Bank.

They are Irma R. Hamilton, 2004 W. Platte Ave. and Betty L. Cottrett, of Colorado Springs, and Frankie A. Rechau, 2557 Chimayo Dr., Security.

Cancer 'Medicine' Seen But It's Not Yet Available

(Editor's Note: This is one in a series of articles about your health which appear regularly in the Gazette Telegraph as a public service feature.)

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

A medicine that will cure cancer has been sought intensively by men from ancient times right down to the present minute, when literally thousands of laboratories throughout the world are continuing the search.

Ancient Egyptian physicians used an arsenous acid paste to treat skin cancer, and, perhaps not strangely, it may have been effective to a degree, although hardly curative. Arsenic compounds long have been known to be poisonous to tumors. The Egyptian acid paste, however, probably burned and disfigured as many patients as it relieved.

Exotic drugs and remedies have been tried almost without number over the centuries. Everything from toads, crabs and violet leaves to silver, lead, pipe clay and such herbs as aconite and belladona. The spleens of goats have been used, and the white blood cells of rabbits.

In 1865, the first effective chemical agent, potassium arsenite, was discovered, but it was not until World War I that science began really to come to grips with the roots of cancer chemotherapy. It was observed in Flanders that men gassed with mustard gas showed a marked depression of cellular elements in bone marrow, one of the principal sites in the body where lymphatic tissue has its origins. Lymphatic tissue, it was know, bears a close relationship with malignant cells.

Then, during World War II, a Liberty ship loaded with mustard gas was shelled and exploded in an Italian harbor. About 60 men died, and autopsies again showed the severe depression of bone marrow. Following up on these findings, a Yale medical team in 1946 made the first use of nitrogen mustard as a chemical treatment for Hodgkin's disease, a cancer - like overgrowth of lymphatic tissue.

Since then the search has been pressed even more actively, and there are now four classes of drugs in use, with varying degrees of success, for the chemotherapy of cancer. Unfortunately, in only three types of cancer can it be proved that the drug treatments actually prolong life. Chemical treatment is known to have definite value against one type of carcinoma of the uterus, acute leukemia in children and Wilm's tumor, a cancer of the kidney in children.

Aside from these, chemical agents have given no real prolongation of life in other types of cancer, although they have proved palliative (relieving) in certain kinds of lymphomas, chronic leukemia, and prostate and breast cancers.

Most cancer drugs act either as poisons to the cells, or they starve the cells to death. The probelm with the agents thus far is that they act on normal cells as well as cancer cells. Ideally, a cancer drug would be selective, killing cancer cells but having no effect on normal cells.

To get around the toxicity problem, cancer drugs sometimes are used in special ways. Where possible, as in a lower limb, the agent is put into an artery and pumped out through a vein in a closed - circuit system which prevents the chemical from reaching other parts of the body. Infusion into an artery also may be used in certain head and neck cancers which cannot be reached by surgery.

One of the most important recent developments in this field has been the establishment of the National Cancer Chemotherapy Service, an agency which co-ordinates studies of chemical agents and screens thousands of new drugs each year on a systematic and scientific basis.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. Most cancer researchers are optimistic that effective and safe cancer drugs will be found.

2. But avoid thinking in terms of a single drug which will cure all cancer. In view of the fact that cancer can attack virtually every tissue and organ of the body, and considering the large number of varieties of cancer, it is probable that many cancer drugs will be needed, rather than one cure-all.

3. Today, cancer agents fall into four principal classes: alkylating agents, anti - metabolites, hormones and antibiotics.

4. The alkylating agents, such as nitrogen mustard, are toxic to cells.

5. The antimetabolite agents are antagonists to cells. In effect, they starve cells to death or interfere with their reproduction. They resemble the enzymes naturally used in the manufacture of new cells and "fool" the body into accepting them in place of the natural enzymes. Examples of this group of agents are folic acid antagonists, methotrexate and 6 - mercaptopurine.

6. Hormones — estrogens, androgens and the corticosteroids—are used effectively to relieve some types of cancer, notably female breast cancer and prostate cancer in men.

7. Antibiotics and extracts of certain plants are sometimes employed against special cancers, notably actinomycin against Wilm's tumor.

8. Except in special cases, however drugs do not "cure" cancer although they can be important in giving relief or in combination with other treatments.

9. There is still no scientific proof that Krebiozen, one highly publicized cancer drug, is effective. It is still under independent study.

10. The first treatments for cancer still are surgery and radiation, and the best hope is early diagnosis followed by prompt action.

New Edition Of Region Guide Now Available

A new edition of Pikes Peak Region Guide published by the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce will be out this week. It is the work of the Tourist Promotion Committee of the Organization.

In its Progress Report of Feb 28 the Chamber of Commerce concerning the new Guide says:

"This year's order is for 190,000 of the brochures, all full size. The Guide has been completely redesigned, but will include all of the information which it has carried in the past. It will be easier to read and it will be approximately 1½ nches taller than last year's piece.

"The brochure is distributed at travel shows by direct mail thru local hotels and motels, as well as restaurants and other spots which tourist guests frequent. It is distributed to motels in a 150 miles radius of Colorado Springs, thereby beng made available for tourist guests into Colorado.

"The Guide is available to any Chamber member who has need of material to answer tourists' questions during the summer. In fact, we highly recommend that you secure a supply of these Guides and use them rather than take your time to attempt to answer routine questions about things to see and do and how to get there."

Auto Theft Made Easy For Criminals, Hoover Says

A criminal is not easily deterred by inconvenience; nor is he likely to become discouraged by temporary setbacks. If the commission of a crime is his goal, he usually achieves it. If the crime is auto theft, it may be accomplished with little or no effort, J. Edgar Hoover; recently told law enforcement agencies.

American automobile owners operate what amounts to a "red carpet" service for car thieves. Perhaps in no other violation does negligence by the victim contribute more to the criminal act than it does in larceny, including auto theft. Much of the time, the thief merely enters the unlocked car, starts the motor with the key found in the ignition, and drives away. It is not surprising, therefore, that the total number of auto thefts in 1962 was 9 per cent greater than the 1961 figure, he said.

In 1962, an all - time high record of some 350,000 automobiles, valued at $290 million, were stolen. An alarming percentage of these cars were left with keys in the ignition. For example, two 13-year-old youths recently went on an interstate car - stealing spree, stealing eight motor vehicles in two days. In each instance, the keys had been left in the ignition.

Last year, persons under 25 years of age made up about 86 per cent of all arrest for auto thefts. Significantly, approximately 54 per cent of all persons charged with auto theft were referred to juvenile courts. Who is to say where the major fault lies for these shameful figures involving American youth? One indisputable fact stands clear. Careless and lazy drivers who fail to properly secure their automobiles are inviting young people to break the law, Hoover said.

Joy rides and neighborhood jaunts by young people in stolen cars are not prankish capers of restless youth. They are crimes—costly, dangerous and senseless violations. To the law enforcement officer, they represent even more. From experience, he recognizes the problem as a prelude to more violent crimes and the launching of criminal careers.

The ease with which automobiles are stolen is astonishing. To hoodlums and professional gangs who rely heavily on "hot" cars for their nefarious activities, appropriating a suitable vehicle is considered a very minor phase of otherwise eleborate and complicated criminal schemes, Hoover said.

Most veteran bank robbers use stolen cars to aid their escape from crime scenes. Thrill thieves and juvenile gangs which steal cars for stripping and resale of parts are increasing. Car theft rings continue to flourish.

The motoring public must come to know that thru indifference it not only contributes to but also condones the problem.

A new awareness of the vast scope of auto thefts in the overall crime picture is needed.

Car thieves, adult and juvenile, must be dealt with realistically. Their role in the continuing rise of crime cannot be dismissed lightly.

With a little diligence, American automobile owners can strike a great blow for crime prevention. By the simple acts or removing ignition keys and locking unattended cars, an amazing reduction in auto thefts could be realized.

The first step in the solution of and problem is the recognition of its existence. Where auto thefts are concerned, it is a step long overdue, Hoover concluded.

Kenneth Turner Delay Marine Enlistee

Kenneth K. Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Turner of 3100 Wood Ave., has enlisted in the delay enlistment program of the U. S. Marines.

Turner, a senior at Wasson High School, elected June 21 as his date to report to active duty. He will be flown on that date to San Diego, Calif. where he will receive 11 weeks of basic training. After this he will report to nearby Camp Pendleton for a month of intensive individual combat instruction. Turner will then be granted a 20-day leave before being further assigned.

Region Residents Win Patrol Commendations

Two Colorado Springs residents and a resident of Security have won commendations from the State Highway Patrol for safe driving and will compete for the February Highway Safety Award to be presented by the Denver Post and Denver U. S. National Bank.

Cancer 'Medicine' Seen But It's Not Yet Available

(Editor's Note: This is one in a series of articles about your health which appear regularly in the Gazette Telegraph as a public service feature.)

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

A medicine that will cure cancer has been sought intensively by men from ancient times right down to the present minute, when literally thousands of laboratories throughout the world are continuing the search.

Ancient Egyptian physicians used an arsenous acid paste to treat skin cancer, and, perhaps not strangely, it may have been effective to a degree, although hardly curative. Arsenic compounds long have been known to be poisonous to tumors. The Egyptian acid paste, however, probably burned and disfigured as many patients as it relieved.

Exotic drugs and remedies have been tried almost without number over the centuries. Everything from toads, crabs and violet leaves to silver, lead, pipe clay and such herbs as aconite and belladona. The spleens of goats have been used, and the white blood cells of rabbits.

In 1865, the first effective chemical agent, potassium arsenite, was discovered, but it was not until World War I that science began really to come to grips with the roots of cancer chemotherapy. It was observed in Flanders that men gassed with mustard gas showed a marked depression of cellular elements in bone marrow, one of the principal sites in the body where lymphatic tissue has its origins. Lymphatic tissue, it was know, bears a close relationship with malignant cells.

Then, during World War II, a Liberty ship loaded with mustard gas was shelled and exploded in an Italian harbor. About 60 men died, and autopsies again showed the severe depression of bone marrow. Following up on these findings, a Yale medical team in 1946 made the first use of nitrogen mustard as a chemical treatment for Hodgkin's disease, a cancer - like overgrowth of lymphatic tissue.

Since then the search has been pressed even more actively, and there are now four classes of drugs in use, with varying degrees of success, for the chemotherapy of cancer. Unfortunately, in only three types of cancer can it be proved that the drug treatments actually prolong life. Chemical treatment is known to have definite value against one type of carcinoma of the uterus, acute leukemia in children and Wilm's tumor, a cancer of the kidney in children.

Aside from these, chemical agents have given no real prolongation of life in other types of cancer, although they have proved palliative (relieving) in certain kinds of lymphomas, chronic leukemia, and prostate and breast cancers.

Most cancer drugs act either as poisons to the cells, or they starve the cells to death. The probelm with the agents thus far is that they act on normal cells as well as cancer cells. Ideally, a cancer drug would be selective, killing cancer cells but having no effect on normal cells.

To get around the toxicity problem, cancer drugs sometimes are used in special ways. Where possible, as in a lower limb, the agent is put into an artery and pumped out through a vein in a closed - circuit system which prevents the chemical from reaching other parts of the body. Infusion into an artery also may be used in certain head and neck cancers which cannot be reached by surgery.

One of the most important recent developments in this field has been the establishment of the National Cancer Chemotherapy Service, an agency which co-ordinates studies of chemical agents and screens thousands of new drugs each year on a systematic and scientific basis.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. Most cancer researchers are optimistic that effective and safe cancer drugs will be found.

2. But avoid thinking in terms of a single drug which will cure all cancer. In view of the fact that cancer can attack virtually every tissue and organ of the body, and considering the large number of varieties of cancer, it is probable that many cancer drugs will be needed, rather than one cure-all.

3. Today, cancer agents fall into four principal classes: alkylating agents, anti - metabolites, hormones and antibiotics.

4. The alkylating agents, such as nitrogen mustard, are toxic to cells.

5. The antimetabolite agents are antagonists to cells. In effect, they starve cells to death or interfere with their reproduction. They resemble the enzymes naturally used in the manufacture of new cells and "fool" the body into accepting them in place of the natural enzymes. Examples of this group of agents are folic acid antagonists, methotrexate and 6 - mercaptopurine.

6. Hormones — estrogens, androgens and the corticosteroids—are used effectively to relieve some types of cancer, notably female breast cancer and prostate cancer in men.

7. Antibiotics and extracts of certain plants are sometimes employed against special cancers, notably actinomycin against Wilm's tumor.

8. Except in special cases, however drugs do not "cure" cancer although they can be important in giving relief or in combination with other treatments.

9. There is still no scientific proof that Krebiozen, one highly publicized cancer drug, is effective. It is still under independent study.

10. The first treatments for cancer still are surgery and radiation, and the best hope is early diagnosis followed by prompt action.

Jaundice Symptom Not Disease AMA Says

Remember "yellow jaundice"? The skin and the whites of the eyes take on a yellowish hue.

Physicians know that jaundice is not a disease but a symptom of many different conditions in which bile pigment is not being handled properly in the body and is accumulating in excess quantities in the blood, according to the American Medical Association.

Bile pigment is a product of red blood cells. Liver cells convert the pigment into bile, which is excreted into the intestinal tract to aid digestion.

Never neglect jaundice. It can be a symtom of a serious condition, such as hepatitis. And hepatitis, by the way, has increased by leaps and bounds in the United States in recent years. It is an infectious disease that causes serious illness and, often, permanent liver damage.

Jaundice can be detected earliest in the whites of the eyes. If the eyes suddenly appear yellowish, consult a physician promptly. Early treatment is very important in treating most of the conditions causing jaundice.

Jaundice of the newborn, while often not serious, can be very dangerous. Rh babies usually are jaundiced and often require exchange transfusions.

A frequent reason for surgical removal of gallstones, even if they're causing no trouble, is to forestall the possibility that the stone will later lodge in the bile duct.

Jaundice, in fact, is not always easy to trace to its cause. Self-diagnosis can be exceedingly dangerous, and a physician should be consulted promptly. Your physician will want to know whether jaundice has occurred before, whether it is occasional or constant, whether pain or fever is present, whether there has been a recent blood transfusion. He probably will want to make tests on blood and urine.

Jaundice is an ancient condition which must be treated with the respect it deserves to avoid very serious results.

Widefield High Windup

By SHARON LOVELESS

"Almost Summer," a three-act comedy by Christopher Seigler, was the second production this year for the Drama club. The play was directed by Donald Dieter. Cast members were John Enroughty and Linda Ravert (leads), Gary Hawes, Julie Allen, Don Collier, Linda Van Hoosier, Doug Allen, Gene Nally, Anita Pinner and Virginia Yontz. The play was presented to the public Friday and Saturday nights in the high school all-purpose room.

Seniors may get their college applications from the counselors' office. Scores from the January college board tests have been received and given to the students.

WHS Art Club is presenting a talent show March 29. Those on the program are Don and Barry Thompson, A and B squad cheerleders: Sharon Pearson, Linda Scott, Diane Pritchard, Linda and Melva Reed, Twila Wilson, Barbara Billingsly, and Lynda Swaney. There will be a first prize of $10 for the best performance and a second prize of $4. Plans for the proceeds have not been definitely decided as yet.

National Honor Society sponsored the dance after the basketball game with Leadville. The group is earning money to help finance the annual movie and breakfast after the prom this year.

Security's American Legion Auxilary is again sponsoring a girl to Girls' State this summer. Girls in the upper third of the junior class recently held a meeting and received more information. Widefield's representative to State last year was Jane Smith.

March 9 the National Merit Scholarship tests will be given to 25 juniors. Any interested junior may sign up for this exam in the counselors' office. However, since only 25 of the tests are available, the top 10 per cent of the class will be given priority.

Feb. 28 WHS and Palmer students took over and ran Fashion Bar. Rusty Henninger, WHS senior, was chosen as manager of the store with Jim Heaton of Palmer as the assistant manager.

Others working at the Fashion Bar were Connie Walker, Rodney Coates, Kay Music, Bruce Chiddister, Tom Pearson, Larry Hart, Darlene Greer, Josie Guzman, Sandy Murray, Bill Tolch, Carol Williamson, Linda Wood, Doug MacDonald, Bill Getz, Juli Doudna, Bruce Beyers, Larry Scott, and Charlotte Wilburn.

During the day two fashion shows were held. Models for the shows were the various queens from the schools. A bridal procession was held at the end of each show.

A banquet was held Wednesday at Benardo's for all those participating in the WHS - Palmer Day.

Spotlighted seniors for the past issue of the Gladiator, school newspaper, were Billie Jean Posey and Lee Cheaney. Billie is a member of the Gladiator staff, Girls' club, Pep club, a representative to the Student council, and was a member of the Royal Court at the Sweetheart Dance. Lee, also a member of the Gladiator staff, is president of the Teen Town club in Security and was president of his junior class.

All schools in District 3 will be served the following meals during this week:

MONDAY
Hamburgers
Buttered Carrots
Potato Chips
Fruit Cup
Milk

TUESDAY
Egg Salad Sandwiches
Peas and Carrots
Yellow Cake with Strawberry Topping
Milk

WEDNESDAY
Chicken Cachatorie

STUDENT AT WORK—Gary Boucher, a physics major at Colorado College, measures the magnetic field created by a piece of spinning metal with a device he developed to help him conduct the experiment.

* * * * * *

Gary Boucher Developes Magnetic Field Device

A 21-year-old physics major at Colorado College has developed a low - cost device for measuring magnetic fields.

Gary Boucher designed the $20 apparatus when he could not find a commercial magnetometer that would do the job required for a physics experiment he is conducting.

Boucher, a Phi Beta Kappa, is repeating an experiment, first performed in 1914 by S. J. Barnett, famed physicist, on a theory suggested by Albert Einstein.

The experiment, seldom conducted by undergraduate students, helps to explain why iron is magnetic and most other metals are not, and provides insight into the atomic structure of iron.

His is one of the many research projects being carried on by students at the college.

Boucher obtains his basic information by spinning a small piece of metal at speeds up to 60,000 revolution per minute and measuring the magnetic field set up around the metal.

He already has completed the first step, which was to determine that a piece of initially unmagnetized iron, spinning at high speeds, actually creates a magnetic field.

The Colorado College senior does this by passing electric current thru a small copper coil, which is suspended directly under the spinning metal.

When a magnetic field is created by the spinning metal, it causes the coil to jerk from side to side. Boucher notes the tiny jerks of the coil by observing the operation thru the crossed hairs of the microscope lens.

The simple device consists of a compressed - air motor to spin the metal, a small copper coil and a six - volt battery, and a lens. The actual operation is enclosed in a tall tin stove pipe to shield away the effects of the magnetic field — which otherwise might interfere with the accuracy of the measurements.

"When the metal is spinning, the electrons, spinning like tiny tops within the atoms, tend to spin along the same axis as the metal," he said. "It is this that produces the magnetic field."

Boucher, who reads Shakespeare and climbs sheer rock mountain sides for fun, is conducting the experiments as his project in the senior physics laboratory course, under the direction of Prof. Richard C. Bradley.

He hopes to follow in the footsteps of his father, Prof. Emeritus Paul E. Boucher, who was chairman of the physics department at Colorado College from 1928 to 1961.

He plans to enter graduate school next fall and work toward a Ph.D. in geophysics. "I'd like to teach and do research," he said.

Extension Center To Hold Classes In Communication

A class in "Communication thru Speech and Writing", beginning March 6th and lasting for ten weeks, will be held at the University of Colorado Extension Center. Inez Hunt will be the teacher.

The course will deal with effective techniques of communication as they may be applied in speech, book reviewing, poetry, conversation, writing, and research.

Class time will be divided into a lecture period followed by discussion and practical application of the lesson.

Altho each class will feature a separate interest, the close relation of rules will be observed. Titles for the lectures include: Don't Write If You Can Help It," "Slips That Show," "How To Interrupt Your Friends and Survive," "Book Reviews For Sleepy Audiences," "Do You Have a Pencil That Rhymes?" "I Wish I Had Said That."

The techniques for sharp communication used by successful modern writers will be examined Each member of the class will have an opportunity to try these techniques in his chosen field.

Class time is set for Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. and registration is now open at the extension center, 1105 N. Nevada Ave.

Turkish housing is critically low.

Jaundice Symptom Not Disease AMA Says

Remember "yellow jaundice"? The skin and the whites of the eyes take on a yellowish hue.

Physicians know that jaundice is not a disease but a symptom of many different conditions in which bile pigment is not being handled properly in the body and is accumulating in excess quantities in the blood, according to the American Medical Association.

Bile pigment is a product of red blood cells. Liver cells convert the pigment into bile, which is excreted into the intestinal tract to aid digestion.

Never neglect jaundice. It can be a symtom of a serious condition, such as hepatitis. And hepatitis, by the way, has increased by leaps and bounds in the United States in recent years. It is an infectious disease that causes serious illness and, often, permanent liver damage.

Jaundice can be detected earliest in the whites of the eyes. If the eyes suddenly appear yellowish, consult a physician promptly. Early treatment is very important in treating most of the conditions causing jaundice.

Jaundice of the newborn, while often not serious, can be very dangerous. Rh babies usually are jaundiced and often require exchange transfusions.

A frequent reason for surgical removal of gallstones, even if they're causing no trouble, is to forestall the possibility that the stone will later lodge in the bile duct.

Jaundice, in fact, is not always easy to trace to its cause. Self-diagnosis can be exceedingly dangerous, and a physician should be consulted promptly. Your physician will want to know whether jaundice has occurred before, whether it is occasional or constant, whether pain or fever is present, whether there has been a recent blood transfusion. He probably will want to make tests on blood and urine.

Jaundice is an ancient condition which must be treated with the respect it deserves to avoid very serious results.

Widefield High Windup

By SHARON LOVELESS

"Almost Summer," a three-act comedy by Christopher Seigler, was the second production this year for the Drama club. The play was directed by Donald Dieter. Cast members were John Enroughty and Linda Ravert (leads), Gary Hawes, Julie Allen, Don Collier, Linda Van Hoosier, Doug Allen, Gene Nally, Anita Pinner and Virginia Yontz. The play was presented to the public Friday and Saturday nights in the high school all-purpose room.

Seniors may get their college applications from the counselors' office. Scores from the January college board tests have been received and given to the students.

WHS Art Club is presenting a talent show March 29. Those on the program are Don and Barry Thompson, A and B squad cheerleders: Sharon Pearson, Linda Scott, Diane Pritchard, Linda and Melva Reed, Twila Wilson, Barbara Billingsly, and Lynda Swaney. There will be a first prize of $10 for the best performance and a second prize of $4. Plans for the proceeds have not been definitely decided as yet.

National Honor Society sponsored the dance after the basketball game with Leadville. The group is earning money to help finance the annual movie and breakfast after the prom this year.

Security's American Legion Auxilary is again sponsoring a girl to Girls' State this summer. Girls in the upper third of the junior class recently held a meeting and received more information. Widefield's representative to State last year was Jane Smith.

March 9 the National Merit Scholarship tests will be given to 25 juniors. Any interested junior may sign up for this exam in the counselors' office. However, since only 25 of the tests are available, the top 10 per cent of the class will be given priority.

Feb. 28 WHS and Palmer students took over and ran Fashion Bar. Rusty Henninger, WHS senior, was chosen as manager of the store with Jim Heaton of Palmer as the assistant manager.

During the day two fashion shows were held. Models for the shows were the various queens from the schools. A bridal procession was held at the end of each show.

A banquet was held Wednesday at Benardo's for all those participating in the WHS - Palmer Day.

Spotlighted seniors for the past issue of the Gladiator, school newspaper, were Billie Jean Posey and Lee Cheaney. Billie is a member of the Gladiator staff, Girls' club, Pep club, a representative to the Student council, and was a member of the Royal Court at the Sweetheart Dance. Lee, also a member of the Gladiator staff, is president of the Teen Town club in Security and was president of his junior class.

All schools in District 3 will be served the following meals during this week:

* * * * * *

Gary Boucher Developes Magnetic Field Device

A 21-year-old physics major at Colorado College has developed a low - cost device for measuring magnetic fields.

Gary Boucher designed the $20 apparatus when he could not find a commercial magnetometer that would do the job required for a physics experiment he is conducting.

Boucher, a Phi Beta Kappa, is repeating an experiment, first performed in 1914 by S. J. Barnett, famed physicist, on a theory suggested by Albert Einstein.

The experiment, seldom conducted by undergraduate students, helps to explain why iron is magnetic and most other metals are not, and provides insight into the atomic structure of iron.

His is one of the many research projects being carried on by students at the college.

Boucher obtains his basic information by spinning a small piece of metal at speeds up to 60,000 revolution per minute and measuring the magnetic field set up around the metal.

He already has completed the first step, which was to determine that a piece of initially unmagnetized iron, spinning at high speeds, actually creates a magnetic field.

The Colorado College senior does this by passing electric current thru a small copper coil, which is suspended directly under the spinning metal.

When a magnetic field is created by the spinning metal, it causes the coil to jerk from side to side. Boucher notes the tiny jerks of the coil by observing the operation thru the crossed hairs of the microscope lens.

The simple device consists of a compressed - air motor to spin the metal, a small copper coil and a six - volt battery, and a lens. The actual operation is enclosed in a tall tin stove pipe to shield away the effects of the magnetic field — which otherwise might interfere with the accuracy of the measurements.

"When the metal is spinning, the electrons, spinning like tiny tops within the atoms, tend to spin along the same axis as the metal," he said. "It is this that produces the magnetic field."

Boucher, who reads Shakespeare and climbs sheer rock mountain sides for fun, is conducting the experiments as his project in the senior physics laboratory course, under the direction of Prof. Richard C. Bradley.

He hopes to follow in the footsteps of his father, Prof. Emeritus Paul E. Boucher, who was chairman of the physics department at Colorado College from 1928 to 1961.

He plans to enter graduate school next fall and work toward a Ph.D. in geophysics. "I'd like to teach and do research," he said.

Extension Center To Hold Classes In Communication

A class in "Communication thru Speech and Writing", beginning March 6th and lasting for ten weeks, will be held at the University of Colorado Extension Center. Inez Hunt will be the teacher.

The course will deal with effective techniques of communication as they may be applied in speech, book reviewing, poetry, conversation, writing, and research.

Class time will be divided into a lecture period followed by discussion and practical application of the lesson.

Altho each class will feature a separate interest, the close relation of rules will be observed. Titles for the lectures include: Don't Write If You Can Help It," "Slips That Show," "How To Interrupt Your Friends and Survive," "Book Reviews For Sleepy Audiences," "Do You Have a Pencil That Rhymes?" "I Wish I Had Said That."

The techniques for sharp communication used by successful modern writers will be examined Each member of the class will have an opportunity to try these techniques in his chosen field.

Class time is set for Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. and registration is now open at the extension center, 1105 N. Nevada Ave.

Soviet Editor Won't Pay Price

An Italian vendor tried to sell him a special colorprint edition of the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, as he and his wife toured St. Peter's Square.

"Not possible, not opportune," Adzhubei told the vendor through a translator.

Adzhubei, editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, and his wife, Rada, made a fast tour of the inside of the basilica, which Adzhubei calls "an impressive work of art that everyone should see."

WASHINGTON — Food For Peace shipments are now approaching the 200 million ton mark.

Singer Shoots Escaped Panther In California

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — "Shucks, I can get it."

Cowboy singer Stuart Hamblen made that comment to his wife last week when they heard a radio news broadcast about a search for a potentially dangerous black panther that escaped from its cage at Jungleland, a private zoo.

Hamblen shot the hunted animal after his specially trained dogs rousted it out from a building on the grounds of the Jungleland compound. The wounded panther ran under another building where more shots were fired and its body was dragged out a half-hour after first being sighted.

The 60-pound, 2-year-old panther escaped from its cage last week and apparently had kept hidden within the zoo grounds while sheriff's deputies and professional trackers searched nearby hills.

Animal handlers at Jungleland had described the animal as potentially dangerous and residents of the area not far from the heavily populated Los Angeles suburbs were warned to "keep the children in the house."

Authorities explained the panther was normally afraid of people, but that it could become dangerous if cornered — and advised searchers to shoot the animal on sight. Brought to this country from Thailand three weeks ago, the panther was valued at $2,000.

ADC Safety Campaign Prizes to Total $22,000

A total of $22,000 in prizes will be presented to winners of the Air Defense Command annual "Life Saver" safety campaign Friday, Col. John F. Sharp, ADC chief of safety, today announced.

Regional winners selected at ADC bases and units thruout the nation, Canada, Greenland and Iceland will be present, along with civilian and military dignitaries, for the banquet to be held at the Antlers Hotel, at 8 p.m. Host for the event will be Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, commander of Air Defense Command.

Contenders for the top awards were picked by each of ADC's nine air divisions on the basis of their safe driving and safe living records during the intensive four-month campaign of September-December 1962.

Awards to be presented at the banquet by participating civilian industries and organizations include a Studebaker Avant sports car and Lark station wagon, five outboard motors, two $500 U. S. Savings Bonds, four portable television sets, 12 motion picture and still camera sets, and ten $200 savings bonds.

Participating organizations, in addition to Studebaker, are Stonewall Insurance Co., Philco RCA, Auto-Crat Manufacturng Co. and the National Safety Council.

In 1962 deaths from highway accidents increased thruout the nation, and in ADC. Nevertheless, during the four month "Live Saver" campaign deaths in the command were reduced by three when compared with the same period of 1961.

Several different methods were used in selecting the 1962 campaign winners, Colonel Sharp said. Letters of recommendation were submitted for each air division winner stressing his military back ground and safety awareness.

Representatives of the National Safety Council will select the winners from information contained in the letters.

The "Live Saver" campaign is similar to industrial and community safety drives thruout the nation. In addition, a contest is incorporated into the program to encourage interest and recognize outstanding individual participation. Each of the air divisions monitors and operates the program within their own geographical areas.

At the beginning of the drive, all ADC officers and airmen were given the opportunity to sign a "Life Saver" card pledging to drive safely and live safely during the year.

At the end of the campaign, all those who passed thru the period without an accident, inury or moving traffic violation were eligible for selection to represent their unit.

Each air division selected from two to eight representatives, based on military population. The names of these contestants were sent to ADC headquarters and then to the NSC for final selection.

Easter Hall Will Be Contestant for Safety Award

Easter M. Hall, 337 Davie Dr., Security, has won a commendation for safe driving and will compete for the March Highway Safety Award to be presented by The Denver Post and Denver U. S. National Bank.

Following an occasion on which she was seen operating her vehicle in an exceptionally careful, defensive manner, Mrs. Hall was issued a "congratulation" card by Colorado State Patrolman Lloyd M. Carothers, 234 Elmwood Dr.

The patrolman also recommended that Mrs. Hall be considered for the current month's Highway Safety Award and a $100 savings bond prize which will go to a motorist singled out for statewide recognition by a judging committee.

Competing for the award will be motorists nominated by Patrol officers thruout Colorado. Selection of the winner is based on alertness, foresight, driving ability, obedience to traffic regulations and other elements of careful, defensive driving.

"The Highway Safety Award program takes a positive approach to the problem of traffic safety by making examples of careful drivers who prevent countless thousands of accidents each year," Gilbert R. Carrel, chief of the Colorado State Patrol, stated.

Rare Bats Will Not Be Evicted in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Twenty-five bats that settled in a school chimney in Morioka, Northern Japan, won't be evicted.

Unable to identify the species, school authorities sent one bat to Tokyo for investigation. It was found to be of a rare type thought to be extinct in Japan. With that word, school officials decided to spend the equivalent of $300 for a new chimney.

SEEKS NEW TRIAL

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (UPI) —Mrs. Barbara Powers, former wife of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, has filed a motion for a new divorce trial. The earlier divorce action gave her $5,500 in cash but no alimony.

Powers, whose abortive flight over Russia caused an international furor in 1961, was granted a divorce on Jan. 16 by a jury of 12 men.

Goodwill Shipment Made To Philippines by Carson

The Pikes Peak region can share the good will expressed to Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) all the way from Cebu City, Republic of the Philippines.

The good will expression came from Col. Francisco H. Licuanan Jr., commander of the 5th Philippine Infantry Division, for the men of his command and their dependents who received seven tons of books and treadle sewing machines recently from the 5th Division at Ft. Carson.

Majority of the books and foot-powered sewing machines along with other hand tools and miscellaneous items came from public school districts in El Paso County and from individuals in the civilian communities.

Ft. Carson and the 5th Division acted as catalysts in assembling the contributions and arranging for their transportation to the Far Eastern republic.

The books were flown to San Diego by the Alabama Air National Guard and shipped to Manila by the U. S. Navy. Col Lawson Magruder of the Joint U. S. Military Advisory Group presented the books and other materials to Colonel Licuanan. Lyle Lane of the U. S. consulate and school officials were present.

The collection of books for overseas was the second made at Ft. Carson at the suggestion of the former commanding general, Maj. Gen. A. H. Manhart. The first books were sent to Pakistan through the U. S. State Department.

The new commander of the 5th Philippine Division in his letter of thanks outlined his close ties with the U. S. Army from World War II action to the Army Signal School and Command and General Staff College where he has been a student.

Zuckert Used False Figures In Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert used erroneous figures to justify the award of a $5.8 billion fighter plane contract to General Dynamics Corp., Senate hearings disclosed.

Transcripts of closed testimony taken here by the Senate investigating subcommittee attributed four mistakes to Zuckert on the controversial contract award for the TFX plane.

The Senate group has released figures showing that the Boeing Co. not only submitted a lower bid for the contract but designs that were superior in some ways to those of General Dynamics.

The contract calls for production of up to 1,700 of the supersonic fighters at General Dynamics' plant at Fort Worth, Tex. Boeing wanted to build the plane at Wichita, Kans.

Zuckert's error prompted subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan to comment on what he called "a state of confusion" over the figures used to award the contract to General dynamics.

According to the testimony, a memo issued by Zuckert to justify the award attributed superior performances of the Boeing design to the rival General Dynamics proposal. Among these were take-off distances and the ferrying range of the plane.

The transcript also said that Zuckert's memo had incorrect figures for the landing characteristics and ability to perform interception missions of the General Dynamics plane.

McClellan observed that the figures in the Zuckert memo "are not the most accurate figures."

Military experts recommended adoption of the Boeing design for the plane but were overruled by civilian authorities at the Pentagon. The Senate subcommittee is conducting hearings to see if there were any undue political influences involved.

The TFX would be the first ever designed for both Air Force land operations and Navy carrier operations. Zuckert prepared his memo on Nov. 21, three days before award of the contract to General Dynamics was made public.

Figures in the subcommittee transcript showed that Boeing offered to build the plane for $455 million less than General Dynamics and had been recommended unanimously by four panels of military experts.

The hearings will resume Tuesday.

Soviet Editor Won't Pay Price

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Soviet editor Alexei Adzhubei, Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law, proved a poor customer for a newspaper here.

An Italian vendor tried to sell him a special colorprint edition of the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, as he and his wife toured St. Peter's Square.

"Not possible, not opportune," Adzhubei told the vendor through a translator.

Adzhubei, editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, and his wife, Rada, made a fast tour of the inside of the basilica, which Adzhubei calls "an impressive work of art that everyone should see."

Singer Shoots Escaped Panther In California

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — "Shucks, I can get it."

Cowboy singer Stuart Hamblen made that comment to his wife last week when they heard a radio news broadcast about a search for a potentially dangerous black panther that escaped from its cage at Jungleland, a private zoo.

Hamblen shot the hunted animal after his specially trained dogs rousted it out from a building on the grounds of the Jungleland compound. The wounded panther ran under another building where more shots were fired and its body was dragged out a half-hour after first being sighted.

The 60-pound, 2-year-old panther escaped from its cage last week and apparently had kept hidden within the zoo grounds while sheriff's deputies and professional trackers searched nearby hills.

Animal handlers at Jungleland had described the animal as potentially dangerous and residents of the area not far from the heavily populated Los Angeles suburbs were warned to "keep the children in the house."

Authorities explained the panther was normally afraid of people, but that it could become dangerous if cornered — and advised searchers to shoot the animal on sight. Brought to this country from Thailand three weeks ago, the panther was valued at $2,000.

ADC Safety Campaign Prizes to Total $22,000

A total of $22,000 in prizes will be presented to winners of the Air Defense Command annual "Life Saver" safety campaign Friday, Col. John F. Sharp, ADC chief of safety, today announced.

Regional winners selected at ADC bases and units thruout the nation, Canada, Greenland and Iceland will be present, along with civilian and military dignitaries, for the banquet to be held at the Antlers Hotel, at 8 p.m. Host for the event will be Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, commander of Air Defense Command.

Contenders for the top awards were picked by each of ADC's nine air divisions on the basis of their safe driving and safe living records during the intensive four-month campaign of September-December 1962.

Awards to be presented at the banquet by participating civilian industries and organizations include a Studebaker Avant sports car and Lark station wagon, five outboard motors, two $500 U. S. Savings Bonds, four portable television sets, 12 motion picture and still camera sets, and ten $200 savings bonds.

Participating organizations, in addition to Studebaker, are Stonewall Insurance Co., Philco RCA, Auto-Crat Manufacturng Co. and the National Safety Council.

In 1962 deaths from highway accidents increased thruout the nation, and in ADC. Nevertheless, during the four month "Live Saver" campaign deaths in the command were reduced by three when compared with the same period of 1961.

Several different methods were used in selecting the 1962 campaign winners, Colonel Sharp said. Letters of recommendation were submitted for each air division winner stressing his military background and safety awareness.

Representatives of the National Safety Council will select the winners from information contained in the letters.

The "Live Saver" campaign is similar to industrial and community safety drives thruout the nation. In addition, a contest is incorporated into the program to encourage interest and recognize outstanding individual participation. Each of the air divisions monitors and operates the program within their own geographical areas.

At the beginning of the drive, all ADC officers and airmen were given the opportunity to sign a "Life Saver" card pledging to drive safely and live safely during the year.

At the end of the campaign, all those who passed thru the period without an accident, inury or moving traffic violation were eligible for selection to represent their unit.

Each air division selected from two to eight representatives, based on military population. The names of these contestants were sent to ADC headquarters and then to the NSC for final selection.

Easter Hall Will Be Contestant for Safety Award

Easter M. Hall, 337 Davie Dr., Security, has won a commendation for safe driving and will compete for the March Highway Safety Award to be presented by The Denver Post and Denver U. S. National Bank.

Following an occasion on which she was seen operating her vehicle in an exceptionally careful, defensive manner, Mrs. Hall was issued a "congratulation" card by Colorado State Patrolman Lloyd M. Carothers, 234 Elmwood Dr.

The patrolman also recommended that Mrs. Hall be considered for the current month's Highway Safety Award and a $100 savings bond prize which will go to a motorist singled out for statewide recognition by a judging committee.

Competing for the award will be motorists nominated by Patrol officers thruout Colorado. Selection of the winner is based on alertness, foresight, driving ability, obedience to traffic regulations and other elements of careful, defensive driving.

"The Highway Safety Award program takes a positive approach to the problem of traffic safety by making examples of careful drivers who prevent countless thousands of accidents each year," Gilbert R. Carrel, chief of the Colorado State Patrol, stated.

Rare Bats Will Not Be Evicted in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Twenty-five bats that settled in a school chimney in Morioka, Northern Japan, won't be evicted.

Unable to identify the species, school authorities sent one bat to Tokyo for investigation. It was found to be of a rare type thought to be extinct in Japan. With that word, school officials decided to spend the equivalent of $300 for a new chimney.

SEEKS NEW TRIAL

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (UPI) —Mrs. Barbara Powers, former wife of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, has filed a motion for a new divorce trial. The earlier divorce action gave her $5,500 in cash but no alimony.

Powers, whose abortive flight over Russia caused an international furor in 1961, was granted a divorce on Jan. 16 by a jury of 12 men.

Goodwill Shipment Made To Philippines by Carson

The Pikes Peak region can share the good will expressed to Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) all the way from Cebu City, Republic of the Philippines.

The good will expression came from Col. Francisco H. Licuanan Jr., commander of the 5th Philippine Infantry Division, for the men of his command and their dependents who received seven tons of books and treadle sewing machines recently from the 5th Division at Ft. Carson.

Majority of the books and foot-powered sewing machines along with other hand tools and miscellaneous items came from public school districts in El Paso County and from individuals in the civilian communities.

Ft. Carson and the 5th Division acted as catalysts in assembling the contributions and arranging for their transportation to the Far Eastern republic.

The books were flown to San Diego by the Alabama Air National Guard and shipped to Manila by the U. S. Navy. Col. Lawson Magruder of the Joint U. S. Military Advisory Group presented the books and other materials to Colonel Licuanan. Lyle Lane of the U. S. consulate and school officials were present.

The collection of books for overseas was the second made at Ft. Carson at the suggestion of the former commanding general, Maj. Gen. A. H. Manhart. The first books were sent to Pakistan through the U. S. State Department.

The new commander of the 5th Philippine Division in his letter of thanks outlined his close ties with the U. S. Army from World War II action to the Army Signal School and Command and General Staff College where he has been a student.

Zuckert Used False Figures In Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert used erroneous figures to justify the award of a $5.8 billion fighter plane contract to General Dynamics Corp., Senate hearings disclosed.

Transcripts of closed testimony taken here by the Senate investigating subcommittee attributed four mistakes to Zuckert on the controversial contract award for the TFX plane.

The Senate group has released figures showing that the Boeing Co. not only submitted a lower bid for the contract but designs that were superior in some ways to those of General Dynamics.

The contract calls for production of up to 1,700 of the supersonic fighters at General Dynamics' plant at Fort Worth, Tex. Boeing wanted to build the plane at Wichita, Kans.

Zuckert's error prompted subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan to comment on what he called "a state of confusion" over the figures used to award the contract to General dynamics.

According to the testimony, a memo issued by Zuckert to justify the award attributed superior performances of the Boeing design to the rival General Dynamics proposal. Among these were take-off distances and the ferrying range of the plane.

The transcript also said that Zuckert's memo had incorrect figures for the landing characteristics and ability to perform interception missions of the General Dynamics plane.

McClellan observed that the figures in the Zuckert memo "are not the most accurate figures."

Military experts recommended adoption of the Boeing design for the plane but were overruled by civilian authorities at the Pentagon. The Senate subcommittee is conducting hearings to see if there were any undue political influences involved.

The TFX would be the first ever designed for both Air Force land operations and Navy carrier operations. Zuckert prepared his memo on Nov. 21, three days before award of the contract to General Dynamics was made public.

Figures in the subcommittee transcript showed that Boeing offered to build the plane for $435 million less than General Dynamics and had been recommended unanimously by four panels of military experts.

The hearings will resume Tuesday.

Father of 9 Gets Kidney From Woman

BOSTON (AP) — Blonde Nancy Leudicke, 29, who decided one lunch hour to give away one of her kidneys to a stranger, headed back for her job in Milwaukee last week, quietly declining a heroine's role.

Behind in Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital she left George Brost, 39, father of nine, holding a hope for life instead of the prospect of death.

Doctors hope the Feb. 18 transplant of Mrs. Leudicke's healthy kidney into Brost's body—to replace his two diseased kidneys—may prove to be the fifth successful transplant between unrelated persons in human history.

For newsmen who came to talk with the attractive divorcee before her plane flight home she had this simple question, "Why all this fuss about a simple humanitarian gesture?"

Then she explained how she felt:

"Here was a chance to help a man with nine children and I responded. I happened to be chosen from among the 63 volunteers. Any credit should be shared with the other 62 volunteers. They were just as willing to sacrifice a kidney."

The attractive 5 foot 6 secretary read of Brost's plight in the Milwaukee Sentinel in December during a coffee break at the Milwaukee School of Engineering.

On her lunch hour that noon, she volunteered, giving a sample of her blood—which she knew was the needed O-positive type—at the Milwaukee Blood Center.

On Jan. 3 she learned she was one of the two chosen as possible donors. The other, Donald Lass of Milwaukee, was eliminated after they were flown to Boston.

On Feb. 18, the young woman who had never been seriously ill was wheeled into an operating room. She gave up one of her two kidneys in a 2½ hour operation.

Meanwhile, the surgical team was removing one of Brost's diseased kidneys. At the end of 5½ hours' was implanted in his body. kidney was implanted in his body.

His remaining kidney was removed Feb. 26.

Republican Tells All About Democrats

ATTICA, Kan. (UPI) — Nathaniel Grigsby, 78, died in 1890 and was buried here. His tombstone inscription reads:

"Through this inscription I wish to enter my dying protest against what is called the Democratic party. I have watched it closely since the days of Jackson and know that all the misfortunes of our nation have come to it through this so-called party; therefore, beware of this party of treason."

Grigsby was a Republican.

School Aid Bill Supported by Voters' League

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado League of Women Voters announced here its support of the state school aid bill introduced by four senators. The league called it "more rational, more equitable and statistically valid."

Sponsors of the measure are Fay DeBerard, R-Kremmling; Ranger Rogers, R-Littleton; Woody Hewett, R-Boulder, and Roy McVicker, D-Wheat Ridge. It is Senate Bill 263.

DeBerard, who is chairman of the Senate Education Committee, was notified of the approval in a letter signed by Mrs. D'Arcy McNickle of Boulder, state president of the women voters' organization.

The other principal school measure is one sponsored by Reps. Palmer Burch, R-Denver, an dForrest Burns, D-Lamar. It has been revised and approved by the House Education Committee and then was turned over to the House Appropriations Committee for study.

DeBerard says the Senate bill needs some reworking before it can be brought out for debate.

The Burch-Burns will features a flexible county tax levy on property for schools, as a qualification for state aid. The Senate bill sets a flat 12-mill tax levy on all property as the qualification.

The Burch-Burns bill also includes in the formula for distribution of aid the gross income of all residents of each county. The Senate bill contains no such provisions.

Both major provisions of the Burch-Burns bill are in the present school law.

Both bills eliminate the controversial sales ratio factor from the formula for distribution of money.

The League of Women Voters called the fixed 12-mill levy in the Senate bill "a more realistic criterion of local ability to support schools than is the combination of assessed valuation per classroom unit and adjusted gross income per classroom unit which is in the present formula for distribution of state aid."

It said that under the present law county tax levies necessary to qualify for state aid range from 6.57 mills to 15.10 mills and are "hard to justify."

Railway Clerks Want Suit Moved To Federal Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks filed suit in federal court here to have its dispute with Southern Pacific removed to that jurisdiction from a county superior court.

The union said that the action would not involve an immediate hearing here but would bring the case under proper jurisdiction.

The clerks are currently under injunction not to strike Southern Pacific until a March 8 hearing in the San Mateo County Superior Court of Judge James O'Keefe.

The injunction in O'Keefe's court was obtained by the company Tuesday just hours before the clerks were to go on strike against the West's largest railroad.

The clerks said Friday that the complaint in the superior court alleged a violation of a federal law—the Railway Labor Act—and that the proper place to rule on the contention would be in a federal court.

"The action is a civil action of which this court has original jurisdiction," the union said.

It said that, if the permission for transfer is granted, the company would have to apply to the federal court to contest the removal.

"The brotherhood will promptly proceed with such further pleadings and motions as it considers best calculated to remove any judicial obstacle to the pending strike at the earliest practicable time," a statement from the office of James Weaver, chairman of the union's SP unit, said.

"The brotherhood is convinced that the federal court provides a more appropriate and logical forum for determination of whether judicial restraints are to be placed upon the exercise of its collective bargaining functions in accordance with the railway labor act."

The long-threatened walkout, over the issue of finding jobs for clerks displaced by automation, would tie up SP's operations in seven western states and idle 50,000 SP workers, including 11,000 members of the clerks' brotherhood.

Affected would be the 8,000 miles of SP track in Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and West Texas.

Secret Hearing Is Blasted by Indians

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Half of New Mexico's 18 Indian pueblos rose in verbal revolt here because the Bureaus of Indian Affairs kept them away from a secret hearing.

The bureau convened a hearing at the United Pueblo Agency here on charges against an agency criminal investigator, Delos Botone.

Nine pueblos in this area sent representatives to the agency office to hear the charges, which were not made public, and to voice support for Botone who has been with the agency 27 years.

A spokesman for the Pueblos said they understood Botone was charged, in part, with misuse of a government vehicle.

Pojoaque Pueblo's Lt. Gov. Tony Gutierrez declared that if Botone is dismissed for this and other charges, the pueblo peoples will be forthcoming with the misdoings of many other bureau employes.

The area Indian bureau director, Fred M. Haverland, said the hearing board, functioning under civil service rules, could not open the meeting to the Indians.

Pueblo leader made telephone calls to Washington and Santa Fe, New Mexico's state capital, in effort to get themselves into the session.

The Indians then drew up a resolution which said in part that 'Delos Botone is being unduly persecuted, and . . . each of said pueblos in which Mr. Delos Botone has worked, feels that he has done a good job. . . ."

Haverland later commented, "Once you get a pueblo stirred up, they stay with their beliefs."

Raising Ceiling On National Debt Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raising the ceiling on the national debt has become a painful annual exercise for Congress.

This year, the task is especially difficult for Democratic leaders because at the same time they are trying to push through some version of President Kennedy's tax program.

Tax cuts mean bigger deficits, at least for a while. This is one reason the House Ways and Means Committee, after some preliminary hearings on a preliminary debt celing bill, put the whole distasteful question on the shelf for at least a month.

Democrats and Republicans on the committee joined in the postponement decision, but not for entirely the same motives.

Democrats are hoping the raise can be kept to a minimum, holding down resistance in Congress.

The senior Republican member, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, left no doubt the GOP would be happy to use uncertainty over the debt limit as a lever to hold down expenditures.

Coincidentally, the decision to postpone action on a celing raise came on the very day the Republican Congressional leadership announced a goal of trimming President Kennedy's budget by $10 billion.

Legally, the national debt cannot exceed the debt ceiling. Thus, to restrain a growing deficit, Congress usually sets the ceiling at a point not much above the anticipated high point for the debt during the year. However, when the government expects a further deficit in the next year the debt is apt to nudge the ceiling, forcing the need for a higher one.

The debt now stands at about $302.5 billion. The limit is $308 billion but will drop by stages to $285 billion by July 1 unless Congress acts.

The administration has asked for quick legislation to keep it at $308 billion until that date, and has said that it will later request another raise. This may be to as much as $325 billion, if the tax cut seems to be headed for approval.

Congress will vote on the debt limit before final action is possible on the tax bill.

One Democratic handler of administration legislation, who asked not to be identified, said, "Congress may just settle the whole tax issue by its vote on the debt limit. If it turns us down hard enough, that could be it."

But he conceded that even if their is a preliminary vote against a deficit-accommodating debt limit raise the close prospect of tax relief might make the legislators change their minds and vote both the ceiling raise and the tax cut.

Father of 9 Gets Kidney From Woman

BOSTON (AP) — Blonde Nancy Leudicke, 29, who decided one lunch hour to give away one of her kidneys to a stranger, headed back for her job in Milwaukee last week, quietly declining a heroine's role.

Behind in Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital she left George Brost, 39, father of nine, holding a hope for life instead of the prospect of death.

Doctors hope the Feb. 18 transplant of Mrs. Leudicke's healthy kidney into Brost's body—to replace his two diseased kidneys—may prove to be the fifth successful transplant between unrelated persons in human history.

For newsmen who came to talk with the attractive divorcee before her plane flight home she had this simple question, "Why all this fuss about a simple humanitarian gesture?"

Then she explained how she felt:

"Here was a chance to help a man with nine children and I responded. I happened to be chosen from among the 63 volunteers. Any credit should be shared with the other 62 volunteers. They were just as willing to sacrifice a kidney."

The attractive 5 foot 6 secretary read of Brost's plight in the Milwaukee Sentinel in December during a coffee break at the Milwaukee School of Engineering.

On her lunch hour that noon, she volunteered, giving a sample of her blood—which she knew was the needed O-positive type—at the Milwaukee Blood Center.

On Jan. 3 she learned she was one of the two chosen as possible donors. The other, Donald Lass of Milwaukee, was eliminated after they were flown to Boston.

On Feb. 18, the young woman who had never been seriously ill was wheeled into an operating room. She gave up one of her two kidneys in a 2½ hour operation.

Meanwhile, the surgical team was removing one of Brost's diseased kidneys. At the end of 5½ hours' was implanted in his body. kidney was implanted in his body.

His remaining kidney was removed Feb. 26.

Republican Tells All About Democrats

ATTICA, Kan. (UPI) — Nathaniel Grigsby, 78, died in 1890 and was buried here. His tombstone inscription reads:

"Through this inscription I wish to enter my dying protest against what is called the Democratic party. I have watched it closely since the days of Jackson and know that all the misfortunes of our nation have come to it through this so-called party; therefore, beware of this party of treason."

Grigsby was a Republican.

Little Town Has Big Mail Problem

FORT MADISON, La. (UPI) — The U.S. Post Office in this community of 15,000 residents has completed handling the largest single mailing in its 127-year history. More than one million letters are sent by the Educational Service division of Sheaffer Pen Company to teachers across the nation.

Postmaster Marion Moseley and staff now have the prospect of handling several hundred thousand incoming replies to a special offer contained in the pen firm's letter.

School Aid Bill Supported by Voters' League

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado League of Women Voters announced here its support of the state school aid bill introduced by four senators. The league called it "more rational, more equitable and statistically valid."

Sponsors of the measure are Fay DeBerard, R-Kremmling; Ranger Rogers, R-Littleton; Woody Hewett, R-Boulder, and Roy McVicker, D-Wheat Ridge. It is Senate Bill 263.

DeBerard, who is chairman of the Senate Education Committee, was notified of the approval in a letter signed by Mrs. D'Arcy McNickle of Boulder, state president of the women voters' organization.

The other principal school measure is one sponsored by Reps. Palmer Burch, R-Denver, an dForrest Burns, D-Lamar. It has been revised and approved by the House Education Committee and then was turned over to the House Appropriations Committee for study.

DeBerard says the Senate bill needs some reworking before it can be brought out for debate.

The Burch-Burns will features a flexible county tax levy on property for schools, as a qualification for state aid. The Senate bill sets a flat 12-mill tax levy on all property as the qualification.

The Burch-Burns bill also includes in the formula for distribution of aid the gross income of all residents of each county. The Senate bill contains no such provisions.

Both major provisions of the Burch-Burns bill are in the present school law.

Both bills eliminate the controversial sales ratio factor from the formula for distribution of money.

The League of Women Voters called the fixed 12-mill levy in the Senate bill "a more realistic criterion of local ability to support schools than is the combination of assessed valuation per classroom unit and adjusted gross income per classroom unit which is in the present formula for distribution of state aid."

It said that under the present law county tax levies necessary to qualify for state aid range from 6.57 mills to 15.10 mills and are "hard to justify."

Railway Clerks Want Suit Moved To Federal Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks filed suit in federal court here to have its dispute with Southern Pacific removed to that jurisdiction from a county superior court.

The union said that the action would not involve an immediate hearing here but would bring the case under proper jurisdiction.

The clerks are currently under injunction not to strike Southern Pacific until a March 8 hearing in the San Mateo County Superior Court of Judge James O'Keefe.

The injunction in O'Keefe's court was obtained by the company Tuesday just hours before the clerks were to go on strike against the West's largest railroad.

The clerks said Friday that the complaint in the superior court alleged a violation of a federal law—the Railway Labor Act—and that the proper place to rule on the contention would be in a federal court.

"The action is a civil action of which this court has original jurisdiction," the union said.

It said that, if the permission for transfer is granted, the company would have to apply to the federal court to contest the removal.

"The brotherhood will promptly proceed with such further pleadings and motions as it considers best calculated to remove any judicial obstacle to the pending strike at the earliest practicable time," a statement from the office of James Weaver, chairman of the union's SP unit, said.

"The brotherhood is convinced that the federal court provides a more appropriate and logical forum for determination of whether judicial restraints are to be placed upon the exercise of its collective bargaining functions in accordance with the railway labor act."

The long-threatened walkout, over the issue of finding jobs for clerks displaced by automation, would tie up SP's operations in seven western states and idle 50,000 SP workers, including 11,000 members of the clerks' brotherhood.

Affected would be the 8,000 miles of SP track in Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and West Texas.

Secret Hearing Is Blasted by Indians

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Half of New Mexico's 18 Indian pueblos rose in verbal revolt here because the Bureaus of Indian Affairs kept them away from a secret hearing.

The bureau convened a hearing at the United Pueblo Agency here on charges against an agency criminal investigator, Delos Botone.

Nine pueblos in this area sent representatives to the agency office to hear the charges, which were not made public, and to voice support for Botone who has been with the agency 27 years.

A spokesman for the Pueblos said they understood Botone was charged, in part, with misuse of a government vehicle.

Pojoaque Pueblo's Lt. Gov. Tony Gutierrez declared that if Botone is dismissed for this and other charges, the pueblo peoples will be forthcoming with the misdoings of many other bureau employes.

The area Indian bureau director, Fred M. Haverland, said the hearing board, functioning under civil service rules, could not open the meeting to the Indians.

Pueblo leader made telephone calls to Washington and Santa Fe, New Mexico's state capital, in effort to get themselves into the session.

The Indians then drew up a resolution which said in part that "Delos Botone is being unduly persecuted, and . . . each of said pueblos in which Mr. Delos Botone has worked, feels that he has done a good job. . . ."
